RACE VIOLENCE

19 Killed As Guns, Fires Roar

By the Associated Press

A new outburst of violence rocked the U.S. capital today and crack U.S. Army paratroopers joined 4,000 other federal troops there.

In most other American cities hit by violence spawned by the murder of Negro civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the dawn brought a respite.

A wave of looting swept Negro sections of Washington and new fires were reported in neighborhoods seared by hundreds of blazes.

Nineteen persons have died in racial disorders since King was killed Thursday night, including nine in Chicago and five in Washington. Besides Washington, Chicago was heavily damaged by fires Friday night.

NEGROES were urged by black power advocate Stokely Carmichael to arm themselves with guns and take to the streets, in retaliation for the killing of Dr. Martin Luther King. At news conference in Washington Carmichael said: "We have to retaliate." (AP Wirephoto.)

Two youths died in Detroit, one in Tallahassee. In Minneapolis, police said a Negro killed a white neighbor Thursday night after telling his wife: "My King is dead. I'm going out and get me a honky." In Memphis, where King was murdered, a young Negro man shot by police Thursday night died today.

GUARD BUILDINGS

Paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division—veterans of Vietnam, last summer's Detroit riots and the peace march on the Pentagon last fall—were flown in to help protect the citadels of American government in Washington.

Smoke drifted over the tourist-jammed city from new blazes and still-smouldering fires that gave many buildings the appearance of bombed-out structures.

Police in Washington had at least a dozen reports of looting within 90 minutes of the lifting this morning of a dark-to-dawn curfew imposed by city officials.

In Pittsburgh, roving bands of Negroes smashed windows and looted stores in several sections before police restored order. Police said about 90 arrests were made during the night.

National guard troops and police restored a measure of calm today in Chicago after a night of firebombing, shooting and looting.

UNDER CONTROL

"The situation is under control," said Brig.-Gen. Richard T. Dunn, emergency commander of the Guard.

Chicago was hit by waves of fires, shootings and looting in a predominantly-Negro west side area Friday night and early today. Some 3,000 national guardsmen shuttled from one trouble spot to the next. At least 20 buildings were burned to the ground.

Federal troops, ordered by President Johnson, guarded the White House and Capitol after aiding police and national guardsmen to bring a raging Negro outburst under control . . . Some 350 persons were injured, 2,000 arrested.

Washington, Detroit and Memphis were under curfew.

BACK UP POLICE

National guardsmen also were backing up police in Detroit and the greater Boston area. A unit of 500 guardsmen moved into Pine Bluff, Ark., to keep peace after police and Negroes exchanged sporadic gunfire during the night.

Hunt Widens For Assassin

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — U.S. Attorney-General Ramsey Clark said the manhunt for the killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has spread "several hundred miles from Memphis."

It was almost a desperate bid to find the white assassin of the civil rights leader as hundreds of law enforcement officials pressed the search.

The reward for his arrest grew to $150,000.

Clark appeared pleased with the progress of the investigation. "We've got substantial leads," he said. "We're very hopeful."

Four Killed In Blast, Fire

RICHMOND, Ind. (UPI) — A thunderous explosion followed by fire erupted in downtown Richmond today. The National Guard said at least four persons were killed.

National Guard Capt. Charles D. Myers said there were an undetermined number of injuries over a three to four-block area which was thick with shoppers when the blast came.

The explosion apparently was powered by gun powder in a sporting goods store in the heart of the business district.

LBJ MOVES TO COMBAT VIOLENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, operating from a White House turned into a fortress, has ordered federal troops to protect the capital against violent Negro unrest which has spurred him to schedule an address to Congress Monday night.

Even as he disclosed his actions, roving looters smashed into stores within two blocks of the White House and black clouds of smoke from incendiary fires hung low over the city.

The violence in Washington and other urban centres prompted Johnson to cancel plans for weekend conferences in Honolulu on Vietnam policy and a meeting there with President Chung Hee Park of South Korea.

Instead, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, flew to Washington to confer with Johnson.

A presidential spokesman said Johnson remained at his White House command post beyond midnight Friday night, maintaining close touch with the situation in Washington and in other cities wracked by the turmoil.

MET NEGRO LEADERS

In other moves to deal with the national crisis precipitated by King's slaying Thursday night, Johnson met at the White House with civil rights leaders, proclaimed Sunday a national day of mourning for King and ordered all flags over American ships and property here and abroad to be flown at half staff until the burial of the civil rights leader Tuesday.

Hellyer Places Second

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau grabbed a commanding first-ballot lead today as voting got under way to elect a successor to Prime Minister Pearson.

Here is the first ballot result:

Trudeau	752
Hellyer	330
Winters	293
Martin	277
Turner	277
Greene	169
MacEachen	165
Kierans	103
Henderson	0

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin surprised the convention by immediately bowing out of the contest. He did not pledge support to any other specific candidate.

Eric Kierans also withdrew. Lloyd Henderson was automatically eliminated by the clause removing any candidate receiving less than 50 votes.

In the moments before the second ballot started, MacEachen withdrew leaving five names on the ballot: Trudeau, Hellyer, Winters, Turner, Greene.

A total of 2,390 Liberal delegates voted. Spoiled ballots totalled 24. A simple 50 per cent majority was needed to win.

The first ballot got under way at 10 a.m. but was delayed by computer trouble. Voters who failed to tear off stubs from their ballots confused the machine.

Mr. Kierans in withdrawing freed his delegates to vote for the candidate of their choice. He did not announce who he would support.

While delegates, many reading newspaper stores about racial unrest in the United States, sat through a droning business session in the convention area, a peacenik demonstration was under way outside.

Several hundred young folk from Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto squatted behind the centre and chanted:

"Johnson's finished, Pearson too,

"The next prime minister will be a murderer too."

Police arrested five long-haired college students who tried to storm the doors of the convention centre carrying a Viet Cong flag.

As well, a dozen picketers paraded outside on the street for the Hamilton Building Trades Council. Their placards demanded jobs.

Some of the signs were

THEY CALLED IT SMUT

Early Words Get the Bird

OTTAWA (CP) — Maverick Ralph Cowan threw Pierre Elliott Trudeau workers into a flap today by covering delegate seats at the Liberal leadership convention with a copy of a 1963 article in which Mr. Trudeau referred to "the anti-democratic reflexes of the spineless Liberal herd."

"Did you see the Trudeau people running around picking up the pamphlet I was distributing?" Mr. Cowan snorted indignantly, still passing out copies.

"I asked them what was wrong with it. It was written by Trudeau. They said it was smut."

The article was a translation of one that appeared in the Montreal journal Cite Libre Jan. 3, 1963, titled "Pearson, or the Abdication of the Liberal conscience."

Mr. Cowan, Liberal MP for York-Humber and a voting delegate at the convention, looked at the forests of placards about him just before the voting began and said:

"I think it's the best imitation of an American political convention I have ever seen."

He said he planned to vote for Paul Martin.

"Martin on the third ballot," he predicted.

The same thing was being repeated around the arena in the sections where supporters of each of the 10 candidates were to sit when the voting began.

The lesson apparently was learned Friday, when Trudeau supporters quickly flooded seats with Trudeau placards which popped up like a forest when the justice minister took the stage.

U.S. REPORTS

Viet Peace Bid Moving Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials report arrangements with North Vietnam for preliminary discussions on peace talks are "moving forward" slowly but are still on the track.

The state department officially disclosed Friday night the North Vietnamese have been notified through diplomatic channels that President Johnson has agreed to "establish contact."

The unintended disclosure was forced, officials said, by a report that North Vietnam's deputy foreign minister, Hoang Van Loi, had said in Algiers the United States had not replied to his government's proposal for preliminary discussions.

Johnson announced Sunday a limited bombing halt over North Vietnam and asked for peace talks. Hanoi responded Wednesday morning with a statement it was ready to make contact. Several hours later Johnson announced: "We will establish contact."

That was followed by the official word through diplomatic channels and officials said Friday night they were waiting for President Ho Chi Minh to make the next move.

President Johnson's cancellation Friday of his Hawaii conference with his top Saigon officials did not affect the peace talk prospects in any way, administration officials said.

Pierre Rouses Cheers With a Simple Shrug

Newman

When the seven serious seekers of the Liberal crown began their nomination speeches, there was still some lingering doubt about the outcome of today's voting. But by the time the response of the delegate-audience has been measured, the only remaining question was which ballot would make Trudeau the fifteenth prime minister of Canada.

Except for the frenetic reception to the Trudeau speech, it was a night of few surprises. Each of the contenders did his own thing and watching them, it was fascinating to contemplate the difficulties Lester Pearson must have had keeping together a cabinet of such widely disparate men. For four hours they paraded by in their infinite variety and this is how they looked to me:

Paul Martin starts the evening, looking like an automaton reproduction of himself. An old pro to the end, he betrays no small sign of lack of confidence. His presentation is a mixture of on-stage politics, off-stage bunkum, a blend of political savvy, high-minded inanities, partisan ploys, unctuous compliments. There is a slick old radio rhythm in his speech reminiscent more of music hall than television.

The odd thing about Paul Martin's cliches is that they blow up like bubbles, getting thinner and thinner, then vanish before one knows what, if anything, they really mean. He can mix in the U.S. civil rights with the aspirations of French-Canada and make it all sound uninteresting and uninvolving though not entirely illogical. He keeps stressing his experience and

Seattle Nurse Hurt By Rock Barrage

SEATTLE (AP)—A rash of window breaking and a string of 21 fire alarms in a four-hour period late Friday night and early today kept Seattle police and firemen busy.

There was only one report of injury. Berkeley Cameron, 26, a regional nurse, suffered a broken cheekbone when a group of about 15 to 20 youths hurled rocks at her automobile.

One Negro youth, 17, was taken into custody in a separate incident when police found six youths carrying rifles and ammunition taken moments earlier in a break-in. The other youths escaped.

Fires, which authorities said were set by gasoline bombs, flared, and there were outbursts of rock throwing.

Police said witnesses in most cases did not describe the hoodlums in any detail and that they did not know if the incidents involved any specific groups or organizations.

Most of the fires were quickly controlled, but early today firemen fought a stubborn blaze in a cleaning establishment. Another cleaning shop was damaged by a fire caused by a gasoline bomb thrown through a window. A fire bomb also was thrown at the porch of a home.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A Pacific cold front moving eastward through the province today will give showers to the interior of B.C. until this evening. An extensive ridge of high pressure building off the B.C. coast gave a return to sunny skies today over coastal areas and to the interior on Sunday. The next Pacific disturbance will give rain to the north coast on Sunday however.

Victoria: Mainly sunny Sunday. Little change in temperature. Winds westerly 15 occasionally rising to 25. Low tonight and high Sunday 42 and 53.

Vancouver - Georgia Strait: Sunny with a few cloudy intervals Sunday. Little change in temperature. Winds westerly 15 over exposed areas occasionally reaching 25 in Georgia Strait. Low tonight and high Sunday at Vancouver 38 and 55. Nanaimo 35 and 55.

West Coast: Mainly sunny Sunday. Little change in temperature. Winds westerly 15 occasionally rising to 25 over exposed areas. Low tonight and high Sunday at Tofino 40 and 50.

buildings on the campus of Tennessee A. and I. University. Two students were wounded, neither seriously.

One of the deaths in the capital was that of a 14-year-old boy. The circumstances were uncertain. One report said a policeman's gun went off accidentally as the officer tried to stop several youths looting a store.

A looter was shot and killed by police, a man was found with his throat cut, a man was killed when a wall collapsed and a man died after he was beaten and stabbed early Friday, Washington officials reported, bur one of these was said to have been in a holdup and unrelated.

Two Negro men were killed by snipers in Chicago. Another Negro man was shot and killed by police after officers said the man opened fire on them. A fourth man was found dead in a burned out grocery store. Two others were found shot to death, one in an alley, one behind a looted store.

Another Negro was found dead on the balcony of his home, an eighth Negro was discovered dead in a store and the ninth bled to death from a cut on his leg.

Five policemen and national guardsmen were injured in an exchange of gunfire with snipers near the predominantly-Negro North Carolina A. and T. State University in Greensboro. Troops also were called to Raleigh and Durham.

Windows were smashed in midtown Manhattan as groups of Negro youths moved into the Times Square, but the Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant Negro areas were relatively peaceful after sporadic violence the night before.

Trouble also was reported in Philadelphia, Wichita, Kan., Oakland and Palo Alto, Calif., Denver, Colo., Hartford, Conn., Jefferson City, Mo., Albany, Freeport and Buffalo, N.Y., Toledo, Ohio, South Bend, Ind., Trenton, N.J., Portland, Ore., Kalamazoo, Mich., Pine Bluff, Ark., Atlanta, Ga.

At least 20 buildings burned to the ground in Chicago, more than 150 were arrested and 200 treated at hospitals for injuries.

SUSPECT SHOT

Michigan authorities said an 18-year-old Negro boy, a suspected looter, was accidentally shot to death in Highland Park.

A 19-year-old white youth burned to death in Tallahassee when a store was firebombed.

Philadelphia Mayor James H. J. Tate declared a state of emergency as a precautionary measure. The order closed bars and banned the gathering of 12 or more persons and the carrying of weapons. Trouble also was reported in Pittsburgh, Erie and Lancaster.

Police and Negroes exchanged gunfire in downtown Pine Bluff, Ark., after six firebombs were thrown in the city, police reported. There were no reports of injuries.

directed at Finance Minister Sharp who dropped out of the leadership race early in the week.

Several boys not yet in their teens carried placards demanded U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam and calling upon Canada to "end complicity" in the war.

EQUIPMENT CHECKED

There was a stir of activity within the convention centre throughout the night as technicians and party officials went over the electronic equipment.

Business began with some minor housekeeping and the choice of Senator Richard Stanbury, a Toronto lawyer and community workers, as president of the Liberal Federation of Canada.

Little attention was paid the motions and nominations by delegates who browsed about, read newspapers or joined a constant throng near Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

Mr. Trudeau was the first of 10 candidates to arrive. In his entourage was Robert Stanburh, Liberal MP for York-Scarborough and brother of Senator Stanbury.

Senator David Croll and Manpower Minister Jean Marchand were among those to break through a circle of news cameras to shake hands with the smiling, confident-looking justice minster.

WITHDRAWS

The young Montrealer, a German immigrant who came to Canada 10 years ago, said he had proved his point by becoming a candidate.

He had run to point up the need for legal and political equality for all Canadians, notably those who aren't of English or French descent.

. . . JOHNSON

into downtown Washington late Friday afternoon, Johnson signed an executive order authorizing use of any armed forces necessary to put down the rampage.

Police and Secret Service guards at the White House were augmented by national guard and army troops. Adjacent sidewalks were roped off and blinding floodlights pointing toward the streets were set up inside the iron fence that surrounds the Executive Mansion.

Reporters who cover President Johnson were ordered to attach their White House passes, normally carried in their pockets, to their coats—something without precedent in recent decades.

CONGRESSIONAL ACTION

Johnson will address a joint session of Congress at 9 p.m. EST Monday. He said he wanted to present "suggestions for action—in this hour of national need."

Presidential press secretary George Christian quoted Johnson as telling civil rights leaders: "I need your help. The country needs your voices, now, calling for unity, non-violence and social justice."

Negro leaders declared they were impressed with what they interpreted to be Johnson's determination to deal with the problems underlying the discontent of urban Negroes.

Writney Young, director of the National Urban League, spoke of general frustration and despair, declaring, "We've got to have some tangible, concrete victories."

In a television-radio statement, Johnson declared that "the heart of America is heavy, the spirit of America weeps," over the death of King, who he said "symbolized the freedom and faith of America."

Saanich Centre will be closed Good Friday and Easter Monday.

Curb Backed On Pistols

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a controversy resolved by last-minute absentee ballots, the senate judiciary committee Friday approved legislation to restrict the sale of handguns.

Long a graveyard for gun control legislation, the committee accepted a proposal by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) to limit both mail-order and over-the-counter sales of pistols and other concealable weapons.

The vote was 10-6. It supplanted a 6-6 tie at a committee meeting Thursday night that would have squelched the move.

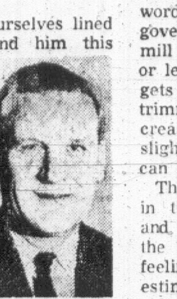
The gun control measure falls short of the sweeping restrictions sought by President Johnson which would also cover rifles and shotguns.

INSIDE CITY HALL

'What Can WE Do' Attitude Has Aldermen Ho Humming

By JIM HUME

Times City Hall Reporter



Hume

It isn't often we agree with Ald. Robert Baird in this corner.

But we find ourselves lined up solidly behind him this weekend as he demands some tough thinking from city council as budget talks go into the final stretch.

With less than $500,000 trimmed from the fattest ever budget to date, it is obvious that if council is to come close to holding the line drastic action is required.

Whether Ald. Baird is right in his contention that the city's personnel department is overstaffed remains to be seen. But he is certainly right when he suggests that this year his fellow aldermen have shown an extremely apathetic approach to the budget in general.

So sad was the approach last week that even the press corps became convinced that it could serve better elsewhere and walked out of one of the committee sessions.

In spite of the prevailing "ho hum" attitude the inside word is that if the provincial government holds the school mill rate down to a two-mill or less increase—and the city gets down to cases with its trimming knife—any tax increase will be extremely slight or even that the level can be held.

The biggest unknown factor in this year's budget talks, and possibly contributing to the "what can we do?" feeling, is the fact that wage estimates for inside and outside workers remain an enigma.

All the city treasurer could do was list last year's wage figures and point out, time and again, that with negotiations still under way between the city and the union involved, the final figure would have to remain a mystery.

But, again say the insiders, a minimum increase of 5 per cent can be expected. The total wage bill for the city runs around $2 million a year.

One of the big decisions to be made by council during the next few weeks is where grants cease to become a public service.

That some grants to come under the public service heading there is no doubt, but that many do not is equally certain.

And here we disagree with Ald. Baird.

He is thinking of advocating the elimination of all grants for this year at least. And that we feel, especially when remembering the symphony, the art gallery, theatre and other arts, is wielding a double-bitted axe rather than a scalpel.

During the next few days Ald. Baird will, we are sure, temper his thinking and come through with a compromise but acceptable recommendation.

Before leaving the budget topic let it be said that the proposals for a change in handling budget talks in future years were refreshing to hear.

Although well hidden in the statements of the mayor, the city manager and the treasurer, there is little doubt that budget padding by some department heads is the primary target.

The system, at present, is basically simple. You bang into the estimates everything you can think of and then skilfully guide the sometimes innocent and often unprepared aldermen to the items not really needed.

Happily the aldermen slash and equally happily they move on to approve the fat carefully inserted in the list immediately after the padding.

Under the proposed new system the estimates will be drawn up by a committee comprised of the city manager, the treasurer, the department head and the council committee chairman.

Undoubtedly some fat will still squeeze through, but it will be in far less quantity than it is at present because the department head will have to justify each item going on the final list before it goes on.

And the committee chairman will have to justify to fellow council members why a particular item should be on the list at all.

That in itself will mean that each council member will be well acquainted with his department's budget before it gets to council. It is sad, but unfortunately true, that such is not the case now.

. . . PETER NEWMAN

that he offers the best of everything.

He delivers a "do not reject this man" speech about himself, while his aides circulate a press release claiming a final count for him of 525 first-ballot delegates. But politics is a cruel game and the party system can be ruthless. Martin's time is over. He is a victim of its passage and his only choice is how much grace he can muster for his final exit.

Not Speaking

Robert Winters follows Martin. He is handsome, self-confident, a little touch of the Harvard Common in his voice. He pays tribute to Pearson (though the two men have hardly spoken for a year) as though the departing prime minister should feel himself honored by the gesture.

He makes a few remarks in pre-berlitz French. The total effect is that of a board chairman giving his annual report — a rundown of Canada's assets and liabilities — our fisheries, forests and wheat field. ("Already we have the second highest living standard in the world. But we can be first.")

He comes across as a cartoon capitalist. He actually says, "We can win the war on poverty by making the poor richer," then proposes to do so by "keeping the economy on an even keel." He ends with the ringing declaration that only mediocrity is satisfied with itself. Mr. Winters is the most satisfied man in the hall.

The mood changes abruptly as Joe Greene ambles up to the stand, extemporaneously makes a few remarks in flawless French, then proceeds to pour out every ounce of commitment that he can ring from himself. His is the best speech of the evening. His language is reminiscent of a waterfall with sunlight coming through it—beautiful but more froth than substance. His audience loves his digs at the NDP ("they have their heads in the clouds and their feet in the 19th century.") and the Tories ("the question is not where the leader is from, but where their Edgar Bergen is from . . .")

Decent Man

He does that old meetin' hall thing of asking his audience rhetorical questions ("do any of you agree with that?") and gets a good response. This is a decent man. The Alvin Hamilton of the Liberal party. He gets a tremendous ovation and wipes his brow, country-style, hugs his kids and goes back to his seat.

The Hellyer machine moves in. The candidate's cheering section is led by the unlikeliest duo in Canadian politics: Judy LaMarsh in a boater and knee-high boots directly in front of 90-year-old Senator Roebuck in a wing collar. The most impressive thing about Hellyer is his size. He looks like some mammoth mastiff, standing in wait to hurl himself at the nation's problems. If the public could be satisfied with stability and decisiveness, this would be their man. His speech reads well but he delivers it with an United Church-steward-reading-the-collection-plate-receipts tone. His lovely wife is a great asset.

Hot, Nervous

Allan MacEachen follows, looking hot and nervous. He is a teacher and a good one. Here is the authentic voice of the party's left wing ("I don't want the Liberals to become a second Conservative party: that's the way to oblivion.") He pleads for "A compassionate society" and outlines the benefits of the guaranteed annual income. He is against the party being managerial and makes a few bad jokes about the Scots and money. His is the most strongly felt speech and easily the most boring.

Then it's Eric Kierans' turn. His cheerleaders are pretty and lively, his band accurately reflects his campaign spirit. They are a group of engineering students from Queen's, playing the Irish fighting song, the music is loud, the beat steady and they mean what they're playing. Kierans comes on as he is: an intelligent, impassioned and good man. He asks the delegates to vote with their conscience, a request that would give him their majority and then he tells exactly where he stands on all the seminal issues. He points out that we live in a brutal, mechanistic, materialistic age. He praises gentleness and says "we must bend all our policies to preserve the gentleness that is in our society." He is one of those rare Canadian politicians who is a convincing and convinced nationalist without being anti-American. He promises courage. It is a quality that he has to spare and the audience is a little sheepish in its recognition of it.

Sea of Banners

Now the siege of photographers and television cameramen ARQX lifts briefly to allow Pierre Elliott Trudeau an entrance. The audience is a sea of Trudeau banners, but its cheers have a strange sound. They are not the ordinary applause for a politician, but a long "OOOh", like the salute to a daring acrobat in a circus tent. Trudeau shrugs and the place breaks up.

He talks about strife in the world, about Canada's internal divisions, about our share of the eternal burden.

"As Liberals," he says, "we rely on that most unlikely bulwark against chaos — you and me, the individual citizen, the young and the old, the famous and the unknown, the arctic nomad and the suburbanite." He believes in the triumph of reason over passion in politics.

"Tell it the way it is!" Somebody in the audience yells at him. And he does: "We are no longer satisfied with vague generalizations or adroit evasions. Those who resort to them betray a lack of confidence in democracy and in the judgment of the people."

Clear a Path

His voice is beautiful, an instrument. This is the sober, not the witty, Pierre, softly blowing his own horn. At the end of his speech, he stands there in his rounded Edwardian collar, a daffodil in his buttonhole, and the police have to clear a path for his exit.

John Turner's last position in the program sentences him to an anti-climax. "I am restless for Canada," he says and he means it. The elements are all there. Every hair and argument in its proper place. But the performance doesn't quite come off for reasons that are hard to fathom. You feel Turner has stage directions noted on the margins of his speech, that he is fighting more from duty than desire as his upbringing commands. His goal isn't power but action, the doing of things. His thoughts tend to disenchant themselves and acquire distance. Suddenly it becomes clear what's wrong. Turner is a strong man. But he's just too young. This time.

The evening ends and the doubts have been removed. Pierre Trudeau now requires only the formality of the vote to complete the Liberal succession.

'Black Ghettos Must Go'

Bunche was interviewed in his office as he prepared to attend King's funeral as a representative of UN Secretary-General U Thant, who is in Europe. Bunche is undersecretary-general for special political affairs and the highest ranking American in the UN secretariat.

Bunche and King were old friends and the two Negroes both won the Nobel Peace Prizes—Bunche in 1950 for negotiating Arab-Israeli armistice agreements, King in 1964 for promoting non-violent protest as a way to win civil rights for Negroes.

DR. BUNCHE
. . . face up to facts

Bunche said "those who scorn non-violence will seek to exploit the fact . . . that the leading exponent of non-violence has been taken away by a brutal act of violence, and they can make very much of this."

"I feel there's only one way to counteract this—the only way I can think of," he went on, "and that is for the society, all of those who believe in the ideals of the society, to face up to the very tough fact that palliatives will just not do with regard to this question.

"The crucial question today is whether the citizens and the power structure can muster the will really to tackle the problem by hitting straight at the worst, the most vicious manifestation of American racism in the country today, and that is the black ghetto.

"The ghetto now is where the majority of black citizens live. . . . The black citizen is confined there because he is really not wanted on the outside.'

Last Rites At Small Negro Church

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. will return for the last time Monday to the small Negro church where he and his father preached the doctrines of human dignity and non-violence.

King's wife asked that his funeral be held at the Ebenezer Baptist Church, which had been a touchstone for her husband throughout his turbulent career.

That career was ended in Memphis, Tenn., Thursday by an assassin's bullet.

Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. was pastor of Ebenezer when the slain Negro leader was born. It was in this church that the younger King grew up and it was where he returned as co-pastor with his father after his role as a civil rights leader brought him international fame.

King's body will lie in state at Spelman College for 48 hours beginning at 4 p.m. today. The body will be taken to the church Monday and the funeral will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday.

DISCIPLE OF NON-VIOLENCE

King's 'Shadow' in Command

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Always in the shadow at the side of his leader now fallen, Rev. Ralph David Abernathy had to step Friday into the place of the man he presented to countless audiences as "the Moses of the 20th century."

As Moses had an Aaron, so Martin Luther King Jr. had a Ralph Abernathy to lean on from the beginning of his human rights crusade.

Abernathy went to jail with King 17 times, the last time in Birmingham, Ala., last year for an old contempt of court conviction. "We always prayed together in jail," Abernathy recalled.

REV. ABERNATHY

After King's assassination, Abernathy as vice-president-at-large assumed the duties of president of Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which he and King founded in 1957.

"I never had any desire to lead the movement," Abernathy, 42, said in an interview three years ago. He said King was the symbol and the leader. "I always wanted to stand with him and not ahead of him."

It was usually up to Abernathy to warm up an audience for King's oratory.

"We needed a philosophy, a philosopher and a theory to undergird and sustain the movement," Aberhathy once said. "We needed also a practical and down-to-earth message. Consequently in every mass meeting, both of us spoke. I never sought to duplicate Dr. King."

Abernathy's church was one of four in Montgomery that were hit by bombs in 1956. He was pastor of the Negro First Baptist Church in Montgomery for 10 years after attending Alabama State College where he taught sociology. He moved to Atlanta in 1961 to become pastor of West Hunter Street Baptist, near the complex of predominantly-Negro colleges. He has a wife and three children. He was born in rural Linden, Ala.

A stolid disciple of non-violence, Abernathy said after king was slain: "While he lived, he taught us we should not let violence turn us around."

The Truth Was Bad Enough: Rumors Were Something Else

By The Associated Press

Racial violence in several big U.S. cities brought disorder, destruction and death Friday, but the wild rumors which circulated carried tales which far exceeded the facts.

New York, Chicago and Washington were particularly plagued with rumors that increased fears, added to unrest and kept officials busy tracking down the untrue reports.

Chicago's commission of human relations rumor centre received calls at a breakneck pace inquiring about untrue reports of wholesale looting in the Loop, fires burning out of control on the West Side and widespread rioting on the South Side.

"They call out of fear," said a spokesman for the agency which was established last summer to dispel rumors. "Some of them think they are reporting facts. They tell us matter-of-factly about the riots on State Street." There were none.

The false reports in Washington included stories of burning and looting moving into the Maryland and Virginia suburbs and of army tanks being moved into the city.

The Urban League set up several telephone lines for residents to call and check on the rumors. Television and radio announcers told listeners to call the numbers.

The danger of circulating unfounded rumors was noted in the report of the president's commission on civil disorders which said of the 1967 riots:

"Rumors significantly aggravated tension and disorder in more than 65 per cent of the disorders studies by the commission. Sometimes, as in Tampa and New Haven, rumor served as the spark which turned an incident into a civil disorder.

"Elsewhere, notably in Detroit and Newark, even where they were not precipitating or motivating factors, inflaming rumors made the job of police and community leaders far more difficult."

In New York some false reports proved so persistent that businesses permitted employees, particularly women, to leave for home early in the afternoon.

One untrue story had it that a horde of Negroes had invaded the Flatbush section of Brooklyn and was stabbing white persons. Another false story said, "All hell is breaking loose in Jersey City and they are bombing buses."

Pride, Happiness Peaks End in Valley of Tears

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. was planning a singing career when she met a young Baptist minister. Coretta Scott, a slender, attractive brunette with long hair, married her minister and became involved in civil rights instead.

Her marriage to Dr. King took her to peaks of pride and happiness—and now the valley of tears.

"I wish we could remain on this mountain top forever," she said when her husband won the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize.

But there were times of despair, and Thursday her husband, devoted to non-violence, was slain in Memphis by an assassin's bullet.

Mrs. King long has lived with the threat of death. And thus far she has remained composed.

She has seen her husband jailed, stabbed, threatened and has had her home rocked by a bomb blast.

Since her childhood days in Perry County, Ala., where she was born, Mrs. King said she was determined to do something worthwhile in the fight for civil rights.

Since their marriage, Mrs. King has sung at concerts for numerous civil rights organizations and has accompanied her husband on many of his trips in behalf of civil rights.

"With four children, this isn't always easy to do," she has said. The children are Yolanda, 12, Martin Luther King III, 11, Dexter Scott, 7, and Bernice, 5.

The King home in a lower-income Negro neighborhood is filled with mementos from admirers.

There also is a bust of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and an abstract oil painting titled Integration, painted and given them by a great-great-granddaughter of John Brown, the 19th century abolitionist.

Sharing the University Grant

SURVEYS OF THIS YEAR'S high school graduating classes provide clear evidence that the enrolment at the University of Victoria will be increased by at least 700 students next September. This is ample proof of the position the university has earned in higher education and a highly gratifying expression of confidence in it.

At the same time, the foreseeable rise in student population provides grounds for apprehension. Such an increase, added to the 4,000 attending this year will make demands on the university for which financing is not immediately in sight.

The University of Victoria, like Simon Fraser, is a developing university. Because it must meet increasing and diversified needs for a growing student body it must look for appropriate consideration in the division of the total grant provided by the provincial government to be shared among the two institutions and the University of British Columbia.

The parallel situation existing between Simon Fraser and the University of Victoria calls for equivalent treatment for each. Yet last year, the grants committee, charged with distribution, made an allotment of $2,155 per student to Simon Fraser and only $1,542 to the University of Victoria. The difference—$613 per student—is in itself a cause for some dismay and for even greater alarm when note is taken of the preceding year's spread—$501.

A continuation of this pattern, with the gap growing progressively wider, would seriously injure the University of Victoria.

This, no doubt, will be a matter for study by the special committee the minister of education says he will appoint to review division of the grants, with, it is hoped, establishment of a scientific and equitable formula.

One exists in Alberta and Ontario. There a point system is generally used, the share of the provincial grant being determined by the point value given per student on the basis of his actual cost to the university. An undergraduate in arts, for instance, might be given a value of one point, a science student slightly more, and a graduate student higher points still. By totalling the points, each university can determine its legitimate share of the total available provincial grant.

The system can eliminate inequalities in treatment to different universities of comparable character and remove fears of discrimination. Its principle should be applied to the distribution of this year's funds.

Level-Headed Approach

THE LEGISLATURE'S SPECIAL committee on drugs has come up with some of the most level-headed suggestions yet voiced by an official body in its recommendation on the handling of marijuana possession charges, although it should have gone further than it did in some respects. Certainly the basic premise used by the committee in its approach to the problem—that it is unwise "to isolate and focus attention on one specific drug"—is admirable.

The committee's recommendation that immediate action be taken to allow crown prosecutors to suspend charges before conviction in cases where evidence shows a marijuana user was a first offender and of otherwise good repute is a start toward a realistic appraisal of the harsh penalties which have been handed out in recent court cases. It should have been taken much further, however, to recommend a review of all cases in which a conviction was obtained in order to provide opportunity for redress of what would now appear to the committee to have been injustices. In a brief span of two to three years during which marijuana use has been considered a serious problem, penalties for first offenders have ranged from initial suspended sentences on up to terms of several years in jail.

The government could usefully implement the committee's suggestion that a fund be set up for research into the causes of the drug trend among youth and for a comprehensive educational program to combat the spreading use of drugs. It should also have asked that the province add its voice to the growing number of authorities who have questioned the whole approach to control of marijuana, and urge that the federal government undertake immediate and thorough scientific research to determine whether it should be included under the Narcotic Drugs Act. It is unlikely that any educational program to combat marijuana use will be successful unless this question is settled. Few people will disagree with the committee's feeling that marijuana is "harmful" but so, when they are abused, are a number of other substances whose use is not proscribed by law.

Arthur Ford

PRIME MINISTER PEARSON'S brief tribute—"Canada has lost one of its most distinguished citizens"—provides some measure of the esteem in which the late Arthur R. Ford was held within and outside newspaper ranks.

During an association which spanned two generations, the former editor of The London Free Press had given stature to a paper which earned respect in an Ontario field served by large metropolitan dailies. The Free Press carried the Arthur Ford stamp—an imprint of broad humanism and high professional competence.

His passing this week, at 87, ends a life of unquestioned usefulness to Canada and to the people he served beyond the community in which Arthur Ford was The London Free Press and the London Free Press was Arthur Ford.

Repudiating 'the Weed'

THE DIRECTOR OF THE National Clearing House for Smoking and Health reported recently that there are today 1.5 million fewer cigarette smokers of all ages in the United States than there were a year ago.

In case anyone starts researching the number of smoking Americans who have gone to Vietnam and other foreign lands in the last 12 months, the Clearing House statement adds that the drop in smoking is greatest among teenagers. Whereas 35 per cent of the 17-year-olds smoked 10 years ago, only 25 per cent are smoking today.

The report is cheered as an encouraging development in better health in the United States. Elsewhere there may be some qualifications. What are the reformed smokers doing now? Is this a net gain? Or is there a counter-balance in problems of overweight?

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

For a leisurely ramble where you can see many spring flowers in bloom, go around the trails at the Francis-Freeman King Park.

Among the latest to come into flower are the toothwort, with its four petals that are a delicate pink or perhaps white, and the shy little grove lover that grows in the partly shady forest.

Look on the forest floor for the little star-shaped petals of the sandwort. It will be amongst the leaves of the sanical. See its long, tapered leaf.

In the deep shade the trilliums seem to thrive, while in the marshes the skunk cabbage is now at its very best, its golden sheath standing out against the otherwise green and brown background. Stop and examine this wonderful plant. See the tiny flowers on the spike and see the little beetle that lives in the sheath, running up and down the spike. It helps to pollinate the flowers. Perhaps this is the only place where the insect lives.

While along the marsh edges, see how the different willows are in various stages of putting forth their leaves.

As you wander along, stop and look at the flowers on the Douglas fir. There is an abundance of the male flowers that are a reddish-yellow and soon will be casting their pollen. Look at the tips of the twigs and see the little scarlet, female flower that looks like a small bottle (Last year there were no flowers.)

Go where the mossy banks are and you will find some of the false lady lippers (Calypso) in bloom.

LEAVE HIM TO HISTORY

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Pearson—'The Most Contemporary and Most Canadian'

AS an ordinary human being Lester B. Pearson may live a long time. Every Canadian will hope so. As a figure of politics, after this week's Liberal catharsis at Ottawa, he will belong to the history books. The historians, not his contemporaries, will make the final judgment on him.

Hutchison

We cannot foresee that judgment. We cannot even assume that it will be wiser than our own. Sir Robert Menzies, the great Australian statesman, doubtless is right in his memoirs when he says that historians often make bad judgments which are accepted, long afterwards, because the true evidence is lost by then, the vital witnesses dead.

In any case, I venture to think that Mr. Pearson will appear more interesting to the historians, and more important, than he appears to us. Here I am not considering his private character as a loveable, almost irresistible person, but only his public character (a very different thing) and his official record.

Macchiavelli and Galahad

So judged, Mr. Pearson seems to fit quite neatly John W. Dafoe's assessment of a more illustrious prime minister. As Dafoe wrote, in 1922, Laurier would rank higher with historians than he ranked with his biographer "and yet not quite so high: an abler man but one not so preternaturally good; a man who had affinities with Macchiavelli as well as with Sir Galahad." The same can be safely said of Mr. Pearson, the public man.

Some old-time Liberals will resent, almost as sacrilege, the mention of these two prime ministers together, Laurier having become a god while Mr. Pearson still walks the earth as a familiar mortal, with all his blunders and failures writ large. Nevertheless, successful as a prime minister or not, he has been elevated to a high place in history by the sudden updraft of events, by the accidents of his time.

It was a time of perpetual crisis and so it will continue to be for generations or centuries ahead. And the significant fact of Mr. Pearson's career is that he sensed, better than his colleagues and rivals, that the earlier Canada of our dreams and myths was gone forever.

Of course he did not know how to grapple with the new society, or the new anarchy, surging up around him like some wild, exotic jungle growth. He could never win a majority in Parliament. He failed (like all except five of our prime ministers) to master the nation. Yet by his instinct and hunch he was perhaps the first of our leading politicians to recognize the central movement of his time for what it was — a revolution of a sort never seen before in the world, with Canada inevitably swept along in its train.

He also saw, with a clarity denied to most politicians, that in Canada the world revolution had produced a unique native by-product which we call the problem of Quebec. George V. Ferguson, a competent scholar, may well be correct in arguing recently that Canada would have been disrupted, some five years ago, if Mr. Pearson had not arrived on the scene to ease the racial tension.

'Elevated by the updraft of events'

often said, that he did not do in office what he promised in opposition. On the contrary, he carried out his election

Certainly he could not settle the Quebec problem. He could only reveal it to the whole nation, for the first time, in its full dimensions, but that achievement alone made his career worthwhile, even if he had done nothing else. He could not settle any other basic problem, either, but this was equally true of every political leader in a world where every solution today creates a new problem tomorrow and no policy settles anything permanently.

In seeking even the temporary solutions within his grasp Mr. Pearson overstrained the nation's physical resources for the time being, and perhaps its intellectual resources as well. It is nonsense to say, however, as is promises more completely than any predecessor. On that the record speaks for itself.

The voters who elected him have no right to complain now that they were not told what he intended in advance. But they have the right to complain that he tried to do everything too fast, according to plan, and ended by pushing the nation's finances toward the brink of disaster, from which he hurriedly retreated in the last few months. As an economist and a financier he was a lamentable failure, mainly because economics and finance, like partisan politics, bored him and he trusted the experts too much.

It is also nonsense to suppose that the financial and social pause ordered in his latest budget is a full stop. It is a pause only while we wait (if we have the sense to wait) for our wealth to catch up with our demands upon it.

Many older Canadians would like to think that things are now returning to normal, that the revolution has blown itself out at last, but this is thinking of the most wishful sort. The deep, unmeasured and incomprehensible currents of our time move on, spilling across every national border, carrying all humanity to unknown ends.

Knew the Currents

Mr. Pearson is important in history because he knew that the currents were flowing, that Canada would not escape them, and that all nations must learn to ride them or be engulfed. Of course he did not know how to ride them. Nor does any living statesman. All his hopeful rhetoric and talk of pie in the sky were artificial and unnatural to him. All his partisan manoeuvres were usually awkward because he detested and shrank from them. Frequently his judgments of individual men were wrong, but his judgment of events in the round was intuitive, instantaneous and generally sound. And all his boyish grins, his winks and corny wisecracks could not hide from his intimates the specter always haunting him.

He knew, though no political leader could say so in public, that mankind might not learn to ride the currents and could drown. Now, in the popular cliche, it is said that Canada needs a "contemporary" man as its leader and assuredly it does. But of all Canadian politicians, despite his age, Mr. Pearson has been the most contemporary and the most Canadian. So, I believe, history will rank him when all his practical achievements and failures are forgotten. He will not live to see but has no reason to fear the verdict.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

A Highly Favorable Climate for Talks

AT very long last, an almost universal eagerness for peace began to make itself felt in Washington and Hanoi this past week. As with Shakespeare's "whining schoolboy," the two capitals crept like snails unwillingly toward the peace table. President Johnson's announcement of a partial bombing halt was so ambiguous, and led to such sharp disillusionment 48 hours later when the affected area seemed to shrink, that some cynics decided the purpose had been to protect against the danger of a favorable response.

Frye

Then, when the world had just about made up its mind to live with another shattered dream, the North Vietnamese did respond. They offered to sit down and discuss a comprehensive cessation.

In normal bargaining language, this would mean that the Reds, having received a limited bombing halt gratis, were prepared to pay a price for its extension.

Whether this was, in fact, what the North Vietnamese meant remained to be seen. Their formal public position had always been, and remained, that a complete bombing halt was not a saleable commodity; that it must be delivered free of charge, as a precondition for substantive negotiations of any kind.

Now they at least were offering to sit down for preliminary talks without receiving the full bill of goods in advance. What they would say across the table had yet to emerge.

If Hanoi is, in fact, willing to pay a reasonable price for extension of the bombing cessation, then reciprocal military de-escalation may actually become possible. Political negotiation might be conceivable thereafter.

Long Way Down Road

This is, however, looking a long way down the road. In the meantime, what is happening is that Hanoi is nailing down the bombing cessation in the area where it now applies.

No matter how prolonged and frustrating the preliminary talks might be, it would be extremely difficult for the United States to resume raiding the Hanoi-Haiphong area while they were in progress.

The net effect could be prolonged restraint on American airmen without any compensating political or military gain—exactly kthe ind of thing Washington has always feared.

If so, however, at least the Vietnamese "panhandle" south of the 20th parallel will still be in the ball game.

And there are some rational reasons for believing that the North will wish to negotiate in better faith than this would imply.

Hanoi's forces are stronger, relatively, today than they are likely to be again in the foreseeable future.

The kind of settlement North Vietnam could achieve at this stage, therefore, is as good as Hanoi can realistically hope to force on the battlefield.

Moreover President Johnson, from Hanoi's point of view, is now a good negotiating adversary. He is as "hungry" for a settlement as any American president could reasonably be expected to be.

Peace in Vietnam could restore his popularity and make possible what otherwise will be very remote: a draft and re-election. Johnson thus can be presumed to have personal as well as official reasons for wanting agreement.

If he intends, even in case of peace, to retire from office, the president could bow out in far more agreeable circumstances than would otherwise have been possible, and again he would have an impelling motive for seeking settlement.

Thus North Vietnam has many reasons for believing that the present is a good time for pursuing its goals in the political arena.

For inverse reasons, many in Washington have been reluctant to become involved in a negotiation at this stage. But the force of opinion at home has driven them to make the effort.

The strongest hesitancy of all is to be found in Saigon. Developments of the past week have caused something close to consternation there.

Saigon Hesitancy

Since any foreseeable settlement terms would involve a sharing of political power with the National Liberation Front, this attitude is understandable. Some Saigon officials have come close to threatening a unilateral continuation of the war, even if the United States negotiates a peace.

Saigon, however, must also give some weight to a public opinion which, as in the United States, has virtually demanded a serious effort at ending the bloodshed. Saigon's ability to sabotage a settlement is not unlimited.

There is, therefore, a new hope abroad. An observer can only pray it will not be cruelly dashed.

If it is, the consequences for everyone, including North Vietnam, could be very severe — and that fact, too, mitigates in favor of agreement.

One of An Honored Company

By LOUIS CASSELS

(Mr. Cassels is a senior editor of United Press International who has covered civil rights events for a number of years.)

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—In the days and years ahead Martin Luther King Jr. will be numbered among that small but honored company of men who have changed the course of history by sheer force of spirit.

That this apostle of non-violence should die by violence seems the supreme irony.

Yet, in that flicker of time before death came, Dr. King could not have been surprised when the assassin's bullet struck him. He had lived for years in daily—even hourly—expectation of just such a fate.

The two men he most admired—India's Mahatma Gandhi and Jesus of Nazareth—also taught non-violence. Both of them were slain by hate-filled men.

A reporter once asked Dr. King whether he did not fear for his own safety when he walked, unarmed and unprotected, through the hostile streets of Selma, Birmingham, Montgomery, Chicago and scores of other cities and towns where he led civil rights demonstrations.

"No," he replied. "I have learned not to think about what the personal consequences might be. I believe with all my heart that God has called me to lead my people in their struggle in this hour. And that is what I must do."

He never doubted that his cause was just and that in the end it would prevail. It was this deep inner certainty that gave him an almost incredible serenity in the midst of danger and tumult.

Such fear as he knew was not for himself but for his country, which he loved. Many times in recent months he expressed concern that time was running out for completion of a peaceful revolution that would give black people a fair share in American life. Last summer's riots caused him deep personal anguish.

It was this sense of urgency, this anguish, that impelled him to plan his "Poor People's Crusade" in Washington this spring as a means of dramatizing before the eyes of Congress and the President the need for massive government programs to relieve the poverty and misery of urban and rural ghettos.

DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING JR.

Martin Luther King surely was not ready to die — he had so much work still to do. But if he did not seek martyrdom, neither did he run from it.

"If physical death is the price that a man must pay to free his children and his white brethren from a permanent death of the spirit," he once said, "then nothing could be more redemptive."

The time may come when white Americans will mourn his death as ardently as any of his Negro followers.

Let's Get Back to the People

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

I sat with a group of men the other day who were talking about pulling down the churches.

Needham

Atheists? Not at all. They were priests-in-training who believe (as I do) that the Christian faith has become — to use a suitably horrid word — over-institutionalized. There's too much emphasis on buildings, money, power, authority, outward forms and symbols — not enough on people.

I mentioned to the student-priests a letter I got last year from a girl who attends high school at Bradford. She thought the churches should be abolished, with the minister talking to people in his home, or in their homes, as the case might be. Or, I would add, in parks, bars, coffee shops, factories, offices, anywhere. They agreed, and told me of coffee houses they had set up themselves.

These student-priests want Christianity to flourish. So do I. I've little use for what I call Paulianity; I've little use for what some 2,000 years of institutionalization have done to the teachings of Christ.

Make Sense

But those teachings, as spelled out in the Four Gospels, make sense to me. What Christ taught was love and respect and mercy for other people — charity toward them, if one may use that much-abused word in its original sense.

Who can argue with such a doctrine? We're told that young people today are apathetic toward Christianity; I've met many who speak bitterly of it. Yet their own basic concepts — the importance of love, the importance of sharing and helping, the importance of people — are those which Christ Himself set forward.

As the churches get away from money and power, as they get back to people, I would think they get back to Christianity. They also get back to a younger generation who from what I've seen of them are rather desperately looking for solid values, standards, ideals.

If isn't simply the Christian church. Every institution tends at best to forget, at worst to destroy, the very thing for which it was established.

Vast Network

Look at public education. It's become a vast bureaucratic institution, a vast network of bureaucratic institutions, in which people don't count, least of all the students and teachers. But if education is about anything, it's surely about students and teachers; it's only about students and teachers.

John W. Gardner is a distinguished American who resigned a few weeks ago as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in President Johnson's Administration. He said afterwards that having dealt at close quarters over many years with many institutions — colleges, universities, companies, foundations, military and civilian agencies — he'd become dubious about the value of great organizations.

"Even excellent institutions run by excellent human beings are inherently sluggish — not hungry for innovation, not quick to respond to human need, not eager to reshape themselves to meet the challenge of the times."

"How," Mr. Gardner asks, "can we make sluggish institutions more responsive to human need and to the requirements of change?" I don't think we can. All we can do with the huge, sluggish institution is to pull it down; or walk away from it, and let it perish of its own accord. (As many a teacher and minister has walked away from the school and the church.)

What we can do in this matter of human need is to get back to people. We can do it as individuals, and as small groups of individuals.

The Israeli kibbutz has something to tell us about this; so have Indian tribes; so have the student co-ops in university cities all across Canada.

We need manageable clusters of people (both sexes, all ages, all incomes, all occupations) who care about each other, who project that caring outward into society, who try at least to shine with the light of peace and gentleness and compassion. And doesn't that take us all the way back to the Four Gospels?

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

It's been quite a week.

Thursday Negro leader Martin Luther King was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn., touching off racial violence in cities across the U.S. Sixteen persons were killed and damage from arson and looting soared into millions of dollars.

Last weekend President Johnson surprised practically everyone by declaring he does not intend to seek another term in office;

And, at long last, the first substantial breakthrough was achieved toward peace in Vietnam.

The great domestic issue in the U.S. during election year is the civil rights, and the killing of Martin Luther King could have great ramificatoins.

An advocate of non-violence who made great achievements in the early years of the present civil rights drive, King's position had become difficult in the new period of Negro militancy.

He attempted to lead a peaceful march in Memphis last week in support of striking Negro garbage workers, but the demonstration was taken over by black radicals who touched off rioting and looting.

When he returned to Memphis this week he was gunned down at his motel as he prepared to lead another march.

The Vietnam developments stem from Johnson's dramatic television address Sunday night in which he coupled his withdrawal from the presidential campaign with an announcement that the U.S. intended to curtail bombing raids on North Vietnam as a peace gesture.

Johnson indicated that bombing would continue only in the area immediately north of the demilitarized zone where North Vietnamese troops and supplies move into South Vietnam.

However stepped-up raids the next day revealed that the U.S. intended to keep bombing the entire "panhandle" of North Vietnam up to the 20th parallel, which is more than 200 miles north of the demilitarized zone and only 30 or 40 miles from Hanoi and Haiphong.

The North Vietnamese reiterated their demand for an unconditional end to all the bombing and other "war acts" by the U.S. but said they would make contact with U.S. representatives to open discussions.

It is expected these talks will begin soon, possibly next week. The most likely site is Moscow, although Paris and Geneva have both been mentioned.

Despite the jubilation that greeted this news, there was caution that the road to a final peace settlement would be neither short nor easy.

It was recalled that the Korean war continued for two years after peace talks were started and some of the most savage fighting occurred during this period.

Progress will depend on the willingness of each side to give ground. In an election year, even though he is not personally a candidate, Johnson may find it difficult to make concessions.

Divisions within the U.S. administration appeared almost immediately. Secretary of State Dean Rusk was attending a SEATO meeting in New Zealand during the week and let it be known he was opposed to participation of the Viet Cong in any South Vietnam coalition government, which is contrary to the positions of both Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Senator Robert Kennedy, the leading Democratic presidential candidate.

In addition, no one expects the South Vietnamese government of President Thieu to make it easy for the U.S. in peace negotiations.

Johnson's reasons for withdrawing from the political race after only one elected term in office will be debated for years to come.

He said he wanted to devote all his time and energy to working toward a Vietnam peace, and hoped that his action would help unite a divided U.S.

Some suggested Johnson by his gesture was hoping to generate a draft movement before the Democratic convention in August. Certainly if the current peace negotiations make any progress in the next few months there may be pressure on him to run again, even though he said his decision was "irrevocable."

Others pointed out that Johnson's popularity has been slipping steadily in recent months and he faced the prospect of defeat in the November election, if not earlier at the convention.

In any case, the presidential race is now wide open. Richard Nixon appears to have the nomination sewed up for the Republicans but the Democratic nominee is anyone's guess.

A Quiet Invitation To Stand and Stare

By ART STOTT

My friend Dorothy Hanson has a green thumb, a bad back and a devotion to gardening, the worship of which yields torn ligaments just when the back is getting better. Because of her interests and in spite of her transient discomfort, she labors with that quiet army which does its best to preserve the natural loveliness of our countryside. She is a member of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary and that organization, with several others, is sponsoring the observance of Wild Life Week here, starting tomorrow.

Stott

The week honors the memory of Jack Miner, whose birthday falls on April 10. Miner carried the banner of conservation through a life devoted to the protecting creatures of the woods and fields, particularly migratory birds.

A world, with honest sentiment, has paid tribute to this pioneer. But we who make up part of that world seldom take time to count the blessings we share in the number of people who carry on his ideals, expand them and, by their efforts, save for us and for our children's children something of the grandeur, grace and charm of a land once unsullied by the things man does to his environment.

Unless they are roused to a fighting defence of a part of the countryside, these are people who seldom attract publicity. They would appreciate it if some notice is taken of Wild Life Week and they hope conducted tours through the Thetis Sanctuary—delayed until April 20 and 21 to give the wildflowers a chance to reach full glory—will attract visitors to the park.

But their appeal is not to the sensational. It is a softly spoken invitation to all people to find some appreciation for the beauties and the mysteries which nature presents in the turning of the seasons.

I have enjoyed my quiet times in the woods and by streams, when the concerns of modern living have slipped away to drown in clear pools. I have found some form of regeneration in the idle pastime of staring at a wild flower. The magic green of a maple in new leaf has given a lift to my spirit. I have marvelled at the bell tones of a redwing flicking to rushes in a swamp, of seabirds showing mastery in the currents of the air.

These have been pleasures to match the enjoyment of a fresh stream, rolling transparent over moss-covered boulders, of the grandeur of storms in the Strait, of the lofty elegance of trees in a forest of cathedral calm. These have been influences which have helped a man to breathe a little deeper of clean air, to straighten his shoulders, to lift up his head.

In a world which the poet found too much with us, the marvellous intricacies of natural things have provided for me a serenity almost religious.

I want these things for my grandchildren's children and those who come later. Mere wishing will not assure their existence in those days and years ahead. What some call progress is inclined to destroy the woods, to foul the lakes, streams, rivers and shores, to clog the air, to drive the wild things, birds, animals and flora into more remote retreats.

It should be my task to work for the preservation of the things important to me and to others who are yet to be born. As on all others, there falls on me a responsibility to insure a heritage. Yet, in the busy hours of a working day, I neglect that duty.

Fortunately there are others, as busy or busier than I, who make time to do what has to be done. They are engaged next week in drawing our attention to the slogan "Protect nature and you defend your country." All they ask of us is that we take some small part of our days to enjoy the natural world around us, pay it some service by helping to keep it unspoiled, and perhaps to learn what they have learned—a deep satisfaction in staring a little more intently at the jewels of countryside we hold in trust.

THE ANGRY YOUNG WORLD

Italy's Antiquated Universities Draw Violent Student Protests

By CHARLES FOLEY

(This is another in a continuing series of articles on student unrest throughout the world today.)

ROME — Student turmoil that for five months has swept through Italy's ancient universities from northern Turin to Palermo in the deep south is still gathering momentum, unchecked by recent bloody clashes with police.

It is likely to go on doing so throughout the coming weeks of campaigning for national elections next month.

"Reform or bust!" is the student cry, and no-one need be surprised if, after the years of official promises, political infighting and neglect, Italy's 400,000 undergraduates are getting something more than impatient.

The campaign for reform in the universities started its latest season in November, and a month ago students occupied — not for the first time — the Rome Architectural Faculty, stopping lessons, holding up examinations.

The Rector, Professor D'Avack, waited, argued and expostulated before — no doubt with government authority — he asked police to turn the students out. In the ensuing riot, 160 police and 50 students were injured by the official count; and certainly many more students were injured by the official count; and certainly many more students avoided treatment in hospital for fear of arrest. There were two hours of baton-swinging, bottle-throwing violence.

Plot Charges

In Parliament Communist charges of "Nazi brutality" were countered by accusations of a Red plot to make political capital from the students in election year.

A legitimate grievance is in danger of foundering in the mud of party politics. Yet the past three years of student agitation have not been in vain.

On one point everyone now agrees: reform is long overdue in Italy's antiquated, overburdened and inefficient system of higher education. Based on a 1933 law laid down by the Fascist regime, the university set-up stands condemned by its dismal results.

With 400,000 students attending 30 universities — a small figure in a population of 52 million — the annual number of graduates is only 30,000, or one in 13. Nor is the standard of graduates satisfactory, especially on the technological and scientific side. Shell Italiana's president, Signor Diego Gucciardi, revealed recently than 20,000 applicants for jobs at Shell's new Taranto factory, almost all were totally unqualified. "And most of the graduates who come to us are quite unprepared for work in a modern company," he said.

More Bluntly

A placard in a recent Rome protest at the medical faculty put matters more bluntly: "Eight years of study — to make us into assassins!"

What is wrong in the universities? Overcrowded lecture halls, shortage of teachers, out-of-date teaching methods, lack of scientific equipment, laboratories, libraires — and cash, are the obvious inadequacies. Student demands put a finger on other weak points.

First less than 10 per cent of the population is producing 90 per cent of the country's industrial leaders. Larger state subsidies are needed to permit young people from poor families to study at university — at present the state spends less than $700 a year on each student — which is roughly a quarter of the sum laid out in, for example, Britain. And it is estimated that only 6 per cent of young people receive a university education.

Absentees

Then there is the practice of keeping on the university payroll professors who are in fact spending their time almost exclusively in politics or business. Among these "absentee professors" are Italy's Premier Aldo Moro (a law professor at Rome University) and Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani (a professor of economics).

It is to change all this that the students make their chief demand for a wider consultative and advisory voice in university administration.

University teachers, on the whole, support the students. But they are disturbed — and public sympathy is lost — by the way in which the so-called "student power" leaders remorselessly work irrelevant aspects of their left-wing politics into every university protest.

"Long live Ho Chi Minh!" cry the marchers. "Hangman Johnson," read the placards. Students occupying faculties at Rome University have been listening to taped speeches by Rap Brown, the American "Black Power" leader. It is one of the few U.S. imports they can approve.

"Here you cannot carry on a reasonable argument that brings in America," Professor Francesco Forte, a teacher of economics, says. "For them, everything American is monstrous."

According to former Rome University Rector, Ugo Papi, who was forced to resign after the disturbances in 1966, "trouble is caused by leftist professors who incite a minority of students to demonstrate." He estimated that 20 per cent of students and professors were active in far left politics.

Plodding On

The coalition government meanwhile plods forward with its university reform bill, which the student movement has already declared inadequate. The government has also passed a law to spend $300,000,000 on new university buildings over five years.

Attempts will be made to push a reduced form of the Gui Plan — named after Italy's education minister — through Parliament before the end of the present legislature. The Opposition will fight it all the way.

The Gui Plan offers some reorganization of power, reducing professorial authority and making a partial reform in appointments to professors' chairs; it limits, but does not end, professorial absenteeism; and it provides for three university degrees where there is now only one.

This is far from meeting students' requirements. But it is all that they are likely to get until Italy's next government is in power.

THE GALLUP POLL

Inflation Remains High On Canadian Worry List

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

To the candidates seeking leadership of the Liberal party today, Canadian unity, separatism and economic independence from the United States may be of vital concern, but to the grass-root voters high taxes, high prices and inflation are the greatest problems facing Canada today. More than one-third of the people (38 per cent) name these problems and this was also true two years ago, although mentioned by a lesser number of adults—29 per cent.

The second national worry, selected by 17 per cent, centres around "the problem of Quebec and separatism." This also was mentioned in 1966 but only by 7 per cent of the people.

The Vietnam war is also of concern to Canadians. Seven per cent say they are afraid of possible involvement in the war.

The fact that the Liberals have weathered three years of minority government has lessened concern about political instability. It is still included in the list today, but it held high priority in 1966.

Few Votes Won Over By Spate of Speeches

By BRIAN TOBIN
Editor of The Times

OTTAWA — The contingent of voters from greater Victoria apparently reflected in part the general frame of mind of the whole Liberal convention as the crucial voting began.

It had formed no solid consensus but held an every-man-for-himself position, with preferences spread over Trudeau, Turner and Hellyer.

The spectrum of opinion of the convention itself was not noticeably narrowed by the pre-election events of Friday night.

The formal half-hour addresses of the eight candidates appeared to change no rooted opinions, but may have caught up a few undecided delegates in the enthusiasm of the evening. The real test was to come in the later counts.

STANDING OVATION

Perhaps the surprise of the evening was the standing ovation accorded J. J. Greene after a no-notes oration that had the packed arena alternately laughing and cheering.

Fists on hips, standing at the edge of the stage, this Laurier-Lincoln character temporarily stole the show.

He delivered a rousing political speech that described the socialists as "heads in the clouds, feet in the nineteenth century," and scored on the Tory Stanfield-Camp team with the observation that "It's not where is the leader, but where is Edgar Bergen—that is the question."

SLOWS PACE

Winters slowed the pace with his somewhat plodding, fact-filled speech, but his supporters lightened things with a fall of snow over the platform and a storm of imitation snowballs from the stands.

The gloves came off as the evening warmed up. The speeches were sharper in tone, and between the lines there was biting criticism of opponents.

Hellyer staged the loudest demonstration, with two bands and a long column of marchers on the arena floor, and got mileage on his effort by claiming the careful organizing of which he was "accused" could be put to the use of the party and country.

But the level tones of Hellyer, MacEachen and Kierans could not hold the great crowd for long, and applause became scarce and perfunctory.

STIR ENTHUSIASM

There were earnest efforts by supporters to stir enthusiasm. Bright costumes, squads of barelegged girls, a few bands and prolonged chants of "we want so-and-so" warmed the crowd before each speaker took the stand.

It was a well-behaved, at a word from the platform, cheery throng. They quietened cleared the floor when requested, and there was not a single heckling shout all evening. For so large a crowd it was a remarkable demonstration.

But much of the evening appeared in the nature of a warmup for the big finale.

Trudeau, spotted seventh on the speakers' list, brought most of the audience to its feet when he took the podium, and Trudeau placards blossomed in every section of the stands.

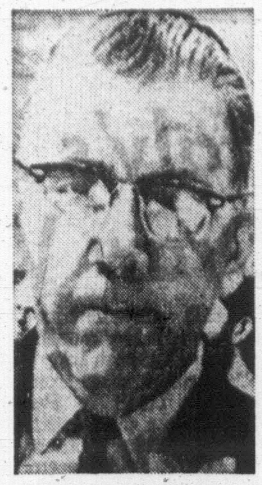
WELL PLANNED

It was a well planned demonstration that gave the visual impression of almost total support. His address was in the usual Trudeau manner — polished, fluent in both languages, at times almost casual, and there was no doubt that his followers were both numerous and insistent.

It was a hard act to follow and perhaps only Turner could have done it.

Turner was heralded by a seemingly endless stream of hundreds of teen-agers who surged across the arena floor with their placards and banners and set the stage for a hard-hitting, "no deals," "today-not-tomorrow," speech that showed him to be a strong contender.

That was the way it was as the delegates prepared to troop into the voting booths today. Whatever the outcome, the picture here was of a viable, thriving political force —waiting only for leadership.



LAST MAN on a long program Friday night was Liberal leadership hopeful Rev. Lloyd Henderson, who talked to only a few hundred people after most of the 2,396 delegates had decided to call it a night after nine speeches.

Delegates Get Costly Snacks

Big items on the Nilon menu are 30-cent hot dogs, selling at the rate of 10,000 a day, and 15-cent soft drinks, consumed at the rate of 30,000 a day.

MARRIAGE? MAI OUI! TRUDEAU TELLS GIRLS

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau wowed about 400 women delegates and guests to the Liberal Leadership convention at aspecial reception for them Friday at the National Library.

The show-stopper came at a question-and-answer period when one woman put the puzzler every woman was secretly asking.

What kind of pressure would make the minister get married and what would he do about his bachelor state if he became prime minister?

"Given the right kind of pressure I think I'd get married," Mr. Trudeau replied to a giggling audience.

His friends, he said, had told him marriage was "quite an experience" and he was hoping for it some day. But he had been hoping for a long time.

'LIKE LAST DAY OF SCHOOL'

More Gifts Showered on Retiring PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester Pearson was presented with more gifts and good wishes from the Liberal party in his East Block office Friday.

The Liberal Women's Federation of Manitoba gave him a dove made of fine German porcelain to symbolize the prime minister's contribution to world peace.

"Just like a big box of chocolates," said Mr. Pearson as he tore off the shiny bronze wrapping-paper.

Told by one of the women that he was looking better now than when he became leader over 10 years ago, he quipped:

After the women had gone, Mr. Pearson was presented with an oil painting by K. R. Hymmen (L—Waterloo North) and his wife, on behalf of D. R. Hall, a 31-year-old artist who lives in Waterloo tirement.

Mr. Hall painted the rural scene as a tribute to Mr. Pearson on the eve of his re- County.

Gaglardi Case 'Up to Voters'

Premier Bennett said Friday he will take the Gaglardi affair to the "last court" — the people — "in due course" but promised an investigation "if any person makes charges."

The premier did not tell the legislature why he accepted the resignation of Mr. Gaglardi and as a result the New Democrats joined the Liberals in demanding a judicial inquiry into the case.

"If any person makes a charge it will be investigated, make no mistake," said the premier. "But so far no charges have been made."

Alan Macfarlane (L — Oak Bay) said there had been charges and there was now "a body of evidence from which you can infer misconduct."

Opposition Leader Strachan led off the brief low-keyed debate by demanding an explanation for the resignation.

ABSENT FRIDAY

Mr. Gaglardi resigned March 21 after controversy over land deals by his sons and the use of his government plane by relatives had mushroomed through the session. He was not in the legislature Friday but had made a brief appearance Thursday.

The entire discussion lasted only 35 minutes and the highways department estimates of $120,512,000 passed in a little more than two hours.

The premier defended Mr. Gaglardi's road-building record and several times said he was taking "full responsibility" for keeping the minister in the cabinet as a minister without portfolio.

Mr. Macfarlane repeated previous Liberal demands for an inquiry and Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) added the NDP's voice to the call in the wake of the premier's statement.

Mr. Strachan had called for the inquiry if the premier failed to give a satisfactory explanation of the resignation.

'UNCERTAINTY'

"So long as the premier will not give the public the facts, so long as he will not give us an explanation ... there will be grave uncertainty in the province regarding the minister's resignation," he said.

"There is no dispute about the misconduct of the minister so far as it is known to the house," he said.

"The minister earlier in the session sought to justify his conduct. He told the house a fantastic tale of burglary, bugging and bribery, all of it unsubstantiated, all of it irrelevant and all of it now quite forgotten."

"The only question is, what should the judgment of the house be? Is the house prepared to condone what happened?" asked Mr. Strachan.

"We in the official opposition cannot and we have been told that some members of the government will not ... "The government has thumbed its nose at parliamentary tradition. It has thumbed its nose at the house," said Mr. Strachan.

Premier Bennett said he knew "right well' his responsibility to the people and the legislature.

"Oftentimes we have to run counter to public opinion in the public interest ... that is the duty of the premier."

He spoke of the "full information" that the premier has access to by virtue of his position and the relation that information has to the task of making decisions, and the duty of nominating men for offices.

"When we were first elected we had a small group to select from ... and we are thankful for the men we had ...

"In the former minister of highways B.C. had and has an outstanding citizen," he said, recalling that Mr. Gaglardi had come from an immigrant family.

The premier said that Mr. Gaglardi is a man of "tremendous energy and ability" but acknowledged that he was not comfortable in the legislative setting.

The premier then went on to say that nobody is perfect, not himself, nor the leader of the opposition.

"God ... thank God ... did not give all the talent ... ability ... to any one person," he said.

NONE GREATER?

"In balance, B.C., Canada and perhaps the world have never had a greater minister of highways," he said.

No matter what the critics say, he added "history will speak in a loud voice to give him proper recognition." He recalled that many times he had pressed Mr. Gaglardi to take a holiday but always the minister stayed on the job.

"I will never stand ... to let his name go down in the mud.

"If any person makes charges, they will be investigated, make no mistake. But so far no charges have been made."

The premier said that Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) had been "very careful" not to make any charges against the minister and asked the NDP member if it wasn't so.

Mr. Macdonald did not argue the point.

The premier stressed that Mr. Gaglardi had not said that health was his reason for resigning.

"That was my opinion," said Mr. Bennett.

NO REASONS

He recalled the day of the resignation, saying that Mr. Gaglardi had gone to his office at 1:10 p.m. and told him he wished to resign. He didn't give reasons, the premier said.

"I then asked him ... pressed him ... to act as minister without portfolio and to serve on the harbors board.

"I accept full responsibility ... for the members of this party ... for the members in this legislature in all parties ... before the gaze and judgement of the people of British Columbia who are a last court ...

"In due course all actions of the premier are submitted to that court."

He said he was "anxious" to uphold "government by consent."

"As premier I take full responsibility ... I couldn't dodge it if I wished."

He ended with: "There is no further statement that I could give ... that is the complete statement."

CHARGES EXIST

Mr. Macfarlane said it was not true that no charges had been made against the minister.

"There is a body of evidence brought forward in many places which throws very heavy suspicion on the actions of the minister of highways.

"No premier can ignore the facts as they appear.

"The only proper and responsible thing to do is to submit all those facts to an independent judicial inquiry and let that independent inquiry prove guilt or innocence and once and for all dispose of this matter.

Mr. Macfarlane said he resented the "constant argument that we have to excuse the minister because he's been a good road builder."

Nobody disputes that, he said, but "that's not the issue."

"The issue is the question of morality in public office ... if some of the evidence has validity then it goes even deeper, to a question of misconduct in office."

INQUIRY FEARED?

"If this government feels it has a clean, clear record, why does it fear placing it before an inquiry?

"Why subject the minister to the pain and anguish of a public debate?" he asked, suggesting an inquiry would be the kindest thing for Mr. Gaglardi and his family.

Mr. Macfarlane said Premier Bennett's reference to the people as "the last court" was not good enough.

"You won't go to the people on the facts, — you'll go on the story that this little man has given his heart, his sweat, to building good roads."

Interrupted by a backbench government MLA who said there were no charges, Mr. Macfarlane shot back:

"There were specific charges ... there is a body of evidence from which you can infer misconduct."

VISIT to Canada this month will be made by George Brown, who quit the cabinet after splitting with Prime Minister Wilson, has been invited as guest speaker at the National Newspaper Awards dinner April 20 under the auspices of the Toronto Men's Press Club. He will also visit New York and Washington.

Sod-Turning Sunday

A sod-turning ceremony for the new community services building at St. Aidan's United Church will be conducted by the minister, Rev. A. G. McLeod, Sunday at 11:30 a.m.

Attending will be members of the session, the stewards, women's auxiliary, AOTS, CGIT, Explorers, Scouts and Wolf Cubs.

'MIRE OF BUREAUCRACY'

SOCRED REBELS RAP BCHIS DELAY

Three Social Credit backbenchers Friday night slammed the government for delay in hospital construction.

Don Phillips (SC—South Peace) said the province's hospital construction is "floundering in a mire of bureaucracy."

He said the delays were "a slam against the whole government" but made clear he wasn't attacking ailing and absent Health Minister Wesley Black.

He said he was tired of the "run-around" from the department and called it "a big old octupus."

"If this department were in private enterprise it wouldn't last five minutes," he charged.

Attorney-General Bonner said a standard plan system might speed up hospital construction in smaller communities.

Dr. H. R. McDiarmid (SC—Alberni) backed the stand and endorsed speed-up changes in department rules.

Willis Jefcoat (SC—Shuswap) said he was "afraid to go home" after receiving a letter from his constituency Friday informing him that BCHIS could not survey the Salmon Arm hospital to determine efficiency and adequacy for the next three years.

$100 for Hit-Run

Gordon Hodges, 204 Government St., was fined $100 in central court Friday for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Readers who like their study of international affairs spiced with a dash of fiction will be delighted with Smith Hempstone's new novel, In the Midst of Lions. He departs here from the African settings of his previous novels to use as background the incidents of the Arab-Israeli war of 1967.

Mr. Hempstone's years as a foreign correspondent are clearly reflected in his narrative style. The pace of the action is swift, and with a few deft touches, he is able to give an unusual insight into both characters and events, while at the same time creating the local color, the very atmosphere of the Middle East.

As the action of the story moves between the poles of Arab resolution to maintain a holy war and the Jewish resolution to maintain national state and identity in the face of tremendous odds, one becomes aware of the complexity and depth of the problems creating this hostility.

By employing to the full the privileges and freedoms of fiction, Mr. Hempstone clarifies the complex issues involved in the struggle without simplifying them or offering any easy solutions.

By using a large number of characters, both Israeli and Arab, the author seems to be suggesting that at the heart of the hatred between the two races is a fundamental difference in national character.

The Arab appears to be a simple man dominated by his emotions. He uses language like a poet, but then allows himself to be deceived by taking as literal that which should be interpreted figuratively. Opposed to this rather impractical and unrealistic attitude is that of the Jews.

Years of persecution and oppression have made them realists; their national fervor and pride and cohesion surpass that of the Arabs surrounding them, but they never allow themselves to be deceived by the myths created by their own or others' propaganda. For the Arab, the machine and modern technology are both at odds with their tradition of individualism; for the Jews, the machine and technology are means skilfully used to create and maintain a homeland in what was formerly a hostile waste.

In the best tradition of war novels, he is involved in a torrid love affair with a beautiful Jewish girl, Rachel Lev. She, in turn, is loved by a Jewish jet pilot and by a navy frogman.

Thus it is possible for the reader to participate, through these two frustrated lovers, in the frogmen's attack on the harbor of Alexandria that effectively put the Egyptian fleet out of action, and in the Israeli air strikes against Egyptian airfields and the Golan Heights of Syria.

In the Midst of Lions tells the story of war in terms of human actions, in terms of love and loyalty and dedication. There is very little of hate revealed. Yet there emerges a clear, coherent picture of the Sinai campaign, followed by the short thrust against Jordan that won the old city of Jerusalem and the west bank of the Jordan, and the bitter fighting that wrested the Golan Heights from the Syrians.

Readers who enjoy a story full of action and suspense, with a touch of sex and sentimentality, that at the same time gives an informed and sensible insight into one of the more complex problems in international affairs, will find In the Midst of Lions a very satisfying novel.

Sex Repression And Laughter

COCKSURE, by Mordecai Richler; McClelland and Stewart; $5.95.

Reviewed by Donna Smyth

Take a middle-aged, Canadian WASP (White Anglo-Saxon Protestant) and place him in swinging London. Add a wife who is aggressively with it on everything from A for Apartheid to S for Sex with Ziggy.

Throw in one son, aged eight, who attends a progressive school where the Christmas pantomime is the Marquis de Sade's Philosophy in the Bedroom.

Combine these ingredients with Mordecai Richler's satiric pen and the result is Cocksure, Canada's answer to Candy.

Quiet Giggles

Cocksure begins in quiet giggles and ends with insane laughter as Richler satirizes the current compulsion in certain social circles to liberate everybody from prejudice, fear, and sexual repression. These avant-garde groups consider themselves in much the same manner as the Calvinist Elect.

They have read the latest books and they have been to the latest underground movie. They know the word; baby, they have been saved.

These are the swingers who think that Jewish people are very in and who invite a Negro and-or a homosexual to every party.

RICHLER
. . . room at the 'in'

Their greatest fear is to be caught expressing an out-of-date opinion, attitude, or idea. Out-of-date means last summer's catchwords.

Through a clever volt-face, Richler suggests that these liberated people have created a new, much-abused, and much discriminated against minority group—the WASPS.

He is denounced for being anti-Semitic and also for concealing the fact that he himself is Jewish. (The answer to that paradox is the key to the novel.) His wife thinks he is repressed and prefers to emancipate herself by going to bed with Ziggy of the gorilla face and jungle armpits.

Meanwhile, the publishing house where Mortimer works is gobbled up by the sinister Star-Maker, the Hollywood androgyne, who takes a piece of slang advice literally and winds up pregnant.

Mortimer's "marvy lymph system" gains him the Star-Maker's confidence but also puts his life in danger.

Then there is Mortimer's own secret; he seems to be the only one who is not cocksure. His pursuit of sexual knowledge becomes a mad merry-go-round which stops with the voluptuous Polly whose answer astonishes

Cocksure is wild, hilarious, and chilling. If you want to be with it, you should read it. even Mortimer.

'Last Free Bird' For All Ages

An unusual and eloquent protest against pollution of air and water is a picture book for all ages entitled The Last Free Bird, (Prentice-Hall, $5.95). Words by A. Harris Stone support Sheila Heins' colorful illustrations of a countryside before the people "came and came and spilled and spewed" and then of a blighted land where only one bird is left to tell the tale.

TURKISH HEADGEAR added to Elgin marbles in cartoon from Athens newspaper (1961) is critical response to British mockery of idea that marbles be returned to Greece. Merchant asks "Who wants them? NOT WITHOUT A STRUGGLE

BELONGING, by Willa Muir. Hogarth Press (Clarke, Irwin). $8.40.

Reviewed by
David S. Thatcher

For poet, critic and novelist Edwin Muir (1887-1959), introspection was not a morbid or wasteful activity.

On the contrary, the great sin was "to let everything go past in a sort of dream or stupor, aware neither of oneself nor of the world."

In 1938, his happiness at its lowest ebb for 20 years, he began to take stock of himself, to retrace the path of his life:

"I went over my life like a man who after travelling a long, featureless road suddenly realizes that, at this point or that, he had noticed almost without knowing it, with the corner of his eye, some extraordinary object, some rare treasure, yet in his sleep-walking had gone on, consciously aware only of the blank road flowing beneath his feet."

The result was his beautiful and moving The Story and the Fable (1940), in which the story of his life—its surface happenings—was counterpointed against the fable or the archetypal pattern it illustrated.

The fable of Muir's life, as he saw with increasing clarity, was the loss of Eden, the Fall, and the Redemption through recovery of Lover and Immortality.

In 1954 The Story and the Fable, with several revisions and the addition of seven new chapters to bring it up to date, was issued under the title of An Autobiography, one of the great autobiographies of this century.

A farmer's son born in the remote Orkneys, Muir learnt as a child to make no great distinction between the ordinary and the fabulous: the legends, myths, superstitions of the island people helped to nourish his imagination, and to provide an unfailing source of suggestive material when he turned, at the late age of 35, to the serious writing of poetry.

Bone Factory

His family moved to Glasgow when he was 14, and he never again had any formal schooling. What he saw walking through the Glasgow slums filled him with a sense of degradation. Muir helped to support his family by taking a number of poorly-paid office jobs.

One of these was a two-year stint in a bone factory—his description of the conditions in this factory is heartrending.

One by one, his parents, and two of his brothers, succumbed to the squalor and disease of Glasgow.

Appalled at "such a meaningless waste of inherited virtue," Muir looked around for something to sustain him, to alleviate his grief and anger.

A number of conversions followed, to Socialism, to Pascal, to Heine, to Nietzsche. These proved incompatible with each other, and only exacerbated his spiritual confusion.

Subject to frequent nightmares, he allowed himself to be psychoanalyzed, and after that retained a firm belief in the virtue of psychoanalysis.

His literary breakthrough came when W. R. Orage accepted some of his work for the London New Age, the most stimulating weekly of its time.

In 1919 he met and married Willa Anderson, a lecturer in a women's college in London.

Shortly afterwards, with little money and few prospects, they left for London to begin a fresh existence. Friends said the marriage wouldn't last six months, but, looking back, Muir called it "the most fortunate event in my life."

After reading his wife's memoir of him, Belonging, one can understand why. She believed in him before he believed in himself. It was her courage and faith that enabled him to leave a secure but unrewarding job and risk the uncertainties of a free-roaming literary life.

Thanks to her love and loyalty, her intellectual companionship and her resilient toughness, he was able to rediscover his hidden self, the self which Glasgow had all but paralyzed, and become a whole man again; her solicitude created the conditions in which his poetic genius could flower.

Above all it was her gaiety and friendliness, qualities conspicuously displayed in her book, which kept him in contact with humanity in a world whose brutal impersonality made his soul cower.

They used each other's nervous energy, in a way neither could explain, to persevere in times of hardship and personal distress.

Frank Book

Willa Muir writes with infectious verve, colloquially, with utter disdain for literary polish; this gives her book charm, an approachability, which her occasional gawky breathlessness cannot diminish.

Belonging is a frank book, and offers a picture of married life which, because of Muir's reticence, hardly appears in the Autobiography.

The picture of Muir which emerges only confirms the dominant impression one has of him as a shy, retiring man, but a man of unimpeachable integrity. The book emphasizes that this serenity was not won, or maintained, without a struggle.

The Muirs were an example of what Nietzsche called "good Europeans." On the advice of Janko Larvin they spent four years in Prague, because, he said, it was the centre of Europe and had the best beer and ham to be found anywhere.

They also had long spells in France, Austria, Germany and Italy, rebuffing accusations that this transient sojourning was a form of escapism.

They Suffered

Never well-off, they were forced to work very hard, writing novels, reviews, and translating from the German; they suffered as they saw Europe torn between the forces of nihilism, Nazism, Communism and "omnipotent impersonality" on one side, and "fumbling and unequipped humanity" on the other. The Muirs' experience of this crisis is vividly brought out in Belonging—they became aware, for example, of the virulent anti-Semitism that flourished in Salzburg and Vienna.

MUIR
. . . conversions aplenty

"It is easy," Muir wrote, "for the false imagination to hate a whole class; it is hard for the true imagination to hate a single human being."

Belonging, on the whole, omits reference to incidents already mentioned in the Autobiography.

Its strength, as well as its weakness, is in the wealth of detail about people, places and things: sometimes these details fill in the shadowy background of certain periods of their lives, the five months they spent in Cambridge in 1948, for instance, but much of the detail is obtrusive, and obscures the main current of the story.

On occasion Mrs. Muir's memory plays her false, as when she says that the Jewish quarter of Vienna is the Fourth District (it is the Second).

The most fascinating part of Belonging is its evocation of Europe in turmoil; the most valuable and informative are the three final chapters which cover the years unmentioned in the Autobiography—1950-1959, the last nine years of Muir's life.

Loved by Students

They tell of Muir's activity as Warden of Newbattle Abbey College, Scotland, where the students loved him as much as their counterparts in Europe had done when Muir was teaching for the British Council; of his meetings, with American poets such as Frost, MacLeish and Lowell (when he was Visiting Professor of Poetry at Harvard), and of his twilight years spent in a small cottage eight miles from Cambridge, the university which, in the summer of 1958, conferred on this quiet, unassuming man the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters.

Neither as a poet, nor as a critic, does Muir stand in the centre of the Twentieth Century movement in literature: his simple, unallusive, monochrome verse is an attempt to articulate his experience of life in terms of archetypal myth and symbol—in many ways, particularly in his concern with childhood, he is the heir of Blake and Wordsworth. As a critic, he has not been very influential: he eschews that watch-committee vigilance and preoccupation with evaluations and placings so characteristic of modern literary inquisition.

But it would be unfortunate if the work of this man was allowed to fall into oblivion.

It may be hoped that Belonging, readable and entertaining as it is for its own sake, will persuade its readers to explore Muir's work for themselves: for of him it might be said, in the words of his own poem on Milton, "his unblinded eyes —Saw far and near the fields of Paradise."

Anthology

All we who make Things transitory and good
Cannot but take
When walking in a wood
Pleasure in everything
And the maker's solicitude,
Knowing the delicacy
Of bringing shape to birth.
To fashion the transitory
We gave and took the ring
And pledged ourselves to earth.

Poor Elgin! He Picked Up The Marbles but Lost All

LORD ELGIN AND THE MARBLES, by William St. Clair; Oxford University Press.

Reviewed by
Peter L. Smith

One can argue that the glories of the Athenian Acropolis should not reside in the British Museum, but one can hardly fail to sympathize with the unlucky Scottish peer who undertook the project of removal.

His zealous private crusade to bestow "some benefit on the progress of taste in England" led him to seek an appointment in 1799 as British Ambassador in Constantinople.

The next 17 years brought about the fulfilment of his dream and the destruction of his personal life.

It is strange that Lord Elgin has never been the subject of a full biography: few careers have been more packed with triumph, disaster, and controversy.

In this excellent study, William St. Clair has wisely chosen only that period in Elgin's life that is unified by his obsessive desire to secure the Marbles.

With admirable scholarship and a lively use of contemporary material (including the gay and gossipy letters of the first Lady Elgin), St. Clair has presented a fair and thoroughly sympathetic account of a fascinating man and an extraordinary action.

Lost His Fortune

Poor Elgin! The venture cost him his fortune (£74,240!), his political career, his personal liberty, his first wife (divorced after degrading scandal), his health, even his appearance (cruelly disfigured by skin disease). Attacked by malicious enemies, reviled by Byron, Elgin seems to have been hounded by the Furies of the Acropolis. Yet he emerges from this book as the battered martyr to a cause that was at least defensible, and perhaps fully justified.

St. Clair feels that the question of the return of the Elgin Marbles to Greece is a "barren controversy" that is irrelevant to his account.

But he does take pains to refute the arguments of the Byronic sentimentalists who have failed to recognize Elgin's love for the Parthenon and his desperate concern for the physical survival of its sculptures.

Plans Revised

The original purpose had been merely to bring sketches and plaster casts to Britain; on learning of the depredation in progress, Elgin was forced to revise his plans.

Though it is painful to read of the actual defacing of the Parthenon by Elgin's agents, at least the purpose was constructive.

It is much more painful to receive from an eye-witness the picture of a British naval officer, "standing upon the base of one of the Caryatids, clinging with his left arm round the columns, while his right hand, provided with a hard and heavy pebble, was endeavoring to knock off the only remaining nose of those six beautifully sculptured statues."

Destruction

St. Clair's evidence makes it clear that Elgin saved these sculptures from wanton destruction by barbarous tourists or dispersal into private European collections. His legal position was sound; his aim, if Quixotic, was remarkably altruistic.

Among the most interesting sections in the book is the account of the esthetic reaction in England after the sculptures began to be displayed in 1807. Painters, poets, politicians all joined in the controversy. Despite the unanimous rapture of professional artists, there was an astonishing lack of official gratitude to Elgin and a depressing delay in acquiring the Marbles for the British people.

Only partly repaid for his expenses and denied a British peerage, Elgin was to enjoy a gloomy triumph and a clouded reputation in posterity.

He Knew China 40 Years

MY PLEASURES AND PALACES, by Harry Hussey. Doubleday, $7.95, 384 pages.

This is a discursive account of the author's life, concentrating particularly on his experiences in China as an architectural consultant. The first chapters provide an interesting account of a self-made man's rise from poverty to wealth and education, changes which made little difference to his genuine and rather charming simplicity.

These memoirs take the form of a long letter to the writer's grandson, though he drops his direct address to the boy once he has explained how their forbears come to Port Dover from the United States and after he has described his early life in that small Ontario township.

Yet the rest of the book is in the same leisurely, colloquial style. Mr. Hussey presents his life with an unaffected modesty and he is obviously a good man, but this is a personal account.

THIS WEEK

Tale of Two Canadians

By AL FORREST

They showered him with well-deserved honors, including a tiny white Scottish terrier puppy to keep watch over him in retirement.

Mr. Pearson told the convention: "I was worrying what I would do when taking my morning constitutional if I met Mr. Diefenbaker and I didn't have a dog."

Can you picture it?

Jolly, indeed.

And it was only fitting that the two names were intertwined in the closing moments of Mr. Pearson's last hurrah.

For, when history deals with the Twentieth Century, it will discuss the Mackenzie King years, the St. Laurent interregnum and the incredible decade of Pearson and Dief.

And how strange that two so different should be so inseparably linked for all time.

Diefenbaker, the man of politics and power, and Pearson, the man of negotation and quiet diplomacy.

The one scoring the greatest political triumph in Canadian history and the other unable to lead his party to a majority victory.

The one turning his government into a complete shambles and the other moving forward from point to point quietly and effectively until he had built up a legislative record seldom matched.

Diefenbaker big and gruff and impressive even when he was being rather stupid. Pearson, always calm, always ready to see all sides of an issue.

When Diefenbaker was in office he was never so tall that he could escape the determined attack of his rival. And Pearson in office was constantly chagrined that he had to devote most of his energy reacting to the Diefenbaker onslaught.

Dief was probably the best opposition leader the country ever had—certainly he was the worst prime minister. Pearson will rank as among the best.

They were even opposites in the way they chose to leave . . . Pearson this week, with dignity, stepping down when he felt his time had come.

Diefenbaker, however, rejected the cheers and gratitude of his party, prefering instead to fight to the end and find his solace in the martyrdom he seemed to crave and thrive upon.

Both men left their stamp on the nation but it is not two separate stamps. It is the Dief-Pearson stamp of ten years of thrust and counter thrust.

The intriguing historical footnote, as the era ends, is the unanswered question: Do the two men really hate each other? Do they like each other? Do they really, deep-down, like each other?

Friendship wouldn't be easy, certainly, for they constantly frustrated each other's desire for total success. They slugged at each other so hard and so long that in the end they both fell and neither scored a clear victory.

IN TEN WILD YEARS there was no escape from each other Prime Minister Pearson and former prime minister Diefenbaker discovered. One rumor has it that they were good friends but others doubt it.

It is possible that, like boxers, they developed a genuine bond resulting from so long a confrontation?

It seems probable.

But, no matter how warmly they may feel personally toward each other, they must tonight both be looking at the prospect of eternal wedlock in history with considerable exasperation.

There's nothing official about these odds, but here's the way I'd bet in Monday's Academy Award telecast which starts at 7 p.m.

BEST PICTURE	Odds
Guess Who's Coming to Dinner	1-1
Bonnie and Clyde	8-5
The Graduate	2-1
In The Heat of the Night	4-1
Dr. Dolittle	12-1

Here are the odds I'd quote for the Academy Awards, scheduled to be telecast at 7 p.m. Monday.

BEST ACTOR	Odds
Spencer Tracy (Dinner)	3-5
Warren Beatty (Clyde)	2-1
Rod Steiger (Heat)	2-1
Paul Newman (Cool Hand Luke)	6-1
Dustin Hoffman (Graduate)	10-1

Mike Nichols is 4-5 to be named best director and if Dame Edith Sitwell isn't voted best actress for The Whisperers it is only because she's British and Hollywood is revolting.

HE'S MY KIND OF MAN thinks Belinda (Jennifer Wyatt) who finds herself strongly attracted to the man her husband has set to watch her. The scene is from The Public Eye, one half of an entertaining double bill opening 8:15 p.m. tonight at Langham Court Theatre. Stanley Bowles plays the man, Julian Christoforeau, in this Pygmalion-like story of a husband's attempt to make a vulgar girl into his ideal wife.

Professional Actors Eyed To Push the Standards Up

By AUDREY JOHNSON

The art and craft of theatre, even when a subject for a fine arts degree, need not be confined to the perimeter of University of Victoria's ring road, says Ralph Allen.

Indeed, the university's theatre division which he comes from Pittsburgh to head is likely to exert a powerful influence in the community, if all Dr. Allen's tentative ideas are put into practice.

Moving university theatre out into the community; incorporating the best local actors with student and faculty actors for all productions; possibly bringing Canadian and other professional actors of note to the city to assist by precept, in pushing up the performance standard.

These were some of the ideas put forward by Dr. Allen when he talked with me during a flying visit this week.

Here for talks with School of Fine Arts head Peter Garvie, acting chairman Carl Hare, and other Uvic authorities, he stressed that no official policies have been laid down as yet.

VIEWPOINTS

What he was expressing were his personal viewpoints on the functions of a university theatre division and its relationship to the community.

But his broad and distinguished background, and his major success in the field at the age of 34, leaves little room for doubt that his concepts will prevail.

Dr. Allen has been director of the University of Pittsburgh Theatre since 1963. Before going to Pittsburgh he taught at Yale University while holding a graduate fellowship in playwriting.

He received his doctorate from Yale in 1960.

"We have searched for two years to find a theatre chairman, and in Dr. Allen we believe we have found exactly the right man," comments Professor Garvie.

WIDE INTERESTS

"His gifts as scholar, director, and administrator are warmly praised by all who know him, and he is a person of exceptionally wide interests and sympathies."

The excitement inherent in the challenge of working in a new university where everything is developing was the principal lure that brought Dr. Allen from Pittsburgh to Victoria.

He sees this as a community with exactly the right tempo and general endowment for a rich growth in the fine arts.

Still another important factor in his decision is his respect and admiration for Professor Garvie.

"I got to know him well during our several conversations that lead to my appointment," he says, "and I have nothing but admiration for the keenness of his taste and perception.

Determined to Be The Very Best In All Canada

TAKES MONEY

"We are all united in our determination to make this the finest theatre division of any university in Canada," Dr. Allen says emphatically.

It will take time, he admits. Also it will take money.

He is outspoken concerning the fact that a theatre division, to be worth anything, cannot be maintained in a financial straightjacket.

The distance and range one can encompass with makeshifts and a severely restricted budget is limited indeed, he points out.

"It is essential that we develop a graduate program as soon as possible in order to attract students here from all over Canada," he says. "A graduate program that would offer challenging master's and Ph.D. courses is what I envision, with students coming from the United States—even England—as well as Canada. Why not?"

NEXT SEMESTER

The theatre faculty will be nearly doubled by next semester, according to Dr. Allen. Among those added to the roster will be a theatre designer. Is fact, negotiations were under way last weekend with a top American theatre and industrial engineer.

Dr. Allen outlined proposals for the theatre division to produce a program of four plays next season, possibly beginning with Shakespeare.

In addition there would be workshop productions to give the students as widely diversified an experience as possible.

Although he is the author of several published papers on theatre history, as well as (with John Gassner) a two-volume text, "Theatre and Drama in the Making," has been editor for four years of Theatre Survey, a magazine of theatre history, Dr. Allen is far from being purely a theatre academic.

He has done quite a bit of acting, but particularly he has directed plays, both professionally and in the university context.

DOTES ON HOCKEY

He also dotes on hockey and wondered, rather wistfully, if Victoria might get back into professional hockey.

"In fact the only thing that made me think twice about coming was having to leave Pittsburgh just as they got an NHL franchise," he grins.

Dr. Allen actually first visited Victoria on a holiday four years ago.

"I saw a British music hall-type show at an interesting little theatre," he recalls. "Is the theatre still there?"

We identified the show as Jerry Gosley's Smile Show and discussed the fact that the theatre—Langham Court—belongs to Victoria Theatre Guild.

"Wonderful," he commented. "I would very much like to see the theatre again."

With his actress wife, Harriet, who also teaches at university level, Dr. Allen will take up his career at the University of Victoria in July.

Students Compete For Awards

A superb program that will feature six of this city's finest professional musicians and two exceptional students, takes place Tuesday in the Education-Arts lecture theatre, University of Victoria.

This special concert is for the purpose of endowing scholarhips at the University of Victoria School of Music in the names of Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm G. Taylor.

A Handel Sonata for oboe and continuo, performed by Ian Franklin and Hugh McLean will open the program and Mr. McLean will play three pieces for harpsichord by Rameau.

Discussing the Score

Russ Sailors Keep It Gay

Their first appearance in North America will follow spectacular successes in Britain and one or two European cities where critics called upon their most superlative phrases to acclaim the ensemble.

They are said to be fully the equal of the famed Red Army Chorus, the only difference being that their songs are naturally gayer than much of the Red Army repertoire.

Old sailors' songs such as The Cold Waves Lap, The Old Daria and Salted Water are typical of life on the high seas. But there are also marching songs such as Kravchenko and Homecoming and a number of folk songs.

The virtuosic dances staged by Georgy Davydov, an outstanding choreographer of the U.S.S.R. will be performed with bravura and an unparalleled athletic virtuosity..

The high-spirited program, latest of the impressive ensembles from the U.S.S.R. which have included the Moiseyev Dancers, the Bolshoi and the Red Army group, will take the Memorial Arena stage at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

OPENING the expanded World Adventure Tours film series next October will be Hjordis Kittel Parker, Norwegian-born traveller who will provide the commentary on her new all color travel film entitled Norse Adventure, which ranges from the Ice Age up to the present time. The series will consist of nine events at the McPherson Playhouse with two showins at 6 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Orders and renewals for season tickets are now being accepted at McPherson Playhouse box office.

Festival Countdown Starts

It is only two weeks now until that "great getting-up morning" dawns for hundreds of music students, teachers, adjudicators, office and halls staff involved in the Greater Victoria Music Festival.

At 9 a.m. on Monday, April 22, sessions for piano, vocal and accordion will get under way simultaneously in four separate halls.

Ten days later the festival will end with a schools honor performance at Central Junior Secondary School, May 3.

Centres for sessions are the same as last year, including the Youth Room and Fellowship Hall of First United Church, St. John's Memorial Hall, Metropolitan United Assembly Hall, Central and Oak Bay Junior Secondary auditoriums and Sir James Douglas School auditorium.

TWO FROM U.K.

There will be altogether nine entries. Two are from Britain, the rest from the United States and Canada.

The two Canadians on the panel are Shirley Nalevykine, folk dance adjudicator, and Tom Kerr who will judge the big speech arts section.

Mr. Kerr, who holds a speech diploma form the Trinity College, London, is one of British Columbia's most brilliant and successful stage directors. He has won Dominion Drama Festival finals' citations as best director and was named assistant to Sir Tyrone Guthrie in 1965, to produce the Parliament Hill centennial special.

Piano classes will be divided between two centres this year, with two adjudicators.

Senior piano adjudicator is noted English pianist Joseph Cooper, well known for his many concert stage, radio and television recitals and appearances at the Royal Albert and Royal Festival halls.

He and Trevor Anthony, FRAM, the vocal adjudicator, are members of the Canadian Federation of Music Festivals chain.

ART IN REVIEW

Did Winnipeg Underrate Us?

By TED LINDBERG

An exhibit of six Winnipeg artists opening this weekend at Nita Forrest's Print Gallery in Oak Bay may go a long way to fortify the notion that there is a great deal more significant art being made locally than this.

Lindberg

No provincialism implied.

Originality knows no bounds. But it will be a popular show; the work is variously decorative, colorful, innocuous and well-designed; the sort of thing one sees in progressive doctors' waiting rooms.

Caricatures

This is no reflection on Mrs. Forrest's personal acumen. The artists come highly touted; have been shown in all the best invitational exhibitions and are represented in the best collections. Maybe they underestimated Victoria, in sending this particular selection.

This show is modern only in the broadest sense of the word; that is to say these people have adopted the modern idiom of the Twentieth Century, but I have the feeling that too often these works are caricatures of abstract forms worked up in solid decorative compositions, most if it handsomely framed, to be placed in modern interiors without distracting one too much.

Some people are learning to demand more of art, i.e., art which has something to give up to the viewer on a day-to-day basis.

Probably the most talented of this group is Winston Leathers, who had something to do with organizing the work that was sent. The man knows a lot about technique, especially as a printmaker, and occasionally reveals an interesting idea, such as a Passage Into Night, a triptych of circular etchings describing the decomposition of light on a moon-like form; or in Singular Order No. 2, which presents the possibilities of a Dubuffet-like accretion printed off a metal collage.

But by the same artist there are some serigraphs which at best appear to be inexpensive reproductions of some rather neutral abstract paintings.

Rober Bruce, an illustrator and designer, will be favored for his splashy, fabric-like monoprints: very gay, very pretty, almost neo-classical symboism: flowers, nudes and other bric-a-brac. There is something about the way paint is released on the paper in monoprints that reminds me of wallpaper.

Knows Tricks

He creates compositions in big, sketchy swipes with airbrush, inks and (what appear to be) large, felt-nib pens. He knows all the tricks. Works mainly in two or three basic colors; pushes it around a bit.

Two paintings, ink on paper, are by Tony Tascona. They are the only attempt in the direction of hard-edge, and although I read his statement about "the dynamics of controlled precision", I feel that his works, (not in this show), in lacquers, aluminum and epoxies are more apt to come off.

His forms, in the two shown are interestingly juxtaposed, but the lines, in some instances, 'ran', which I think was not the desired effect. If one wants to do this sort of thing, it has to be impeccable.

Gordon Adaskin, on the faculty of Architecture at the University of Manitoba, sent some prints which for the most part are so inept I cannot discuss them — mainly abstract "woodcuts" that are so murky that they look like serigraphed reproductions of linocuts.

Without Merit

His single etching aquatint, Night Mist, can be considered a print by the barest standards, but the imagery, a moon and shadowy tree forms, is without merit.

Mr. Leathers' wife, Audrey Riller, has included some little ink and wash drawings, which despite being done with a rather ordinary draughting skill, display the only forthright statement of "being" in the group.

In my opinion, she alone tells us what it is like to be alive in Winnipeg, or anywhere. She records domestic scenes with a certain feminine insight.

A number of these people are combination teachers, commercial artists, designers and local art administrators, and one is mindful of the constant demands that must be exerted on the creative spirit, which possibly explains the restraint that is necessarily imposed on these always-correct and unassuming compositions.

Workshop Repeated

The outstandingly successful chamber music workshop presented last summer by University of Victoria School of Fine Arts is to be repeated this year.

A festival of chamber music concerts will be held in conjunction with the program of coaching, sessions to run from July 3.

Director of the workshop will again be Victoria School of Music director, Robin Wood.

Faculty will be drawn from Victoria, other parts of Canada, and the United States.

Those returning for the second year will include Christopher Leuba of Minneapolis, regarded as one of North America's most brilliant horn players; Conrad Crocker, flute, of Vancouver, and Morgan Griffin, bassoon of Seattle.

Rubenstein Power Shines Despite Age

By BERYL PROUDMAN

(a) Chopin Scherzos; Rubinstein; RM 2368.

(b) Piano Concerto No. 2 G Minor Op. 22 Saint-Saens; Symphonic Variations; Frank; Rubinstein, Wallenstein; RCA RB 16087; SB 2023.

On March 20th, on the stage of the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, part of a record I had long admired came to life before my eyes when Artur Rubinstein played Chopin's Scherzo in B flat minor Op. 31.

Incredible though it seems, at 82 this remarkable artist not only retains the power and agility of his prime, but has added to it a mature understanding familiarity with the music he has played all over the world for over 60 years.

At the end of his strenuous program, this frail-looking indomitably upright keyboard giant played encore after encore to the standing, cheering audience.

Though renowned for his interpretations of Schumann, Villa Lobos, Gradados and many other composers, Rubinstein has always favored his compatriot Chopin.

In 1960 Rubinstein began to replace all the technically poorer recordings of Chopin he had issued in the thirties. The Scherzos (a) were part of the new series.

Already in his 70s, he then determined to record all Chopin's piano music if he was given time. At his present rate he will have ample time for he seems to get no older.

Critical attention to the beautifully controlled emotion in his playing of the Scherzos will disprove the often-repeated assertion that the rigidity of his control lends a certain coldness to his interpretation.

Far from it, dammed emotion gives a far stronger suggestion of power than flamboyant emotional display could do, and when he does allow overt emotionalism to enter his playing it is all the more effective for being rare.

With a magic touch ranging from feather-duster runs to crashing hammer blows, he brings out the lyric tenderness of the tension-relieving quiet passages and the compelling authority of the dramatic statements.

Two interesting piano-orchestra combinations are recorded on (b).

NICE BALANCE

Saint-Saen's brilliantly witty concerto, composed in 17 days achieves a nice balance between the two. In the powerful First movement the piano plays musical ball with the orchestra, catching musical phrases, modifying, modulating elaborating them and throwing them back to the different sections.

The lesser Second movement is memorable if only for the inclusion of a subject which sounds remarkably like the introduction to a Gilbert and Sullivan comic song; and the furious buzzing tarantella of the Presto brings the work to an exciting finale.

Careful though Franck was with the form of his Variations, and much as they have been admired, they do present problems to those who try to analyse and pigeonhole them.

From the beginning the different themes allotted to piano and orchestra produce dramatic tension between them.

BUILDS TO CLIMAX

Time and again the orchestra builds up to a climax which is soothed away by the sweet reasonableness of piano. Franck uses the two media to restate subjects, to interweave themes and forge unifying links on which the construction depends.

Only at the end does the piano give up the role of languid pacifier, and the work ends with a roaring crescendo in which the pianist and orchestra joyfully unite.

This record is slightly inferior in engineering to the Chopin one.

When asked if he would ever stop playing the piano Rubinstein answered "When I am dead." Already he has lived to delight the children and grandchildren of those who applauded him in his youth.

Markets Face Anxious Time

By AB KENT
Business Editor

New York Stock Exchange closed on the down side Friday, despite what seemed like a move to rally in the face of bad news.

Much of the volume — while encouragingly high — represented selling pressure.

Yet, considering the gravity of events, the selling has not been as great as some feared would grip the market mood, to undo all the elated optimism engendered by the series of good news in the previous seven days.

They left their offices Friday hoping for a weekend which would help to restore a feeling of civil order and financial calm in the U.S. and resume steps toward peace in the world.

If there is a common worry among those in the financial business this weekend, it is probably one of anxiety for Monday morning's opening, for that could set the tone for the week to come.

Whatever the events of the day, it is in the market place where fortune — and fortunes — are determined.

Premier Bennett owes the people an explanation concerning his proposed purchase of Bank of British Columbia stock with pension funds through an amendment of the Civil Service Superannuation Act.

For a bank to transfer shares to a Crown agency is improper under existing legislation, and if it is the premier's way of giving notice that the Bank Act should be amended, it is a strange way to do so. Besides, the act does not come up for review for a number of years.

Although it is not yet open for business, the Bank of B.C. has produced a prominent sign of concern in at least one banking competitor, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

One of the BBC's stated objectives was to provide a western oriented competitive banking business.

So to meet the threat the Commerce is moving vice-chairman William Currie from head office in Toronto to take up residence in Vancouver.

His chief duties will include promotion of the bank's interests in business and financial circles — and that includes the government of B.C. which over the years has done very well for the Commerce bank. It will be part of Mr. Currie's job to try to keep as much of this business as he can.

Shipping statistics from Ogden Point docks and Cowichan Bay assembly wharf during March continue the downtrend of January and February.

Comparing with the same month a year ago, there were 14 ships at Ogden Point (25 ships), 14.953 million board feet of lumber shipped (25,677 million feet), 61 tons of plywood (4,640 tons), no pulp (1,135 tons) no out-bound general cargo (13 tons), 300 tons of in-bound frozen tuna, 1,672 million board feet of logs from the stricken freighter Suwahara Maru (205 tons of general cargo).

Cowichan Bay accommodated five ships (six), 7.507 million board feet of lumber (11.727 million feet), 462 tons of plywood (326 tons), 36 tons of shingles (75 tons).

PWA GIVEN BROADER U.S. FLIGHT AUTHORITY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson approved Friday a U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board decision to broaden the charter flight authority of Pacific Western Airlines of Vancouver.

Pacific Western now may operate package tour charter flights between the United States and Canada in addition to conventional aircraft charter contracts.

Ford Strikers In Tough Mood

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Contract negotiations between the Ford Motor Co. of Canada and the United Auto Workers Union may resume next week if leaders of UAW Local 707 are successful at a Hamilton meeting Sunday in persuading striking Ford Workers to return to work.

But it might be a long, tough struggle with the 11,587 militant workers who have illegally shut down operations at Ford Plants in Oakville, St. Thomas and Windsor, Ont., with wildcat walkouts that started Thursday.

At an outdoor meeting Friday in Oakville, more than 1,000 workers of Local 707 stormed the speakers platform screaming that they would not go back to work.

They also demanded the resignation of Ed Bruce, president of the 5,600-member local.

NEGOTIATIONS STALL

Negotiations between the union and Ford ended when a wildcat strike spread from Oakville to St. Thomas and Windsor in protest against a union decision to extend the 10:30 a.m. Thursday strike deadline to Monday at 10:30 a.m.

George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW, called off negotiations until striking members had returned to their jobs.

About 5,177 hourly-rated production workers in Windsor failed to show up for work Friday and picket lines were set up outside the plant. A spokesman said workers were fed up with delays in negotiations which had dragged on since last August.

Robert Such of London, chairman of the St. Thomas Plant's negotiating committee, said strikers there wouldn't make a decision on returning to work until after Oakville workers decide what they are going to do.

PLANTS CLOSE

At Oakville only 140 of the 1,500 workers at the passenger car assembly plant arrived at the start of Friday's shift. In the adjacent truck plant, only 22 of 900 assembly line workers reported.

About 270 employees of Long Manufacturing Co. members of UAW Local 1256, were locked out of the clutch-making plant March 29 when contract negotiations broke down.

The main issue between Ford and the UAW is the Canadian system of workers' relief breaks.

The union wants Ford to retain the system of shutting down production lines several times a day to give all workers a rest period, but the company wants to use the United States system where production lines continue operating and workers are relieved in small numbers.

Preston Sets Mine Closure

TORONTO (CP)— Preston Mines Ltd. will cease production at its South Porcupine gold mine in late May after more than 29 years of output, company president Robert D. Armstrong said Friday.

He told the annual meeting that continuing operations cannot be justified economically.

Fewer than 120 persons now are working at the mine, compared with more than 400 when operations were at their peak. Mr. Armstrong said some workers will be relocated with Rio Algom Mines Ltd.—43.94 per cent owned by Preston—and alternative jobs will be offered as many others as possible.

Mr. Armstrong said the closure will have virtually no effect on company earnings, since Preston's principle source of income was Rio Algom dividends.

$375 Million Lost To Shoplifters

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian retailers lost about $375,000,000 to shoplifters last year and half those charged were juveniles, says Bryan Cavanagh, a personnel and security manager for Henry Birks and Sons Ltd.

Only 60 per cent of those caught this year have been taken to court, he said.

Record Sales Reported by Weldwood

VANCOUVER (CP) — Record sales of almost $114,000,000 and a "marked improvement" in earnings during 1967 were reported Friday by Weldwood of Canada Ltd., but company executives warned that Vietnam war clouds are obscuring the 1968 prosperity picture.

Past president John Bene and President Roger Montgomery said in the company's annual report that "whether we are facing a war economy or the more predictable requirements of a ... peace economy" will be the most important factor in determining "our otherwise favorable outlook."

Net earnings after taxes and preference share dividends were $2,296,044, equal to 76 cents a share, compared with $1,575,615 or 52 cents a chare in 1966.

The annual report said improved conditions in the U.S. housing industry combined with economic growth in several western European nations created a strong demand for lumber

BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

Bond Market Higher

TORONTO (CP) — Long-term Canada bonds led the Canadian bond market higher this week, jumping two to three points in the face of talks of peace in Vietnam.

The 4½-per-cent Sept. 1, 1983, issue soared 2⅞ to 79⅝ bid and 79⅞ asked and the 6¼-per-cent Dec. 1, 1973, issue 1⅝ to 98⅝ bid and 98⅞ asked.

Short-term Canadas closed higher. The 5½-per-cent Dec. 15, 1969, issue jumped 40 cents to 98.45 bid and 98.55 asked and the 6-per-cent Feb. 15, 1970, issue 35 cents to 99.15 bid and 99.25 asked.

Provincials followed the upward trend, rising 2 points. The Ontario Hydro 7-per-cent April 1, 1992, issue was up 2⅜ to 99⅝ bid and 99⅞ asked.

Corporates were stronger with Eatons Acceptance 7½-per-cent 1987, issue gaining 2 to 98 bid and 100 asked.

HIGHER TAXES HELPED

Living Costs Up in March

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose half a point to 153.2 in March from 152.7 in February, mainly because of higher clothing prices and higher taxes in some provinces on tobacco and gasoline.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, would have gone higher but the increases were offset by lower food prices.

The index was 146.5 in March last year. The increase represents a gain of 4.6 per cent in the year and three-tenths of one per cent in the month.

Five of the seven main components of the all-items consumer price index rose. The index of health and personal care items remained unchanged from February at 194.3, and the food index fell to 148.7 from 149.8.

The biggest gain was a jump to 135.6 from 134.0 in clothing prices, which account for 11 per cent of the average urban family spending budget. There was a general increase in virtually all clothing items priced in the DBS survey.

The tobacco and alcohol index, covering about six per cent of the all-items index, rose to 138.4 from 136.4, mainly because of higher cigarette taxes in Ontario and Saskatchewan. Similar tax increases on gasoline put the transportation index up to 160.3 from 159.2.

The food index, representing 27 per cent of the total, fell because of lower prices for a number of fresh vegetable and meat items.

The consumer price index, a reflection of living costs, measures changes since 1949 in the prices of a selection of goods and services representative of purchases made by families of two to six, living in cities of more than 30,000 population, and with annual incomes during 1957 which ranged from $2,500 to $7,000.

The bureau said lower prices were reported at the beginning of March for potatoes, carrots, cabbage, lettuce, beef, fresh pork, chicken, butter, margarine and eggs.

Prices were higher for most fresh fruits, including bananas, oranges and apples, and prices remained unchanged for fresh milk, bread and sugar.

The housing index, which accounts for nearly one-third of the all-items index, rose to 156 from 155.4 because of higher rents, property taxes and maintenance expenses.

The bureau said new car prices remained unchanged in March from February, but higher gasoline prices in Ontario and Saskatchewan, resulting from higher taxes, sent the transportation index up. Automobile drivers in Alberta and Saskatchewan experienced a substantial increase in licence fees.

Some further provincial tax increases were announced last month which were not reflected in the prices survey, taken about the beginning of the month.

Canadian Ford Sales Set Mark

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. says its Canadian dealers sold a record 57,533 cars and trucks in the first three months of this year, up 9.9 per cent from 52,335 in the similar 1967 period when the previous record was established.

March sales of cars and trucks totalled a record 23,865 units, up 3.3 per cent from 23,112 a year ago.

CANADIAN CLINCHES SECOND WORLD CUP TITLE . . . . . . AS CAREER IN INTERNATIONAL COMPETITION ENDS

Skiing Mostly for Fun After Nancy's Challenger Fails

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (CP) — The international skiing competition continued here today, but mostly just for fun since Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., and Jean Claude Killy of France had already won their second straight World Cup championships.

Miss Greene clinched her title Friday, finishing fifth in the giant slalom, while Killy had sewn up his title at an international meet a week ago.

In third place was Isabel Mir of France, who had to win the event to match the 186 World Cup points already picked up by Miss Greene.

Miss Greene who already had won the maximum of 75 points allowed for giant slalom competition, finished in 1:03.69 behind Judy Nagel of the United States at 1:03.51.

This meet, at Heavenly Valley near Lake Tahoe, is the last for Miss Greene, a Notre Dame University student, who last week announced her retirement from international competition.

Asked again Friday what if any plans she had for the future, she reiterated earlier statements that she had none except to return to her studies although she had "a lot of offers."

Among the offers she mentioned, without being specific, were included endorsements, television and public relations positions.

Jean-Pierre Augert of France took the early lead in the men's giant slalom, charging down the 3,562-foot course in 1:25.95 followed by Austrians Herbert Huber in 1:27.53 and Reinhard Trischer in 1:27.59.

Other Canadians were well down in the standings on the course that was made difficult by mild weather that has cut the snow cover to the minimum in recent days.

In the women's competition, Judi Leinweber of Kimberley, B.C., was 25th in 1:07.85 followed by Karen Dokka of Burnaby, B.C., in 1:07.87 and Stephanie Townsend of Banff, Alta., 31st in 1:09.20 with Sue Graves of Montreal 34th in 1:10.54.

Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., led Canadian men with a 24th placing in 1:31.78 followed by Scott Henderson of Banff in 1:32.24.

In 32nd spot was Gerry Rinaldi of Kimberley in 1:35.64 with Bert Irwin of Kamloops, B.C., 37th in 1:38.09.

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

The rumor mill has been operating full bore, and it isn't Keith Dorman's intention to make a mess of the gears when he says Victoria Shamrocks will manage, somehow, to field a team for the lacrosse wars.

Even Nirmal Dillon and, perhaps as a surprise, Donald Ashbee.

This is the year the sport hopes to gain a grandeur the Inter-City League has neglected. The inter-locking schedule with four Eastern teams is "in the finalizing stages" although a number of problems still must be ironed out.

DON ASHBEE

The old B.C. league has embraced Portland, and the jet-age promises to bring teams from Montreal, Toronto, Peterborough and Detroit into Memorial Arena. And, hopefully, Tom English is expected to add class and vibrancy as the Inter-City League's new commissioner.

All in all, these are some of the reasons Victoria fans should have been looking forward to a new season with an air of expectancy, if not optimism.

That hasn't been the case. The rumor mill has been grinding out notes of a pessimistic nature. If you believe them, Victoria will be most fortunate to field a team in the new National group.

Nirmal Dillon, one such note said, was heading for Vancouver.

Hard on the heels of his greatest Inter-City League campaign, Bill Munro was shaking his interest in the Shamrocks for senior "B" ranks.

Ed Kowalyk, Jack Showers, Billy Gray and Ron Jay also were fading out, according to other notes.

Dorman, spokesman for the Shamrock executive, doesn't think much of the rumors.

"It is true Nirmal was contemplating a move to Vancouver," Dorman said Friday. "There was a job factor involved, but I think that is in the process of being solved and I can safely say he'll play for Victoria again."

There also was a suggestion (but not from Dorman) that Nirmal did not relish the thought of playing against Ranjit Dillon, the big brother who led Shamrocks and the league in scoring last season and also was declared the circuit's most valuable player.

The rumors obviously carried a certain degree of fact because Dorman conceded that Munro's position had been clouded with doubt, but "that was aired in the same breath" that settled Nirmal's problems.

Ed Kowalyk will not retire and defence mate Jack Showers, teaching in Vancouver at the moment, intends to be available in June.

Dorman admitted that considerable doubt remains over the availability of Jay, Gray and forward Tom Collett. Employment problems, of varying nature, were ticked off.

The depletion will not be as extreme as the various stories signified.

Don Ashbee also provided a surprise.

A former playing-coach with Victoria and also living in Nanaimo, Ashbee showed up "just for the heck of it."

He hasn't played in the Inter-City League for four years, but there was a suggestion that he may attempt a comeback. The tip-off is in his physical appearance. He looks good.

Ashbee curled extensively and played "a lot of hockey" during the past winter. He even managed to play soccer.

If Don decides on a comeback, it is possible that the other Ashbee, brother Barry, may also return to Victoria. Barry now is embroiled in American Hockey League playoffs with Hershey Bears, and Dorman says the Shamrocks have made their pitch.

Barry was a league all-star three years ago, and would certainly be a big help.

If the remaining problems and doubts are cleared away, that expectancy may start to infiltrate the ranks of the fans. At the moment, there is no reason to panic.

Postponement of traditional opening games at Washington and Cincinnati has left the Pittsburgh-Houston clash Monday night in the Astrodome as baseball's 1968 season sendoff.

The presidential opener in the nation's Capitol, matching the Senators against Minnesota Twins, has been set back from Monday to Tuesday as a result of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Cincinnati, which traditionally opens the National League season at home, reset its Monday game against Chicago Cubs for Wednesday in compliance with mayor Eugene Reuhlmann's call for a Day of Commitment Monday in memory of the slain civil right champion.

At Houston, the Pirates will pitch veteran Jim Bunning against young Larry Dierker of the Astros. The game marks the managerial debut of Pittsburgh's Larry Shepard.

Coaching Debut

Five more first-year pilots—Luman Harris of Atlanta Braves, the New York Mets' Gil Hodges, Washington's Jim Lemon, Cleveland's Alvin Dark and Oakland's Bob Kennedy—bow in the following day and night as all the other clubs, except the Reds and Cubs, swing into action.

St. Louis' world champion Cardinals entertain Atlanta Tuesday night with World Series hero Bob Gibson set to pitch against Braves' right-hander Pat Jarvis.

Philadelphia's Chris Short and Los Angeles' Claude Osteen hook up in a left-handers' duel at Dodger Stadium and the Pirates meet the Astros for the second time at Houston in other NL arclight games.

Red Sox Stunned

The Mets send Tom Seaver, NL rookie of the year in 1967, against Giants' ace Juan Marichal in an afternoon opener at San Francisco.

Boston Red Sox, stunned by reports that slugger Tony Conigliaro's career is in jeopardy because of deteriorating vision, begin defence of their American League crown at Detroit, with southpaw Dick Ellsworth opposing Earl Wilson, The Tigers' 22-game winner.

President Lyndon B. Johnson is not expected to attend the delayed Washington opener. Vice-president Hubert Humphrey, an avid Twins' fan, could get the call to make the traditional first ball toss.

Chisox Bolstered

At Chicago, the White Sox, bolstered offensively by winter trades, pitch southpaw Gary Peters against Cleveland and right-hander Sonny Siebert. The Athletics, who have shifted from Kansas City to Oakland, open in Baltimore, with Catfish Hunter opposing the Orioles' Tom Phoebus on the mound.

California will start left-hander George Brunet in its road debut against New York Yankees and Mel Stottlemyre.

Cincinnati and the Cubs complete the cycle of season openers Wednesday with the Reds' Milt Pappas pitching against either Rich Nye or Joe Niekro of Leo Durocher's young Chicago staff.

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — Bob Beattie, 35, under whose leadership the United States rose to prominence in international ski racing, said Thursday this is his last season as head coach of the U.S. alpine program.

Rochester's Barlow Do-It-Yourself Guy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bob Barlow had his night in Rochester Friday, although nobody planned it that way.

The 32-year-old left winger was in on all four Americans goals in a 4-1 win over Hershey Bears for a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven American Hockey League semi-final.

The series resumes tonight in Hershey between the champions of the Eastern and Western divisions respectively.

In a quarter-final match Friday night, Quebec Aces also moved to a 2-0 lead, beating Buffalo Bisons 3-1 in their best-of-five set.

Barlow, a Hamilton native who turned pro with Cleveland Barons of the AHL for the 1958-59 season, managed only three shots on goal Friday but made them all count as well as assisting on a goal by Bryan Hextall.

Mike Mahoney was the only Hershey marksman before the crowd of 7,060.

Serge Bernier scored once and set up Simon Nolet with the game winner at Quebec. The third Quebec goal was scored by Jim Johnson with Buffalo a man short in the third period.

JAMBOREE AND JUMP-BALL

Noise out-gunned scoring by a wide margin as Friday jamboree provided fitting climax to inaugural season for Richmond Community Basketball League. Results of 10 games at Lansdowne Junior High included a pair of scoreless draws and general delight among players in 8-12 age bracket who competed in community-planned league. There's testimony in expressive action above. Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis presented final awards. Second league is being planned in Willows area next season.

TIMES OPEN GOLF DRAW

First-round matches in the annual Times Vancouver Island Open golf championship will be played Sunday at Uplands with players starting at the following times:

HANDICAP DIVISION

8:00 a.m.—G. Tregear (CH) vs. Hugh Reid (U); N. E. Parsons (GV) vs. Burke Cuppage (V).

8:32—Geoff Hill (GV) vs. J. H. Hall (GV); G. Williams (RC) vs. B. Wilson (RC).

CHAMPIONSHIP

10:00—Fred Ranson (RC) vs. Rick Bath (GV); Roger Bishop (U) vs. Laurie Carroll (GV).

Gray is the 18-year-old Oak Bay High student who plays Wakeham in the first, match-play round of the Times Vancouver Island Open championship.

Medallist at Royal Colwood last week, Wakeham has the golfing credentials that provide good reason for apprehension. The professional is a two-time winner of the Daily Times Trophy and last year won the Ontario Open.

The Wakeham-Gray set-to is one of 16 first-round matches scheduled Sunday at Uplands. Another 16 head-to-head encounters in the handicap division start the parade off the first tee at 8 a.m.

But if Gray harbors apprehension, some of his supporters feel Wakeham might have the look of surprise after their day's work is done.

Reigning city junior champion, Gray plays to a one handicap and will be treading his home course. He has better-than-average accuracy off the tee.

More important, Gray "thinks" a good game.

"He doesn't stand up and flail away," said Uplands pro Johnny Wren. "Mike seems to be a good thinker, and I certainly won't be surprised if he gives Wakeham a good fight."

Rain Helps Boros To Start Afresh

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Julius Boros remained in a tie with Billy Casper for the lead in the $137,500 Greater Greensboro open golf tournament as second round play began anew today, thanks to Boros' old pal, the weather man.

Each had a six-under-par 65, fashioned in Thursday's opening round to lead Al Geiberger by a stroke. Then the rain come.

The second round was reset for today with a 36-hole windup arranged for Sunday to make up the lost time.

Casper slogged around the soggy 7,034 yards of the Sedgefield country club before the end came Friday. He fashioned a fine 68, three under par, for a 133 total and the early lead.

Boros, meanwhile, started with a two-stroke penalty when he was four minutes late for his 12:48 p.m. date at the first tee.

After a 40-minute wait the round was cancelled and all the scores went down the drain.

A chief casualty of Friday rain was Jack McGowan, whose 66, best score of the day, was rained out. It gave him a 135 total and second place behind Casper before the cancellation.

ASCOT, England (AP) — Sir Ivor, Ireland's American-bred favorite for the English Epsom Derby and the 2,000 Guineas Classics, won the seven-furlong Ascot 2,000 Guineas Trial Friday.

Jockey Lester Piggott brought Sir Ivor home, a half-length ahead of Dalry. Mountain Call was third, six lengths back.

PENTICTON LEADS JUNIOR PLAYOFF

Referee Felled by Egg

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Penticton Broncos took a commanding 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven British Columbia Junior Hockey League final series Friday by clipping Kamloops Rockets 6-4.

The win before a record 2,600 fans gives Penticton a chance to wrap up the series tonight on home ice and move into the B.C.-Alberta final against Edmonton Movers.

Jack Taggart and Ed Hays were the Broncos' big guns as each scored twice. Other Penticton scorers were Wayne Schaab and Adrian Blais. Marv Ferg paced the Rockets with a pair and Jerry Janicki and Bill Tarnow added the others.

Doug Thompson was another standout for the league-champion Broncos as he kicked out 39 shots and ruined many Rocket scoring opportunities in the third period when the teams were deadlocked 3-3.

Tempers flared in the penalty-studded game late in the third period as four players became embroiled in a wild brawl. A total of 28 penalties were called during the contest, 15 to Penticton.

Referee John Culos of Kelowna was felled by an egg thrown from the stands in the third period and injured his leg in the fall. He was taken to hospital and treated and released. RCMP are investigating.

RANGER-HAWK CONTEST HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Three of the four National Hockey League semifinal series resume tonight, but it was announced the fourth showdown—scheduled Sunday—has been postponed to honor slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King.

Decision to postpone the nationally-televised (CBS) game in New York—between the Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks—was made by the Rangers today. New York won the opener 3-1.

Los Angeles Kings, St. Louis Flyers and Montreal Canadiens all hope to make it two straight as the other best-of-seven series resume tonight. Minnesota North Stars, beaten 2-1 in the opener, are back at Los Angeles; Philadelphia Flyers, shut out by Glen Hall, 1-0, are at home to St. Louis, and Boston Bruins (2-1 victims) will be in Montreal.

Tonight's Montreal-Boston game will be televised on the CBC national network (channels 2 and 6), starting at 6:30 p.m. PST.

Runners Blocked In Extra Session

SEATTLE (CP) — Bob Courcy's backhand shot with 6:18 gone in the sudden-death overtime Friday night gave Seattle Totems a 3-2 win over Phoenix in the first game of their best-of-seven semi-final Western Hockey League playoff series.

It was Courcy's second goal of the night and came on a pretty play. Courcy came from behind the Phoenix net, spun around and shot the puck low and to the far side of the net.

There were only four minor penalties called in the game—all in the first period.

KNUDSON'S world of GOLF

By GEORGE KNUDSON

Sitting in the hot sun with a cool drink two weeks ago in Pensacola, I thought back to the days in Winnipeg, before I joined the pro golf tour.

This week the tour moved to Greensboro, N.C. — warm weather again — and already I'm well into the season. But the folks back in Canada, especially those in the colder regions, are just starting to swing their clubs.

So, if you're going to try to pass on a few golfing tips, you might just as well start at the beginning. And, for the folks at home, preparation is the big thing now.

WEAR A GLOVE INSTEAD OF TAPE

It's funny about people; most of us want to grab our driver and see how far we can hit the first day out to practice. But don't. Stick to the short irons at the beginning and as the week progresses, work up to the long irons and finally, the woods.

Your hands will be soft after the long layoff, just as mine were when I rejoined the tour in early January. By wearing a glove on a practice tee and sticking to the short irons at the beginning, chances are your hands won't blister as badly.

Get to know your swing a bit before tackling the woods.

Some of you may have spent time at golf schools over the winter, hitting balls into nets. The real value in that is to get your golfing muscles in tone.

Remember — work up gradually this week and next week, from Augusta, we'll start working on the course.

EMPRESS TOURNEY

Crowshaw Back To Defend Crown

Both finalists of last year are back, and 104 other challengers for the Empress Hotel golf championship are ready to follow them off the tee Monday.

Returning to defend the men's championship is Ken Crowshaw of Calgary, a former Port Alberni resident. Also returning is Gordon Mullin, a lefthander from Regina who was beaten 2 and 1 in the 1967 final.

Following are Monday's starting times:

HOLLAND TOPS TENPIN LIST ON 680 SERIES

Art Holland fired the second-highest trundling total of this season's contest to capture the men's tenpin award in the 24th week of the annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition.

Rolling in the Victoria Senior League at Mayfair Lanes, Holland blasted the pins for a three-game series of 680 on games of 211, 233 and 246.

Highest tenpin total of the 27-week event was rolled in the previous week by Henry Loo, who fashioned a blistering 696 series.

Estevan Takes Western Crown

FLIN FLON (CP) — Estevan Bruins downed Flin Flon Bombers 3-2 Friday to capture the Western Canada Junior Hockey League title. Bruins took the series four straight after an opening-game tie.

Estevan now meets the winner of the St. James-Westfort series. Winner of that will play the winner of the Alberta-British Columbia final for the western championship.

Russian Athlete Tops Swim Mark

TALLINN, U.S.S.R. (AP)—Soviet Swimmer Vladimir Kosinsky has bettered the listed world record for 200-metre breaststroke with a time of two minutes 27.4 seconds. It was four-tenths of a second faster than the mark set by Ian O'Brien of Australia at the Tokyo Olympics in 1964.

Olympic Group Looking At Ahearne's New Code

TORONTO (CP)—Controversial J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said Friday he has drawn up a proposed new code of amateurism that is under "serious consideration" by the International Olympic Committee.

Ahearne, vice-president of the IIHF and that body's European president, is visiting Canada as a guest of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"Any change is up to the IOC," Ahearne said. "But while no one has fought with president Avery Brundage more than I have, this time he seemed to be more receptive than ever."

Stressing that the Ahearne definition of amateur is "only a proposal but one that's being given serious consideration," Ahearne, an Irishman from England, outlined his code this way:

CHECKS PLANS

"One who is not party to a contract the basis of which is as above."

Such a code, Ahearne said, would not preclude a professional in one sport from competing as an amateur in some other sport.

Ahearne was brought to Canada by the CAHA to look over preparations for the 1970 world hockey tournament, the principal section of which is to be played in Montreal and Winnipeg.

Said Gordon Juckes, CAHA executive director:

"We brought Ahearne over to take advantage of his experience—he has seen 28 world championships—and for political reasons. He is the key to hockey in Europe.

CONSIDER PLANS

"We hope to get our arrangements, schedule and program approved at the October meeting of the IIHF directorate in Prague. Bunny will have seen what we are doing and be in a good position to back us up."

Ahearne said he was impressed by what he had seen in Winnipeg during the last five days and said "what you are doing here will be the key to all future world championships."

He said the CTV television network had paid $125,000 for Canadian rights to the world championships of 1969 and 1970.

Juckes said the advance ticket sale in Winnipeg, which will play host to the last half of the 1970 tournament, so far is "$170,000 with two years still to go."

GORDON JUCKES

ULTIMATUM ISSUED

Juckes Charges Pact Violations

TORONTO (CP) — An ultimatum for the United States Amateur Hockey Association to live up to its agreements or face sanctions under international regulations was issued Friday by Gordon Juckes, executive-director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Juckes, in an interview, said "the CAHA has had three different agreements with the AHA and they haven't lived up to any of them."

"Under the present agreement, they have until May 1 to renegotiate. If we haven't some assurance from them by then that they will recognize Canadian releases and transfers, we will terminate the agreement. They will then have to May 20, the date of our annual meeting in Windsor, Ont., to impress our delegates with their sincerity or we go our own way."

Juckes said the U.S. hockey body had not been enforcing the Canada-U.S. agreement which calls for Canadian hockey players to have a release and a transfer from a Canadian club before moving to a team in such leagues as the International or Eastern hockey leagues in the U.S.

"We're prepared to take a stiff stand," Juckes said. "This could result in the CAHA going strictly by the rules of the International Ice Hockey Federation which calls for 18 months residence in a country before a player could play for a team in that country.

"This could have the effect of the IHL or the EHL being declared outlaw."

Juckes said the IIHF ruling is enforced between most countries "but we made an exception in the case of the U.S."

Morgan, Burrows Selected

Three Vancouver Island players have been named to perform in the second annual B.C. high school all-star basketball game.

Selects from the Greater Vancouver area meet stars from the rest of the province in the game at Simon Fraser University.

Dave Morgan and Don Burrows from Oak Bay's B.C. championship team and Gerry Plester of Chemainus were named to the provincial squad.

Five Pin Meeting

Annual meeting of the Victoria Five Pin Association will be held Sunday at Mayfair Lanes. Officers for the coming year will be elected during the session, which starts at 1:30 p.m.

It Takes a Super-Sleuth To Restore Century-Old Manor

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Alterations have been made under different owners—walls taken out, fireplaces blocked up and ceilings plastered over.

And in the case of Craig Flower Manor (in the early invoices the name was spelled as two words) the task is complicated by the lack of documentation on the history of the building.

How do you distinguish the original framework from the additions? How do you establish what has been destroyed in the process of time?

It is a slow and arduous task but a satisfying one for local architect, Peter Cotton.

Mr. Cotton was placed in charge of the project after federal and provincial governments agreed in January, 1967, to spend $300,000 restoring the Manor and buying up some of the land around it.

Because the history of Craigflower was scanty, Mr. Cotton studied the better documented buildings of Oregon.

To "bone up on the only area that would bear much comparison," he went to Portland's Historical Centre. As part of the Historical American Building Survey, a depression program designed to help architects, blueprints were made of all pre-Civil War buildings.

"Eight Oregon buildings out of 50 were comparable to Craigflower," says Mr. Cotton. "Of these, three were still standing and two had been restored.

"They gave me a lot of clues. In the drawings you could see what was common to the period and also what to expect in the way of variations.

"So I was able to examine Craigflower and establish the original pattern. Then I'd look suspiciously at anything that didn't conform and try to interpret it."

Interpretation had to play a major role in the restoration for Mr. Cotton had to rely for documentation on invoices of the Hudson's Bay Company and a few photographs.

"Judging from the record found of the schoolhouse built across the Gorge at the same time, I wonder if records for the Manor hadn't been abstracted at some point," he says.

We do know that Craigflower Manor was one of a group of farmhouses built by the Puget Sound Agricultural Company, a subsidiary of HBC, to keep the Fort at the southern tip of Vancouver Island, self-supporting.

The word Craig means "neck" in Gaelic and the site, on a neck in the waterway today near the junction of Craigflower and Admirals Roads, was probably chosen because it offered a sheltered inlet for boats coming up the Gorge.

The Company owned lands on both sides of the waterway and the connecting bridge was necessary as part of a roadway that would link other HBC farms at Langford and Lake Hill.

Scotsman Kenneth Mackenzie was chosen to serve as bailiff or general manager of Craigflower farm.

Mackenzie, his wife, six children, and 25 families of experienced laborers and artisans, arrived in Esquimalt Jan. 15, 1853, on the sailing ship Norman Morrison.

To Mackenzie's dismay, the promised farmhouse had not been built and the group had to spend several months first in a barn and later in cottages while the Manor was erected.

The school and bridge connecting the two promontories were completed first. Mackenzie finally moved into the Manor in May, 1856.

Craigflower farm was originally believed to have composed 1,000 acres of land. Dimensions of the Manor house were 25 ft. by 50 ft. with 12 rooms, six on the ground floor and six above.

Mackenzie later erected a sawmill, brick yard and bakery. But because he was constantly sending to England for more expensive goods, the Manor proved to be more costly than the HBC had bargained.

Also it became increasingly difficult, once the gold rush started, to hold the men who had been hired to work the farm.

Finally Mackenzie was disposed of in 1866. Then the Manor was leased to a series of owners who made minor alterations until 1923 when the HBC took it over as a recreation centre.

That lasted only a year and then a philanthropist named Newton ran it as a girls' camp until 1936.

At this point the property was sold to a man named Christie who used the house as an annex for a motel he had built on the land. He contributed to its alteration by putting in five bathrooms.

The Manor then passed into the hands of three other people and finally Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Thompson acquired it in 1962.

They realized the value of the building, restored it as best they could, filled it with period furniture and opened it to the public.

When the restored Manor reopens, hopefully at the start of the tourist season, Mrs. Thompson will be there as curator.

Some interesting questions have come to light as a result of Mr. Cotton's undertaking.

There is a definite difference in structure between the ground floor and the second floor.

But the second floor has been built by a method called stud frame that is similar to construction used today. However at Craigflower the beams used to support the frame are medieval in their heaviness.

Although there is not much conclusive evidence, Peter Stokes, a private consultant with the federal government who visited Victoria recently, has suggested that the Manor was perhaps originally conceived as a one-storey house but while under construction was extended to two.

Christie later put in phoney beams and columns to make the architecture look 'Olde English'. "We stripped them away," says Mr. Cotton, "to leave the original classical revival building."

Craigflower is an example of the Renaissance revival of interest in Greek and Roman architecture.

"It was brought to North America by merchants and plantation owners and influenced a great many buildings in the States.

"You can see the effect of the Greek-Roman revival in the shape of the building, the careful spacing of window heads, the classical pedimented entrance way, the moldings on the doors.

"But one of the peculiarities of Craigflower that is not found in any Oregon architecture are some original Gothic revival details. You have a Gothic arch at the front door, very peculiar little Gothic windows on the jail (used for miscreants overnight because of the distance from the fort) and two little Gothic fireplaces."

Mr. Cotton believes these touches to be the work of Mackenzie who evidently had a free hand overlaying his own impressions on typical HBC work.

Mr. Cotton has discovered an interesting comparison between Craigflower and Gov. Douglas' house which used to stand at the site of the nearly completed Provincial Museum.

"Douglas' house looked like a Regency building with a stucco finish but from studying the demolition photographs, you can see that it is very similar to Craigflower. So I expect Mackenzie had been busy keeping up with the Douglases."

Mr. Cotton also discovered that the large room on the ground floor now known as the kitchen was in fact originally partitioned into a series of small rooms—pantry, storeroom, office.

The marks of the partitions can be found on the original floor and on the ceiling. They indicate a series of wide doors (necessary because of the large crinolines worn by the women).

By examining the floor markings it was also possible to tell exactly where the pantry counter had been—a small area had been worn away from people standing and working there.

The downstairs fireplaces at Craigflower turned out to be later alterations, By studying charred marks on the jutting edge of a wall in the parlor, Mr. Cotton realized the original fireplace was set squarely in the corner, not at an angle like the present one.

He took away the brick and discovered the original as he had predicted. In one bedroom upstairs he also found an old fireplace that illustrated perfectly the union of classical and gothic.

It had a gothic arch with classical reeded columns. Other fireplaces had been either bricked up or plastered over—all were restored.

By scraping away at the red paint on the sashes of the Manor, he found that their original color was white. And when vandals broke some of the old windows, a search was made for exactly the right kind of old glass to replace them.

The staircase of the Manor dates back to the original building. The balusters which vary in design were turned by hand—the railing is made of pieced-together bits of arbutus wood.

A study of the jail at the back of the building revealed it had also been used as a larder. Mr. Cotton intends to leave the chewed mouse holes in the corners of the shelves exactly as he found them.

Examination of photographs taken near 1860 reveal that the jail's sloping roof was actually a flat one. It will be restored.

Photographs have also led Mr. Cotton to believe that a scullery was once attached to the Manor. "The photographs have helped us to determine the form it should take but we've had to invent all the interiors."

The stones of the original foundation which had been removed from the outside bottom edge of the house to form a retaining wall have been returned. They will help to cover up concrete block piers that were set up at a later date.

Mr. Cotton also plans to restore the acreage around the Manor into semi-meadow. "I want to keep it very simple although there is a little archeology I'd like to do.

"There was another building behind the house probably a milkhouse or laundry. In photographs you can see a kind of outline; there are foundation marks on the grass and we have discovered masses of broken pottery."

What about interior furnishings for the Manor? Mr. Cotton has an album of samples of wallpaper showing in what room each was found and how far each was from the bottom layer.

There are more than 60 examples. In the parlor, he discovered some original blue-flowered wallpaper hung, strangely enough, upside down. He plans to put glass over any large patches from the period.

Fixing the period to be restored out of the 10 years Mackenzie spent in the house is a problem.

Carolyn Case, curator of the history department of the Provincial Museum, who is working with Mr. Cotton on the furnishings, says the change between when the house was erected and when Mackenzie left is enormous.

In 1856 there was little beyond the fort and an Indian encampment.

STUDY OF OLD PHOTOGRAPH led to new reconstruction of scullery that was once attached to Manor. Interior had to be invented by Mr. Cotton because of lack of original documentation.

By 1866, after the Gold Rush, there was an influx of merchants and importers.

Mr. Cotton will probably aim at the end of the period because it gives more scope to the furnishings but Miss Case would still like to see some rooms bare of wallpaper.

"We have no record of the purchase of wallpaper; though we do know they had plaster. But then it is the same problem, we just don't have all the records."

Mr. Cotton has sent samples of the bottom layers to the Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art which has a wallpaper museum.

"Hopefully they will be able to indentify them, date them and perhaps tell me the manufacturer's name and if any is being reproduced today."

Rugs and curtains will also have to be reproduced. At the moment Mr. Cotton has a woman weaving some curtains using a very old technique.

As for the actual furniture, it was sold at auction in 1933 after the Mackenzie family had lived for many years at Lakeview.

Mrs. Thompson amassed a great deal of furniture, some of the right period but much of a later date. However, the Provincial Museum does have pieces appropriate to the time.

Mr. Cotton also hopes to receive gifts of some of the pieces bought privately at the auction.

Miss Case discounts the fact that Mackenzie brought ornate pieces with him on the Norman Morrison. "There is no record of it but we do know he brought a complete saw mill. With the families aboard and the trade goods for the HBC, it seems unlikely there would have been room for the furniture as well.

"We do know that whenever anyone went home to England, Mackenzie bought much of their furniture.

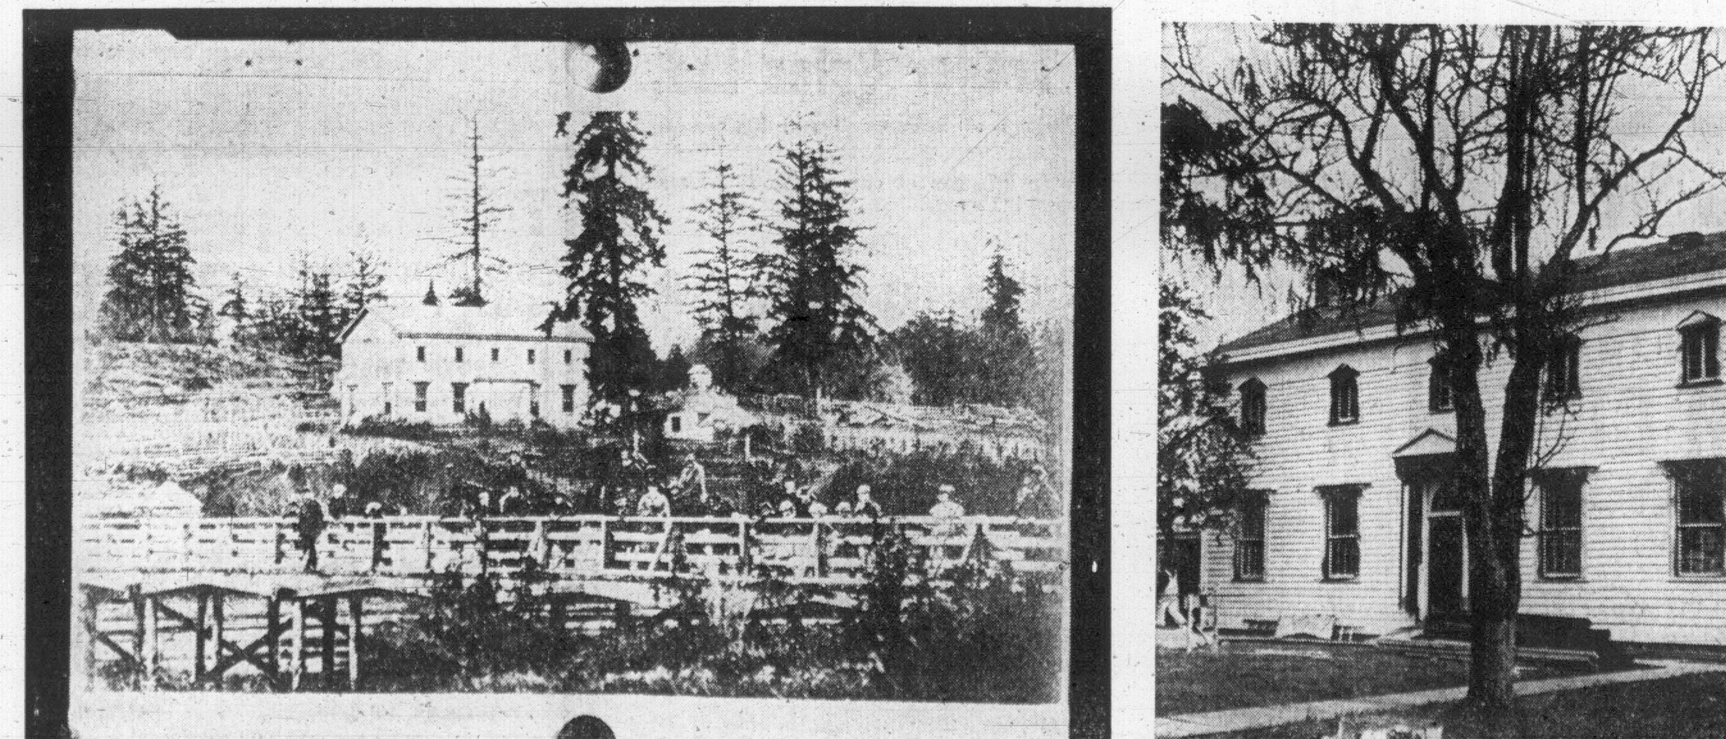
"Many of the pieces in the house can stay—the clocks and a few of the chairs are of the period—but the rest will go to the Provincial Museum to be replaced by pieces that were not in Craigflower but are appropriate to the period."

The smaller furnishings are less of a problem because of what modern archeology has turned up—old skates, candleholders, an iron, hand-made nails, bottles.

But both Miss Case and Mr. Cotton are determined Craigflower will not be just an exhibit.

"We want it to look like a place that was actually lived in," says Miss Case. "Although the placing of the furniture was traditional to their home in Scotland, the Mackenzies had to make do with less.

"And with six children and laborers probably tracking mud in all the time, it was definitely a farmhouse, not a showplace."



REAR VIEW OF MANOR circa 1860 showing old Gorge bridge contrasts sharply with front view of restoration today.

. . . first since 1914

Victorian Heads Navy League

Denis W. Brown, 4534 Duart Road, was elected national president of the Navy League of Canada at its annual meeting in the Hotel Vancouver.

Mr. Brown is the first Victorian to head the league since Sir Clive Phillips-Wolley, who was knighted for his Navy League activities in 1914.

Mr. Brown's affiliation with the league goes back to Second World War years when, as a naval officer, he served as area officer for Royal Canadian Sea Cadets in the Winnipeg area.

Since returning to the teaching profession (Mr. Brown heads the audio-visual aid program of the Greater Victoria School Board) he's served the Navy League as branch president, Vancouver Island division president, and national vice-president.

Mr. Brown assumes the office formerly held by T. E. Waddington, Edmonton.

First vice-president is L. D. McMurray, Winnipeg; second, D. D. Anderson, Halifax. Also elected as vice-presidents are Capt. F. R. Base, Toronto; S. G. Coombs, Edmonton; J. E. Koyl, Cooksville, Ont. and E. Perry, St. John's, Nfld.

Mr. Koyl also heads the national cadet program. Mrs. George A. Dufour, Victoria, is in charge of the national Navy League wrenette program.

R. C. G. Wilson, QC, of Toronto, as chairman for Royal Canadian sea cadets, reports that unification of sea, army and air force cadets has not resulted in waning interest in the movement.

Instead, a record figure of 12,800 sea cadets was reported in January of this year. There are 177 corps across Canada, manned by a faculty of 1,042 officers.

At the two-day meeting, Col. A. F. Banville, director of cadets, emphasized that the new structure of the cadet program had made no difference in the status of cadets. The teen-age cadets' training is planned mainly with the idea of producing good citizens and in no way, makes them part of the Canadian Armed Forces.

This statement was made in answer to Navy League officials who feared that the new cadet structure would in future lead to military commitment of the cadets.

Marijuana Also Crime For Wealthy

VANCOUVER (CP)—A form of inverted snobbery that drew a distinction between a law for the rich and a law for the poor was criticized Thursday by Magistrate Les Bewley.

He made the comment after hearing character witnesses appearing for George McLeod, 18, who was jailed for four months on a charge of possessing marijuana.

Mr. Bewley said he was not criticizing the accused's father, Rev. Dr. William S. McLeod, or other witnesses who spoke on the youth's behalf in rejecting a plea for an extended suspended sentence.

"It does no good and it's no help to young people to say that this boy has no criminal tendencies and comes from a good home," he said.

"The simple fact is that there is no such thing as a criminal except a person convicted in a court of law of an indictable offence.

"There seems to be a form of inverted snobbery abroad in the land to the effect that upper-middle cass people, or students, or middle class people, or boys brighter than other boys are not criminals if they commit criminal offences.

NO DIFFERENCE

"This is nonsense. If you break the law in relation to marijuana you are a criminal.

"There is no difference between you and a safecracker," he told the minister's son.

Court was told the youth was arrested after two RCMP undercover agents saw him ask for a quantity of marijuana and then give $5 to a woman to buy the drug.

'Experiences Have Not Deterred You'

A Toronto man who pleaded guilty in central court last week after a spree of writing bad cheques admitted Friday another 14 charges pressed by Vancouver police.

In all he faced 24 counts of false pretences under $50 and two counts of obtaining food and lodgings by fraud, all incurred over a period from Aug. 4 until Jan. 4.

Claude Belanger, 25, was sentenced to 18 months in jail on the false pretences charges and six months on the lodgings by fraud charges. The sentences were to run concurrently.

Magistrate William Ostler told Belanger:

"It is apparent you have carried out a deliberate program of living as well as you can at other people's expense."

ON BOND

The accused was still on a two-year bond to keep the peace from the city of Montreal when he committed the offences.

"It is clear these past experiences have not deterred you," Magistrate Ostler said.

Belanger had written all the cheques—24 of them—at T. Eaton Co. stores in Victoria and Vancouver. He purchased goods at night and returned them for cash refunds the next day when a different sales staff was on duty.

The 12 cheques written in Victoria—using two aliases and two non-existent bank accounts—totalled more than $350.

The cheques written in Vancouver totaled about $335.

Belanger had also run up a bill of $101.10 at the Hotel Georgia in Vancouver between Dec. 22 and 30, and a bill of $192.40 at the Hotel Vancouver between Dec. 28 and Jan. 4.

He left both hotels without paying the bills. He was arrested by Victoria police in a city hotel.

Ship Dodge Blasted By Peer

LONDON (CP)—Ted Hill's mates in the boilermakers union all said he'd shake up the House of Lords when he became Baron Hill of Wivenhoe late last year. Ted didn't disappoint them when he made his maiden speech in the Lords Wednesday.

Lord Hill—known as Terrible Ted when he bossed the Society of Boilermakers, Shipwrights, Blacksmiths and Structural Workers from 1948 to 1963—joined in a discussion of the shipping business.

Blasting shippers whose vessels fly flags of convenience, such as Liberia or Panama, to avoid taxes, the 68-year-old Cockney peer declared:

"I say any such shipowner is a rascal of the first magnitude, making no contribution to the well-being of the sea or his own nation."

The flags-of-convenience ships, he told his fellow peers, "are like mongrel dogs going around the world cocking their legs in other people's countries."

Warriors Seek Help From China

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Fierce, proud Naga warriors who have battled for more than 20 years for independence from India now are turning to China for help, the Press Trust of India has reported.

In a dispatch from Kohima, in the high Naga hills near the Burmese border, the agency said the "Nagaland federal government" of President Mhasieu has sent a delegation to China to work out details of Communist Chinese recognition of the Naga nationalists and arms supplies. The report quoted sources close to the nationalists.

But the report also said that Nagas are split over Chinese aid. A breakaway army group led by Gen. Kaito Sukhai warned it would bring serious consequences.

Nagaland, with its estimated 500,000 to 1,000,000 people, once fierce headhunters, was made the 16th state of the Indian union in December, 1963.

Water Safety Instructors Course Opening

The Canadian Red Cross has announced the water safety instructors' school will start April 21.

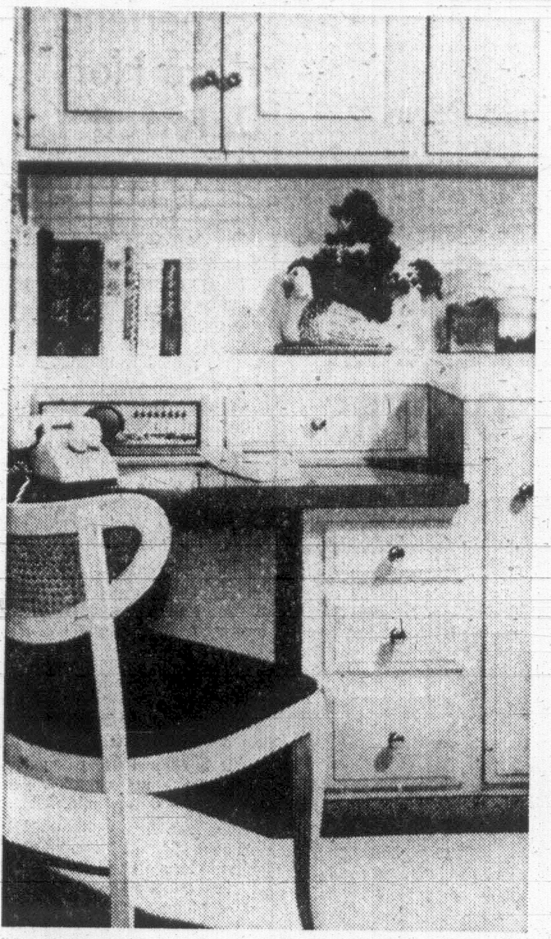
The five-week course will take place at Red Cross House and the Crystal Garden.

Classes will be all day Sunday and Wednesday evenings.

Prerequisites are Red Cross senior swimming award, Royal Life Saving Society bronze medallion, Red Cross leaders over 16 and Red Cross instructors over 18.

The fees are $10 for water safety instructor and $5 for water safety leader.

A requalification clinic will be held June 2.



CONVENIENT and neat, planning desk for recipe books gives harried housewives a "thinking corner." Theoretically, it should pay off in tastier meals, less hectic mealtimes.

'PLANNING DESK' ENDS CRAMMING

By PAULINE GRAVES

Even with the quantity and quality of frozen foods and dinners available to us now, homemakers still rely on guidance for menus and for out-of-the ordinary recipes.

In fact, with so much of the preparation for just everyday dishes now handled by manufacturers and food processors, the homemaker has more time to explore exotic and unusual combinations.

In so doing, she accumulates recipe books.

The problem arises of where to put them so they are out of the way, yet immediately available.

Just 9" above the desk surface, the ledge puts the books at the right height for easy reading of the titles and within instant reach for use on the desk top. Yet they are well out of the way of food preparation areas.

BOOK LEDGE

The tile that edges the work counters has a slight lip that prevents water from running from the counter onto the floor. This same lip continues between the counter and the book ledge and protect the books from spillage.

Even with the ledge, there is plenty of room for the desk top without its extending more than an inch beyond the adjacent counter, 14" to be exact, and it is 29" high.

Half of the space underneath the ledge is devoted to an intercom speaker and controls, and the other half to a drawer. All cabinets and the desk are of birch with a glazed finish.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Does purchased potting soil require sand and humus to be added before using, or should the potting soil be considered as the "loam" required in a homemade mix of loam, humus and sand?—Mrs. J. L., Esquimalt.

A. There seems to be no standard mix in the Victoria area, each supplier producing a more or less basic mix (excepting special mix for African-violets only) to which indoor gardeners add humus and—or sand according to the plants being potted.

It can be used as loam in potting mixes, but the amounts of humus and sand to add will depend on the amounts already in the purchased product.

Q. At what time should begonia tubers be planted outside for summer blooming? H.M.N., Saanichton.

A. Not until frosts and cool nights are over for your locality, usually around beginning of June. Having started the tubers in pots indoors in March, they would have their first blooms out by that time.

Q. When instructions say to sow seeds in hills does it mean the soil should be raised into mounds? K. O., Victoria.

A. In this instance, hills has the meaning of points in a line. English gardeners have a better expression when they say "sow at three foot stations."

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

Seedlings Rarely Outgrow Early Days of Privation

Jack

Leaving seedlings too long in the seed flat has disrupted many a home gardener's plans. Yet we all do it at one time or another. We sow the seeds early indoors to give us a headstart on the season, but this plan fails in its purpose when closely packed seedlings are let suffer from lack of food, creating a condition they rarely outgrow and destroying any chance of early blooming or fruiting.

There seem to be two main reasons why we amateurs leave seedlings so long before giving them attention. Firstly, our gardening is a spare-time hobby, limited mainly to weekends; secondly, garden writers have always told us to transplant "after two true leaves have formed."

When I saw commercial greenhousemen transplanting seedlings as soon as seed leaves had developed—"as soon as large enough to handle"—I lamented their lack of knowledge. Since then, however, I have proved the wisdom of their ways.

QUICKER RESULTS

Small seedlings have no large root system to be damaged when transplanted, the plants go ahead without check, and we have healthy, sturdy plants in a much shorter time.

While the seed is germinating, it is wise to prepare soil mixtures and the boxes needed for transplanting.

Like a growing child, these tiny plants have quite an appetite, but cannot assimilate the rich food tolerated by their elders.

A soil mixture of one part rotted compost or rotted leafmould to two parts good garden loam is ideal.

Sufficient sand should be added to keep the mixture open, because we are still dealing with tender roots which require an open soil and good drainage.

When completed, the mixture should feel spongy and light to the touch and be just moist enough to hold its shape when holes are made to receive the seedlings.

THEY GET LEGGY

The containers may be any suitable light wooden box cut to a depth of three inches, or standard greenhouse flats measuring on the outside 13 by 24 by three inches deep.

Three inches of soil in the bottom of a deep box is not recommended because the seedlings become leggy reaching to the light.

Some gardeners cover the cracks in the bottom of the flats with moss, while others line the inside with old (weathered) newspaper.

A better method, especially if the plants are to remain for some time, is to put one inch of rotted compost over the entire bottom, thus providing richer food for the plants when they are able to use it.

After filling the boxes with the soil mixture, press it firmly into corners and sides, then scrape off excess by running a straight-edged piece of wood from end to end.

FEW TOOLS NEEDED

A minimum of tools are required for this work. A small trowel with a blade about two inches wide is useful for lifting seedlings from the seed flat, or a 1½-inch putty knife may be substituted.

For making holes for seedlings an assortment of dibbers is handy. These can be 10-inch lengths of dowel rod varying in thickness from ⅜-inch to ¾-inch.

Most important is the point of the dibber. It should be slightly rounded (not sharply pointed) so as to make a broad hole to accommodate the young roots without bending.

Seedlings are usually set about two inches apart, giving 10 rows of six plants to a standard flat.

This work of transplanting seedlings is termed "pricking out" or "pricking off," and is done with amazing rapidity in large greenhouses. Average time for a flat is seven minutes.

FAILURES RARE

The operator removes a group of seedlings with trowel or knife, shakes them lightly to remove surplus soil, separates them, laying each one on a flat surface. The dibber is inserted into the soil and given a half-twist, and as it is removed the seedling's roots are lowered into the hole and the soil pressed firmly against the roots.

The process is repeated. When mastered, the operation is very fast, and it is rare that a seedling fails to survive.

A properly moist soil will not require watering for several days but shading will be needed from direct sun. A fine mist spray of clear water over the whole flat will keep humidity present under warm dry conditions indoors.

When seeds of mixed colors have been sown, be sure to select large, medium and small seedlings for pricking out in order to maintain the color range.

The largest seedlings are usually those nearest in color to the original wild plants, while smaller ones are often the desirable shades which have been bred into the strain of seed.

Many a seedsman has been blamed for selling a poor mixture, when the gardener has thrown away the best colors as he discarded the smaller, later developing seedlings.

WEEK'S WORK

Climbing plants as clematis, jasmine and wistaria may all be planted from containers now. Thorough preparation of soil is essential. Use compost, old manure and bonemeal, and provide shade for root area.

Feed daffodils and all narcissi as blooms fade. Remove old flower heads at once before seed pods develop.

Bedding plants in flats need daily attention. Give ample ventilation, and expose to full light all day as soon as the seedlings have recovered from transplanting.

Continue planting of all kinds of shrubs, especially if purchased in containers.

Seed of Globe Artichoke available locally. Sow indoors. Also sow seed indoors of summer and winter squash, pickling and table cucumbers.

Transplant tomato seedlings into separate small pots or plant bands. Do not buy plants too soon, for nights are still too cold outdoors for any of the frost tender crops.

The American dream has collided once more with the American fact, and a sad, violent, troubled union has gained what it could do very well without.

This is another martyr —Atlanta-born clergyman and freedom fighter Martin Luther King, Jr., who on Thursday went the way of Kennedy and Lincoln.

His weapons were reason, humanity, and a passion for freedom. He did not deal in violence, but ironically, it is the violent hordes of Black Power who will avenge him. If, as the evidence indicates, a white man killed him, his death will be added to the blood-debt chalked up by the Negro against his oppressors.

Dr. King would not have it that way. Even while he lived, however, his influence with his people had waned, and the balance had tipped toward the violence he detested.

Last summer saw the preliminary skirmishes in the open war of black against white. All the signs point to worse holocausts, worse riots.

Martin Luther King failed in his intent, but the Memphis bushwhacker's bullet has transmuted him into a symbol. His soul goes marching on, though not in a direction this great American would have chosen.

I think the United States is perilously close to an explosion. If it materializes, we will feel its shock-waves even here in cool green Canada, where escaped Negroes of an earlier generation found freedom at the end of the Underground Railway.

Dr. King had nothing material to gain from his involvement in his people's struggle. He was a well-educated churchman, recognized in his field, with a wife and family, and a comfortable life in prospect.

Had he so chosen, he could have enjoyed a genteel career well-removed from the trouble, the ignorance, the hunger and the brutishness of his country's Negro ghettoes. He had a touch of Harvard in his speech, and he held scholarship awards years before he won the Nobel Peace Prize.

He could have played it snug and safe. There was no need for him to place his life in daily jeopardy, and to die as Mahatma Gandhi of India did, an assassin's victim.

But he took the risks; and perhaps because of the courage and strong conviction in him, that course was required of him.

Even the name he wore made its demands upon him.

"Here I stand," said that earlier Martin Luther, his fate and his Reformation in the balance. "Before God, I can do no other."

What he sought was to win every American Negro the freedoms that are his by right, under his country's constitution. It was a grand vision, but it would seem now that the wrong done to a race demands a price more bitter than Martin Luther King would have exacted from his white compatriots.

We in Canada have not inherited the fruits of slavery. Our internal problems are of a different sort, and I think we will have solved them long before the United States emerges from its grievous trouble.

There's little help we can give to our neighbor and friend, but we can pity her in a situation rooted deep in the past.

It is true that in the century since the War Between the States, little was done until very recent years to right the Negro's condition. But the fact remains that white Americans of good will are striving to turn constitutional promises into honest fact. These deserve our sympathy.

We can not guess how and when the Negro will come to the end of a freedom road grown terribly wild and strange, since he abandoned Martin Luther King as his guide.

All we can be sure of is that the fires of riot are burning again, and the answer still blowing in the wind.

LEGISLATURE STILL REELING FROM BITTERNESS

Starts With Bomb . . . Ends With Bang

By JOHN MIKA

The legislature—which began with a spurious bomb threat when it opened 73 days ago—was to prorogue late today still reeling from the most violent explosion of bitterness in the session.

Speaker William Murray was forced into an apology and NDP caucus chairman Randolph Harding into an embarrassing admission after Premier Bennett, shaking with rage and almost screaming, accused Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) of a "double-cross" Friday night.

The chain reaction erupted early in the rare Friday night sitting—called reluctantly by Mr. Bennett at the NDP's specific request in order to wind up the session today—after Mr. Nimsick had shouted a denunciation of the premier, accusing him of deliberately trying to legislate by exhaustion.

The subsequent blowup was a fittingly symbolic climax to the longest session, and one of the most vituperative, in 66 years which was keyed by:

- Phil Gaglardi's slow-motion retreat from the highways portfolio under severe fire from the opposition in the house and his own party in closed caucus;
- A half-dozen rare public demonstrations including two unprecedented outbursts in the public galleries during which an angry PTA mother interrupted a speech by Education Minister Peterson and a chant by some 60 Gaglardi supporters who forced a clearing of the galleries for the first time in memory.

Today's hastily-arranged 81st sitting was expected to be anit-climactic although unusual because it is Saturday and Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will have to interrupt his visit to Courtenay for a school opening to fly back to the capital to read the closing speech, probably about 6 p.m.

SPEAKER MURRAY
. . . apologized

Friday's outbursts began shortly after the MLAs returned from supper for its 23rd night sitting and their fifth in a row which Mr. Nimsick said was outrageous programming by the government.

Several opposition and government members hurled verbal barbs across the floor with such intensity that chairman Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) pounded his gavel and asked:

"Can we have a little bit of order and sanity in the house?"

"I've had enough of that show," said Premier Bennett, referring to Mr. Nimsick's outburst, and walked out of the house.

A few moments later worried NDP MLAs held a conversation with speaker William Murray (SC—Prince Rupert) in the corridor outside the chamber.

The uproar in the house continued, and Mr. Nimsick accused the government MLAs of acting "like a bunch of school kids."

The house moved easily through the $126,093,492 estimates of the hospital insurance services branch and began debating the $40,134 estimates of the three women ministers without-portfolio when the premier returned to the house.

NDP members demanded some justification for the expense of paying "supernumeraries to the cabinet" who had not attempted to explain what their duties as ministers were.

And Mr. Strachan said it was an insult to the house and the taxpayers that Mr. Bennett should have added Phil Gaglardi as a fourth minister without portfolio during the session but had refused to ask the legislature's approval to add his salary to the vote.

Mr. Nimsick said the government was spending money frivolously to pay "propaganda ministers for a political machine."

Premier Bennett, beet red and swinging his arms, shouted full-lunged that he wouldn't stand for "this insult to all the women of this province.

"This is a double-cross," he roared. "The NDP is the party of the double-cross and I'll never trust them again."

"I ask for Mr. Speaker to make a statement to this house."

Speaking slowly but angrily, Mr. Strachan said:

"That is one of the most wild and irresponsible statements ever made by a premier of this province.

FUTURE OF ANCIENT Victoria West elementary school is uncertain as it is caught up with other school projects in a construction freeze. But model, examined here by pupils Lora Schellenberg and Michael Teeple, both 9, shows what school board plans would produce. At estimated cost of $674,000, project would mean virtually new school. Recent indications are department of education may approve building some additional classrooms on site, if revised plans meet approval.

FORCED TO LEAVE CANADA

'OFFICIAL PREJUDICE?'

Teacher 'Victim of Own Error'

By PETE LOUDON

A 27-year-old American who has been teaching at Craigdarroch School left Canada this morning at the request of the Canadian Immigration Department.

Geoff Winslowe, who had come here some months ago from Wesport, California, was the victim of an official prejudice against his goatee and moustache, one of his friends said today.

But an immigration official said Mr. Winslowe was a victim of his own error in taking work in Canada before he had official permission or landed immigrant status.

His friend, who was not identified, said Mr. Winslowe had excellent qualifications for his teaching post but he had been treated with suspicion by immigration authorities who "chose not to give him" permission to remain.

'HAD NO OPTION'

District administrator of Canadian Immigration here, Doug Cook, said, "We had no option. He's been asked to leave, but he has not been deported. It was a voluntary departure."

Mr. Winslowe was given until Sunday to leave voluntarily.

His compliance with the department request means he can still apply to enter Canada as an immigrant at a later date, said Mr. Cook.

Mr. Winslowe's acceptance of a teaching position here without permission from an immigration officer and without landed immigrant status violated regulations.

Because he broke the rule, special permission could not now be granted, said Mr. Cook.

Mr. Winslowe's friend said the U.S. teacher had not technically broken a regulation because he had made an agreement with Craigdarroch school to work without payment until his status here was legal, then his pay would be retroactive. This argument was not acceptable to the officials.

Craigdarroch school is an independent private school, opened 18 months ago and with a small enrolment.

The teaching philosphy behind it is to let youngsters discover and learn according to ability and interests.

Mr. Winslowe's friend said, "Today, he gave up. He decided to go quietly. He left with $900, a wife who is seven months' pregnant and an old car.

"He was catching a ferry for Port Angeles, but he had nowhere to go."

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me where I can obtain a card for entering movies under the "Golden Age" rule and how old must one be?
A.D.

A. The card is given to persons of pension age by the four Famous Players' theatres in the city — the Odeon, Capitol, Haida and Royal. To get a card, go to the office of one of the theatres. There is no fixed age limit. The card lets you in at children's prices and is recognized by Famous Players' theatres across Canada.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

80 Unionists Turn Out

Just over 80 trade unionists turned out this morning for a two-day educational seminar organized by the Victoria Labour Council.

Greatest interest was in two shop steward courses, under instructors Jack Groves, labor council president, and Ron Tweedie, a Canadian Labour Congress representative.

There were also courses on B.C. labor law, conducted by assistant secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour John McNiven, and parliamentary procedure, conducted by Dan Radford, regional education director of the Canadian Labour Congress. The sessions were at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

'WE FELT LIKE PUNCHING SOMEONE!'

City 'Tars' Mr. Pickwick And Two Artists Miffed

They presented City Hall with a statue Friday night and later saw it trundled away "in the back of an old truck with tar in it."

The pair, who wish to remain anonymous for the present, said in an interview the statue was the result of two months' work. It was a life-sized image of Dicken's Mr. Pickwick. Made of concrete and another substance, it stood on a pedestal and weighed a ton.

They had undertaken the work as an experiment with a new medium and "we wanted to bequeath it to someone." They left it on the steps of City Hall.

"We came by at 11 p.m. and saw some workmen pitching it on an old truck with tar etc., in it. And the statue was white. We felt like punching somebody."

They said they didn't reclaim the statue and don't know where it is now.

"But the whole thing was done in good humor and it wasn't offensive. We thought there would be less red tape if we just made it an anonymous gift. We're most offended that it was treated this way."

One of the artists said they would like to retain their anonymity until they know the city's reaction.

People who saw the statue thought it was sufficiently well done that it could have stood in Beacon Hill Park.

RIDICULOUS IDEA—MAYOR

'Police Won't Patrol Dances'

By JIM HUME

Mayor Hugh Stephen Friday termed "patently ridiculous" a request that city police be stationed at teen-age dances in the city.

He was replying to a letter from Jim Melsness, promotion manager for The Marquis, a local dance group.

Mr. Melsness, who also forwarded copies of his letter to other municipal leaders and all area police chiefs, said it is the duty of the police to be where trouble might be anticipated.

At present the police patrol the area in which a dance is being held but they do not station men inside the dance hall, neither do they enter the hall unless called in the event of trouble or advised that trouble is brewing.

Dance promoters usually hire their own inside patrol either from the ranks of commissionaires or by paying off-duty but uniformed police officers.

'PAY PROTECTION'

In his letter Mr. Melsness charged that by being forced to pay for protection the sponsors of young peoples dances are being penalized financially.

In calling for on-duty policemen to be present at dances, Mr. Melsness said he anticipated the objection that the police department was short-staffed.

"However, this is equally true of most other police departments and they have enough men to patrol their city dances. After all, isn't it logical that the police should be in the place where trouble is most likely to occur?

"Certainly the large number of fights and the amount of liquor consumed by minors at public dances in the past is convincing evidence that it is the police departments duty to be in attendance at these functions whether they are paid by the promoter or not."

NOT CONVINCED

The letter failed to convince Mayor Stephen, who is also the chairman of the police commission, that the police had a duty to chaperone private functions.

"It is no part of the police department's job to be running around attending every privately-sponsored function in the city," the mayor said. "It is patently ridiculous to expect the police to do so.

"These young people often amaze me. They are all for taking life in their own hands, they are all for rejecting adult supervision, they want independence—but they also want the public purse to sustain them at the first sign of a problem.

"Surely it is incumbent on anyone running a dance for a profit to provide the patrons of the event with the protection they are justified in expecting.

"I take the view that anyone who assembles people together, whether teen-agers or adults, is responsible for providing protection for those people."

Mayor Stephen said people running dances are in the same category as people who operate night clubs.

EMPLOY BOUNCER

"The night club employs a bouncer and calls the police only when it is essential," he said. "I think dance promoters must do the same. Surely these young people have enough initiative to find a way to keep trouble makers away from their events?"

Deputy police chief Ray Maitland said it would be impossible for the police to staff every privately sponsored dance in the city.

"If we do that we shall soon be requested to have a man on duty in the beer parlors," he said. "We deploy our men to the best possible advantage for the best protection of the public at large. I am sure the taxpayers would never go for the very heavy cost of providing the extra policemen required if we are to station an on duty man at every dance in the city."

HOSPITALS WILL TEST READINESS

Six ambulances, two station wagons, an army truck and 120 simulated casualties will descend on four Victoria hospitals April 22.

The casualties, artistically disguised as victims of an earthquake in Oak Bay, will test the readiness of hospitals which are already normally overcrowded.

The disaster exercise will be the largest ever held here and will simultaneously involve Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's, Veterans' and Resthaven Hospitals.

Backgrounding the exercise, sponsored by the hospitals, is a recent airliner crash at Vancouver which saw 90 per cent of the persons hurt sent to Richmond Hospital.

'CHAOTIC'

"The results were somewhat chaotic," states an instruction booklet prepared for the Victoria exercise.

The make-believe earthquake is scheduled for 7 p.m. at which time the "casualties" will be dispatched from War Amputees Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue.

Aim is to have all casualties treated and returned to the hall soon after 9:30 p.m.

Victoria city police will give prior instruction to all drivers on routes to the hospitals, traffic regulations and the use of sirens and flashing red lights. Police will also direct traffic at the hospitals. St. John Ambulance Brigade will provide stretcher-bearers for the exercise.

'Does Our Future Depend On Supernatural Force?'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Use of the word God in Canada's national anthem has been protested by the Humanist Fellowship of Victoria.

Humanists object to the substitution of "God keep our land glorious and free" for "O Canada, we stand on guard for thee."

"This is the first time God has been included in the words of our national anthem," says Humanist spokesman J. L. Brereton.

"The present wording, in straightforward English and as a single thought, acclaims a glorious country worth guarding. By contrast, the proposed new wording introduces a negative thought by means of an obsolete construction.

"The words, God keep our land glorious and free, will be obscure to most children and many adults. They suggest that, unless some vague supernatural force intervenes, Canada will slip."

Mr. Brereton suggests, if these words are included, Canadian children will become imbued with the idea that Canada's future "depends upon the goodwill of some supernatural force when, in fact, it rests with every young Canadian."

"The introduction of so ill-defined an idea as God reduces the value of the anthem even for those who profess the Christian religion. But, for thousands of Humanists, Indians, Eskimos, Buddhists, and Hindus who are also Canadians, it introduces a completely alien idea."

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Get into the spring spirit! . . .

Spring . . . from time immemorial . . . has been the season of the year when every woman wants to emulate the rest of nature and deck herself in new clothes . . . Who knows . . . maybe Eve started it all by picking herself a greener and shinier fig leaf in which to greet the vernal equinox! . . . If you've got that "certain" feeling . . . hankering after something new and lovely to wear . . . visit Wilson's and see their display of spring fashions . . . it's absolutely without peer . . . As a matter of fact, we've never seen Wilson's with as many exciting new things all at once . . . And of course the new surroundings don't hurt any either . . . everything can be shown to so much better advantage . . . There are dozens and dozens of new coats in every color, style and fabric you could possibly want . . . (some luxurious mohairs from England in white, turquoise and hot pink came in just as we were leaving the other day) . . . Suits have seldom been smarter . . . Some are 3-piece . . . others have the longer jacket. . . fabrics run the gamut of weight and texture . . . And do look at the big choice of smart raincoats . . . April, with its showers, is upon us, you know, and you're going to need one! . . . Actually, the styles, colors and fabrics are so attractive that you won't wait for drizzly days to don a Wilson raincoat! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Coats with a swashbuckling air . . .

We may have touched on the odd one of them before . . . but the Kaptain Kid Kollection (they really spell it this way, we kid you not . . . oops! pardon the pun) . . . now complete at the Madam and Eve Shop . . . is everything the youngsters mean when they apply the adjective "neat" . . Our own description would be "dashing" . . . romantic . . . exciting! . . . Collection consists of coats whose cut brings to mind the swashbuckling days of yore . . . One is navy with slightly A-line flair . . . two pleats in the back, wide lapels, gauntlet cuffs . . . white mother of pearl buttons on the double-breasted front and sleeves . . . A white taffeta scarf covered with ruffled lace fills in the neckline . . . size 11 . . . and a similar coat in a sunny yellow is size 13 . . . A 3-piece outfit, is made up of very fine grey flannel coat and skirt . . . the former with brown velvet facing on collar and buttons . . . and beruffled white crepe drip-dry blouse . . . size 11 . . . Another terrific grey coat in this collection has extra wide collar, lapels and cuffs of brown velvet . . . double row of buttons down front . . . ruffled lace scarf tucked in the neckline . . . It's one of a kind, size 7 . . . and is the sort of coat that would carry you right through the summer into fall . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

Jeanne Lanvin's collection was the gayest, most colorful and entertaining of the spring fashion shows in Paris.

Say Happy Easter with a new book . . .

One of the most difficult things we had to do last week was tear ourselves away from the Book Nook . . . and the enthralling new books fresh in from the publishers . . . "Airport" . . . from the pen of that master story-teller Arthur Hailey . . . takes you inside the hidden nerve centres that control a great modern airport . . . a tense, exciting tale which promises to become a national bestseller . . . "Voyageurs of the Air", by J. R. K. Main, is a "must" for anyone interested in aviation . . . it's the fascinating history of civil aviation in Canada . . . the saga of Canada's early pilots and the development of a vital industry . . . Two wildly funny books are "Rosy is my Relative" . . . first novel of noted author of books on animals, the famous Gerald Durrell . . . (Rosy is an elephant with a taste for strong drink!) . . . and "To England with Love" . . . a wickedly satirical book about the English, authored by David Frost and Antony Jay . . . A wonderful new cat book, lavishly illustrated, is Fernand Mery's "The Life, History and Magic of the Cat" . . . and "The Naked Ape," by zoologist Desmond Morris, is not to be missed . . . it's a most provocative, amusing and stimulating study of man . . . meaning US! . . . The Book Nook, 10 Centennial Square, 386-0813.

Smart new suits for pin-money! . . .

Usually we go flitting all over the place at Miss Frith's . . . darting like a humming bird to this section or that . . . there's just so much to look at and admire and when finances warrant it, to succumb to! . . . However, this week we were stopped cold by a whole section of suits whose price tags are so modest that we had to enquire whether, perchance, they hadn't made some mistake! Not so! For as low as $36 you can own as smart a little suit as you'd ever want to see . . . like the tailored, double-breasted model in lime green fortrel . . . fresh and springlike and terrifically versatile . . . and of course, washable! . . . Many of these suits are of fortrel and crimplene . . . the drip dry, easy-care fabrics which are such big fashion news this season . . . There's a smart navy 3-piece suit whose printed blouse has a curcular turn-down collar . . . also comes in turquoise, green or beige . . . An English crimplene knit in a turquoise, grey and mauve tartan print . . . A "Bonnie and Clyde" navy and white pinstripe suit with blouse of the same material . . . very striking! . . . Some delightful Venezia double knits which are made in Canada but borrow their styling from more expensive Italian knits . . . There's a big range of styles and sizes, so go see them for yourself at . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

If you're looking for a smart, comfortable shoe . . . in the middle price range . . . with up-to-the-minute styling to underwrite your new spring clothes . . . do go see the new Joyce shoes now on display at Munday's . . . New lasts for spring and summer have the broad toes, chunky heels and distinctive trims which are unmistakeably 1968 . . . A sporty pump called "Head Line" . . . in black, blue or white sweet kid, and black patent . . . has broad toe, comfortably high heel and perforated trim . . . "Square Knot" has a moccasin-type vamp, low heel . . . and comes in gay bright colors like light green, orange and yellow . . . as well as the neutral Irish oats . . . You'll like this one with your summer dresses . . . "Panama" is a light-hearted shoe with stack heel, interlaced leather trim on the high vamp . . . Irish Oats, platinum or white sweet kid . . . For dressier wear consider "Flamingo" which has an illusion height heel and bow trim . . . black or white patent, and bone calf . . . "Happy Time" is an up-dated version of one of last season's favorites . . . low-heeled pump with flat grosgrain bow . . . in navy, cinnamon or bone kidaline . . . And this season Joyce presents a brand new spectator pump . . . a perennial favorite for summer . . . in white with either brown or blue . . . These new Joyce shoes are priced at $16.95 and $17.95. Munday's, 1203 Douglas St, 383-2211.

GIRLS SEW FOR CONTEST

By Nona Damaske

Damaske

Can a contest have too many entrants? The three judges were inclined to think so as they pondered over more than 100 garments entered in last year's "Teen-age Sewing Contest."

Next week preliminary judging will take place for the 1968 "Teen-age Sewing Contest" presented by Eaton's in conjunction with Air Canada, McCall's Patterns and the Canadian Cotton Council.

Submission of entries is complete and again it looks like a tough assignment for the judges as contestants from all parts of Vancouver Island have sent in garments to this popular contest.

Dark-haired, 19-year-old Judi Dalrymple, 2930 Westdowne Road, was last year's winner.

Judging is based on the perfection of the garment and its suitability to the wearer. Simplicity of line was the keynote of the dress submitted by Judi. This simplicity allowed the fine workmanship and the excellent choice of fabric and color to be fully appreciated. Her becoming A-line shift was fashioned in sailcloth in shades of tangerine, acid green and purple. Prowess as a milliner was evident in the floppy brimmed sunhat of the same crisp fabric.

NATIONAL WINNER

In August the talented seamstress went to Montreal to compete in the national finals and much to our delight she was the grand prize winner.

The striped dress, the pictured pant suit and an ivory and brown late day dress were the three garments judged in the Eastern city. Judi spent a week in Montreal.

Judi is in her second year at the University of Victoria and will enter the University of British Columbia in September where she will work for a degree in home economics. Her hope is to major in textiles and perhaps teach in this field or work with a large textile or pattern company.

Summer plans are already well under way for this busy young lady. In August she and a university student friend will take advantage of her Montreal prize . . . a two-week trip for two to Hawaii. They will travel by Air Canada and stay at the Hilton Hawaiian Village.

HOLIDAY LESSONS

The balance of the holiday season will see Judi gaining more knowledge in her chosen field. She will take a course in pattern drafting from talented Ursula Redwood. This course will allow her to enter the world of fashion creation, and opens up the field of haute couture designing.

Judi is presently making a white hopsack dress to coordinate with her navy and white pant suit. Her next project is to use, for the first time, an original French pattern. This more complex late-day dress will be made in white wool.

This year the national finals are to be held in Vancouver with the grand prize being a week in New York at the Waldorf Astoria. While in New York the winner will be shown many aspects of the fashion field.

The winner of the Victoria contest will compete in Vancouver and will also go with other district winners to Toronto.

The public will be welcomed to Eaton's dining room on Friday evening, April 19, and Saturday afternoon, April 20, to see the final 30 garments modelled by the contestants.

'Desirable' Widow Seeks Decent Man

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What is a widow to do? I'm not ready for a rest home yet, being only 41 years old. I have two attractive, well-behaved children, a nice home, no debts, and a good steady income. No worries, except where to find a decent man who wants a decent woman.

I've been a widow for two years and have been told that I am "desirable." I started to date a year ago, and every man I go out with hands me the same line. ("What's one more slice off a loaf of bread that's already been cut?"—or words to that effect). If that doesn't work, I'm told that it's emotionally unhealthy for a woman who has been accustomed to a normal sex life to go without sex. Then they try to save my mental health by volunteering to provide me with a normal sex life. (Now it's therapy.)

Then there are the men who want female companionship, but they tell you on the first date that they don't want you to get "serious" as they don't want to get involved.

Have men always been this way, Abby? Or is this a new breed?

POPULAR WIDOW.

DEAR POPULAR: No, it's not a new breed. Such men have always been around, but your luck is unusually bad to have encountered them all in the first year. There are plenty of decent men in the world. You need new friends.

Confidential to "H" in Orange County: Don't ever be ashamed to admit you were wrong. It's one way of saying you're smarter today than you were yesterday.

Confidential to "Bewildered in Anaheim": A nice girl who is constantly approached with insulting propositions from strangers out to check her appearance. There is something wrong with her packaging.

When Rosemarie Cardot Wielded Her Skillet

THE WALLS CAME TUMBLING DOWN

If Monday's dinner is a 'first-timer' for the Gourmet Club of Victoria, it's also a new experience for their chef. Mme. Cardot ran a bar and restaurant on the French Riviera before coming to Canada. She's never cooked for a gourmet club before. (Bill Halkett photo.)

By PAT DUFOUR

For the first time in its three-year history the Gourmet Club of Victoria is permitting a woman to be present at one of its quarterly dinners. There's a catch, of course, she's going to have to cook it.

Mme. Rosemarie Cardot, who's been making Victorians' gastric juices gurgitate with the delicious dishes she creates at her Coq Au Vin restaurant in Bastion Square, is the first woman the club has allowed to tempt its collective tastebuds.

The 16-member club, led by president Dr. Vincent Smith, sounded the horns to let the walls come crumbling down because, as Prof. Derek Ellis explains, "Mme. Cardot comes from Normandy and is going to serve us a real French province meal."

If the meal to be served on Monday (the restaurant will be closed to all other guests) is typical of his country's cuisine I can almost forgive General de Gaulle for his overzealousness in promoting France. It could be we've mistaken his intentions and that he's simply interested in sharing the good things of life!

To set the right mood, members will gather at 7 p.m. for a wine-tasting session which will see them sampling three French red wines that are available in Victoria. To set the right Canadian atmosphere, the wines which will be served at the dinner which begins at 8 p.m. will come from Quebec and British Columbia.

Now for the menu. The first item, saumon Normande, will offer salmon, whole and deboned, cooked in a Normandy sauce. It will be followed by le coq au vin flambe au cognac. You guessed it . . . chicken laced with cognac.

Those of us who have tasted it will envy these male diners when they set to work on the next course, bouillabaise. This fish chowder, which first won fame in the south of France, bears little comparison to the hearty but simple fare with which fishermen on the Great Banks are so conversant.

Naturally, there'll be a salad. Pork will be sure to head the popularity poll when it appears as part of the ingredients in the salade frise au larde.

Next comes a break from eating . . . this time, for drinking. As Mme. Cardot prepares the final touches of her next offering her male assessors will sip la coupe d'Amitiee, a sparkling concoction of vodka and champagne.

Feuilleton de veau L'Echelle will then make its appearance. Mme. Cardot confides that it's intricate to make and this will be her first venture. Truffles will be added to slices of veal, each slice stuffed with a puree of vegetables, the whole dish being rolled in and cooked in a special fat that's as thin as lace.

The dessert . . . if one is permitted to use such a mundane term . . . will be croquembouche de choux, a pyramid of tiny pastries offering a variety of centres to please both palate and eye pupils.

After such a repast, topped with coffee prepared to perfection, it will be interesting to note the effect on the 16 discerning diners.

They might even be moved to consider women competent enough to be able culinary critics!

JUDY BUGGED

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Judy LaMarsh is not in favor of a rule started this year to ensure that each riding would send at least one woman delegate to the Liberal leadership convention.

The new rules stipulate that of the six delegates from every riding, one must be a woman and one a young Liberal.

"I don't like it," Miss LaMarsh said bluntly of the rule on women. "But the women's organizations have fought for a long time for it because they weren't getting even that representation.

"I'd much rather see women become delegates because they're good."

Will Attend Concert

Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, will drive to Sidney on Monday to attend a concert in Sanscha Hall which has been arranged to celebrate the retirement of the hall's mortgage.

From Vancouver

Mr. and Mrs. Lex Black of Vancouver, are guests at the Imperial Inn during a two-week visit to Victoria. While they are in Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. Black will visit Mrs. Black's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Barry of Beach Drive. On Friday, Mrs. Black was the guest of Mrs. Howard Damaske at the Victoria School of Music Women's Committee fashion show at the Phoenix Theatre.

Regimental Dance

There were approximately 500 guests when the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment held a recent spring dance in the Bay Street Armoury. Dance music was played by the band of the Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt. The regimental pipes and drums performed during the intermission. The grand march was led by Lt.-Col. D. R. Coell, the regiment's commanding officer; Mrs. Coell, Deputy Chief R. G. Maitland of the Victoria City Police, and Mrs. Maitland. Master of ceremonies for the evening was Sgt. D. Gibson.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

A BRACE OF BIRTHDAY BABIES

Two Victoria women treated themselves to a special birthday treat this week. Mrs. Douglas (Patricia) McClean of Hotham Place gave birth to a baby daughter in the Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday. Her friend, Mrs. D. (Pamela) Mitchell of Hockley Avenue, gave birth to a baby girl in St. Joseph's Hospital the next morning. Both young mothers were celebrating birthdays.

French Auction At Gallery

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria will take on an exotic air tonight at 8 p.m. when members of the Women's Committee hold a French Auction to raise funds for the Gallery.

Members and friends will find an opportunity to pick up interesting antiques, jewelry or some of the unusual and intriguing objects donated for sale. Many merchants have given valuable items, too.

Admission is by gift of jewelry, an ornament or piece of furniture. Items can be left at the Gallery, 1040 Moss Street, before the auction in exchange for an admission ticket.

Refreshments will be served in a gay sophisticated atmosphere to add to the enjoyment of the evening.

Mrs. Leslie Wood is convener, with Mrs. K. B. Barnes as co-convener. Mrs. G. F. Holloway is in charge of refreshments.

WINNERS HONORED AT SCHOLARSHIP TEA

Auxiliary Raises More Than $500

Members of the Golden Key, the auxiliary to the Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society, were busy two afternoons this week, with two events which raised more than $500 for the society.

On Wednesday afternoon 26 tables of bridge were in play, and on Thursday the annual spring tea was held at the Duplicate Bridge Club Room.

Mrs. George Pearkes, wife of the lieutenant-governor, officially opened the tea, which was convened by Mrs. F. A. Goodwin. Also at the head table with Mrs. Pearkes were Mrs. H. Brand, new president of the Golden Key, and secretary Mrs. C. Laurie.

Mrs. C. Miller assisted Mrs. Goodwin with arrangements, while Mrs. Jessie Champion was in charge of refreshments. Mrs. W. Hollick and her assistants sold home-made bread and other home-baking. Mrs. W. Waddington was in charge of tickets.

POODLE PLAYS HIS PART

Binkie, the French poodle who's "top dog" at Government House, hates to miss a party. When his mistress, Mrs. George R. Pearkes, officially opened this week's tea of the Golden Key Auxiliary to the Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society he reluctantly stayed home. He still had the last word, though. A local artist, Grace Smith, who fell in love with a picture of Binkie and his mistress which appeared in the Times, copied it in water colors and presented it to Mrs. Pearkes at the tea. In gratitude, Mrs. Pearkes gave the artist a cheque which she promptly donated to the group as Binkie's price of admission.

Makes Perfect Gift For Wooden Wedding

By PENNY SAVER

"Aunt Penny, what is the symbol for the fifth anniversary?" Margaret has asked me a similar question every April since she and Terry were married and every year I am taken by surprise. It just doesn't seem five years since they were wed! I get quite a kick each year, however, out of helping her find something new and different in the first prosaic anniversary symbols—paper, cotton, leather, fruit and, this year, wood.

As soon as I had looked up the fifth year symbol for Margaret, I knew exactly where to take her. I love wood—any wood—for its grain and texture, but a display of chrysanthemum and camphor woods bowled me over. Hand-carved in Taiwan, these items make perfect gifts—no two pieces can ever be the same.

Chrysanthemum wood features a grain that makes patterns like the ones found on frost-covered windows. It bears no resemblance to the thin, woody stems of the flower, chrysanthemum. The bark is deeply ridged, giving a scalloped effect. When the wood is carved and varnished it reveals delicate patterns that defy description.

Margaret was thrilled. I had thought Terry might like one of the smoker sets and she agreed. These consist of a cigarette box, match dispenser and ashtray attached to a slab of the wood. They're priced at $7.95. The ashtray is lined with a metal cup and has an attached cigarette holder. The cigarette box, which comes in a variety of shapes, is lined on the bottom with plastic and on the sides with a tube of bamboo. In the set we chose, the sides and lid of the box were curved and polished so that the grain looked its best. Terry has given it a place of honor on his desk.

This beautiful wood is made into a wide variety of items. Candlesticks begin at $2 and are so popular that the store has to re-order frequently. One cigarette box,, again lined with plastic and bamboo, was made like the trunk of a tree, making full use of the scalloped bark with the dainty "frost" patterns on the top of the lid. This piece is $4.50. A lidded candy dish for $6.95 uses the ruffled bark as a lip while the dainty pattern was picked out on the curved top and bowl. I just ached to buy it!

If you would like to know where I found these woody items, please call me at 382-3131.

EATON'S
How to get Gorgeous!
with Helena Rubinstein

The Easy Way to Beautiful!
from Helena Rubinstein

Two totally new ways to be beautiful from the House of Helena Rubenstein. A glow for the face in a swivel stick make-up that's been invented to flatter every complexion tone. And, a new look for the lips that colours and frosts for a radiant, full-mouthed effect. Now at Eaton's.

A Creamy, Smooth-On Face With Minute Make-Up Stick

It's a whole new face in a little swivel case. Makes you gorgeous in a minute. Helena Rubenstein took everything you love about a liquid foundation and put it in a stick. A little, go everywhere, no-spill stick. Minute make-up slips over skin lightly and gracefully. And, it covers uneven colourings, shadows and tiny flaws. So you walk around with a fresh, radiant, wonderfully alive look all the time. Eight flattering shades. Ea. 3.00

Lips Go Twice Beautiful With Lip Games
The New Two-Colour Lipstick

Half hot creamy colour, half cool frosted tint . . . that's Lip Games. The beautiful new way to make-up your mouth. Try one colour on your top lip. The other on your lower lip. Or wear one colour on both lips . . . or one over the other. (Make up your own rules.) All you need is Helena Rubinstein's new two-colour lipstick, a pair of lips and the right attitude. Honeydew, Sliced Peaches, Pink Pair and Elec-Tricks. Ea. 2.50

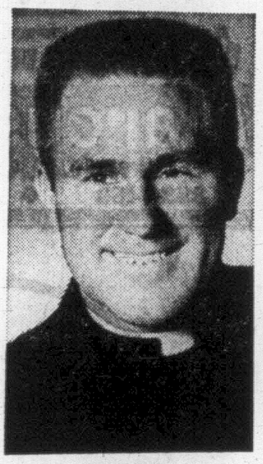
Palm Sunday Upset Rabbis

Mr. Jenner has been assistant priest at St. John's Anglican Church, Victoria, since September. Previously he was vicar of St. Phillip's Church, Vancouver, and before then operated three missions in the Cariboo.

By REV. LEONARD JENNER

When Jesus rode into Jerusalem on the first Palm Sunday and went into the temple, He was really acting out what the prophets had predicted. He was conforming to the expectation of the people.

They cried out in their joy "Hosanna! Blessed is He that Comes in the name of the Lord! Blessed be the Kingdom of our father David that is coming."



JENNER
. . . chaos in temple

They agreed with Him and they liked what He was doing, so they acclaimed Him. But when he upset the whole procedure of the long-established ways of the temple by driving out the money changers and merchants, who were not only leeches on society but had dared to make the temple a "den of robbers," the people were amazed and speechless.

The chief rabbis saw in this act of non-conformity a threat to their control and the end of their chief source of revenue. To them he was an anarchist, a blasphemer, a person to be destroyed.

From this time on, the battle was joined between the religious conformists and Jesus.

The strange thing here is that we who celebrate Palm Sunday fail to remember that what we are celebrating is an act of conformity which ended in chaos in the temple.

From the viewpoint of responsible religious leadership, in His day, Jesus was indeed a dangerous rebel. His seeming act of conformity as he rode into Jerusalem was completely overshadowed by his behavior in the temple.

The fact is that in a few years the temple was destroyed and had never been rebuilt, nor its priesthood restored.

Should Jesus Christ ride into this city and enter into our Christian churches today, would He come as a conformist acclaimed by all or as a dangerous rebel turning the church upside down.

As we celebrate Palm Sunday this 1968, what are we actually celebrating? Are we celebrating the man who conformed to the hopes of the people, or are we celebrating the coming of the ways of God — new life, rebirth, change, growth, which might bring chaos in the church —the Establishment?

Cleric to Talk About Hit Film

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

Guess Who's Coming To Dinner—the title of a popular film on racial prejudice—is the sermon subject of Rev. Robert Morris in First United Church Sunday at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

"My sermon this Palm Sunday refers to Christ rather than to the color problems raised by the film," he said. "But, in view of the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King, I think the film has a special significance."

The congregation of First United will join with St. John's Anglican and First Baptist churches in First Baptist Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Choirs of the three churches will lead the singing.

Are These the Last Days? will be the subject of Mrs. Dorothy Abraham at a meeting of the British Israel World Federation, Victoria branch, in the Dominion Hotel Sunday at 3 p.m.

A pageant entitled The Cross by Ruth Ruggles will be presented at an Easter service of praise in Metropolitan United Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

The cast includes Mrs. D. Read, Mrs. H. Nicol, Mrs. M. Wildeman, Mrs. E. Wright and Miss J. Marshall. Dawn Benoit, soprano, will sing I Know that My Redeemer Liveth and The Lord's Prayer.

Staging, lighting and direction is by Alan Jones, Glenn Jones and Rev. Laura Butler, with Eric Boothroyd at the organ. A prayer of invocation will be offered by Mrs. W. H. Spearman and the scripture lesson will be read by Mrs. R. D. Bennett.

There will be a communion service Sunday at 11 a.m. at which Rev. Albert King will give the meditation and the Sanctuary Choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will sing Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs from Handel's Messiah.

The Unitarian Church of Victoria will hold its annual general meeting at 106 Superior Street, Sunday at 10 a.m.

There will be no church and no services.

Rev. John Zuyderwijk of the Victoria Liturgical Commission will celebrate a special children's mass in St. Rose of Lima Church, Sooke, at 2 p.m. Sunday.

For the past seven months, Father Zuyderwijk has been visiting Catholic parishes on Vancouver Island, explaining the new liturgy and celebrating the eucharist in various churches.

At the morning service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, will preach a sermon entitled Only Three Cheers for Jesus?

Georgina Harper will sing He Was Despised from Handel's Messiah, and the choir will present the anthem, Jesus, Our Lord, We Adore Thee.

On Good Friday, Dr. McLean will conduct a one-hour service beginning at 11 a.m.

Golden Key study group will take over the 7:30 p.m. Sunday meeting in Victoria Truth Centre.

At the 11 a.m. meeting, Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, will speak on The Will of God.

Emmanuel Baptist Church choir will present the sacred cantata, The Seven Last Words, Sunday at 4 p.m.

"This moving and awe-inspiring work is a fitting preparation for Easter," says Rev. Norman K. Archer, minister.

Soloists will be Mrs. R. Stratton, soprano; Donald Twine, tenor; and Donald Bray, baritone. The choir will be directed by Mrs. Otto Niedermann, with Henry Pluym at the organ.

The cantata, Man of Sorrows, will be presented by Aidan's United Church choir Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Soloists will be Marjorie Sturgeon, soprano; Robert Williams, tenor; and John Bray, baritone.

The cantata was composed in 1940 by the late James M. Saunders, who lived in Victoria for many years.

DUNCAN WALKATHON

Women to March On Easter Monday

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Eight members of the Duncan Catholic Women's League will enter the costume walkathon being organized for Easter Monday.

Mrs. Larry Fiege said the eight women plan to do it by each walking a mile of the eight-mile course. They will be their own financial sponsors in an effort to help raise enough money to build a new Scout hall for the Second Cowichan group.

The league members held their annual meeting Wednesday evening and the 1968 slate of officers is: president Mrs. George Flater; first vice-president, Mrs. Harold Hancock; treasurer Mrs. Donald Bolton; recording secretary, Mrs. Ken McKinnon, and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ed Prevost.

A regular schedule of broadcast services will start locally Easter Sunday.

First to go on the air via CKAY radio station will be St. John's Anglican which will advance the normal start of the morning service from 11:15 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Because of the cost involved, subsequent services will not be broadcast live but tape recorded for airing at a later date.

The choir of Central Baptist Church, Victoria, is to sing an Easter cantata at Sunday's 7 p.m. service in Duncan Baptist church.

On Tuesday Duncan Baptist church should be filled to overflowing for a concert of inter-faith sacred music by the choir of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. The Biola choir is on its annual Easter tour and the concert by the 24 students of the interdenominational college is free. The concert will start at 7:30 p.m.

Palm crosses made by the women of the congregation will be handed out at the Sunday morning service at St. Peter's Anglican Church, Quamichan.

Guest preacher will be Col. D. S. Mitchell, lay secretary of the diocesan synod, speaking on the agenda for the upcoming annual synod meeting.

A pot luck supper will follow the Maundy Thursday, April 11, parish communion at St. Peter's.

On Good Friday the congregations and choirs of Duncan United and Presbyterian churches will combine for worhsip at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Wednesday evening the Arion male voice choir of Victoria will be featured in a United Church concert to raise money to buy new choir gowns. Soprano Sylvia Furneaux will be guest soloist.

The church committee of St. Mary's Anglican Church, Somenos, will circulate members of the congregation calling a special meeting to decide whether to close the doors. St. Mary's is a satellite church of St. John's parish.

Rev. Allan Kerr said a vote will be taken and the congregation's decision forwarded to the synod office.

Presbyterian layman, Dr. Owen Gloster, will be the theme speaker at the last of the Lenten luncheon meetings sponsored by St. John's Church. This will be next Wednesday in the church hall from 12 noon to 1 p.m.

Good Friday Walk Planned

All who believe that Jesus Christ died to save the world are invited to assemble in Centennial Square on Good Friday, April 12, at 7 p.m.

From there they will walk to an inter-church service of witness in Christ Church Cathedral, which will begin about 7:30 p.m.

Very Rev. Brian Whitlow, dean of the cathedral, will conduct the service and the sermon will be given by Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria.

Ministers of the United, Lutheran and Baptist churches will also officiate, and the music will be led by the choirs of St. Andrew's Cathedral, Centennial United and Christ Church Cathedral under the direction of Richard Proudman.

Waiting List Decline Puzzles Welfare Chief

The welfare waiting list for private hospitals in Victoria has dropped drastically since December to almost nothing.

F. Alex Davidson, the city's welfare administrator, said there is no way of measuring the reason for the decline. He did not know the answer.

He pointed out, however, that the situation can fluctuate quickly. Thre present half-dozen welfare patients in rest homes who may need private hospital attention could become 15 by Tuesday and 25 by the following week.

Last December, city council was told there were 175 welfare patients on the waiting lists to private hospitals.

SHY BEAUTY of the forest is the Chocolate Lily, delicate relative of the Easter Lily. It is less abundant and its darker color means it will be spotted only by the more observant. When discovering wildflowers, remember "leave them be for others to see."

SPIRIT OF YOUTH IN EVERYTHING

". . . proud April, dressed in all his trim
Hath put a spirit of youth in everything."

Shakespeare said it and scores of local nature lovers will prove it this weekend as they tramp into woods and fields to discover the wildflowers.

The Victoria Outdoor Club will hold a hike Sunday, starting at Elk Lake and ending on Bear Mountain. Members will meet at 9:45 a.m. at the parking lot on the northeast side of The Bay before heading for the lake.

At Francis Nature Park the same day visitors will be taken on conducted tours of the park's trails.

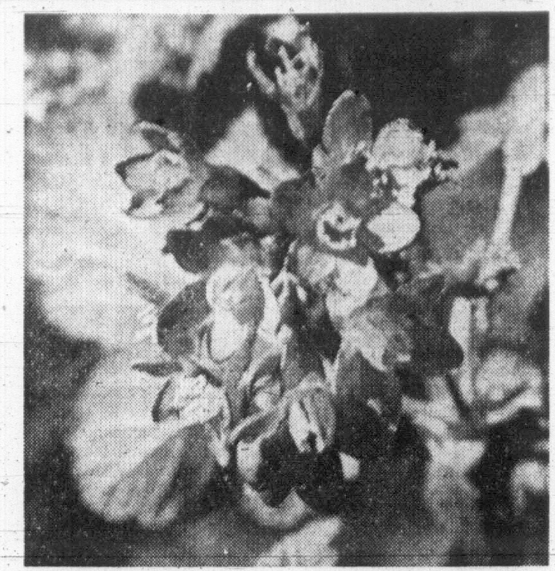
Members of the Thetis Lake Nature Sanctuary Association will also visit Thetis Lake where they have placed 40 signs to help visitors identify the native flowers in bloom.

The association has also published a booklet, available at the Provincial Museum and book stores, which lists plants, birds, animals, insects and water life to be found in the park.

Among flowers to watch for, the White Easter Lily and its cousin, the Chocolate Lily, the light green flowers of the Arbutus, the showy Yellow Arum or Skunk Cabbage, many of the 30 varieties of Buttercup.

Don't just keep your gaze to the ground either. About 10 pairs of Bald Eagles nest near Victoria and now is the time they have eggs in the nest.

Sunday is an appropriate day for a hike. It marks the beginning of National Wildlife Week. The week commemorates the late Jack Miner, one of Canada's greatest naturalists and conservationists.



FIERY RED BUSHES of the Flowering Currant are the most conspicuous element in open shrub areas. Their honey-filled flower tubes are favored by the newly-arriving hummingbirds. Courting pond ducks and hard-working bumble bees are among other signs of an awakening land for hikers to watch. (Dave Hancock Photos)

Bishop Brings 'Senate' To RCs on West Coast

By SUSIE McCONNELL BIRD

TOFINO — On a tour of West Coast missions, Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, will bless the new church of Saint Francis of Assisi Sunday at 11:30 a.m.

Men and women from Ucluelet and other points will attend and will be presented to the bishop after the service.

At 7 p.m. Sunday, Bishop De Roo will conduct mass in the Holy Family Church at Ucluelet to be followed by a reception in the church hall.

The bishop is accompanied on his tour by eight priests who are members of the diocesan senate he set up last year. They were met at Christie's School, Kakawis by the principal, Rev. T. L. Mackie, OMI.

"As you are unable to attend a diocesan senate meeting, we are bringing the senate to you," the bishop told Father Mackie.

Continuing their tour, the bishop and his party visited St. anselm's Mission on the Opitsate Reserve and were received by the Opitsate Youth Club.

Chief George Grank, 15, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Frank, were graciously received by the bishop, who attended the chief's installation several years ago.

At the new church of Saint Laurence at Ahousat, Flores Island, the bishop conducted mass and confirmation. The church was blessed by the former Bishop of Victoria, Most Rev. James Hill, on June 9, 1959, assisted by Rev. D. J. Pruner and Rev. M. D. Kearney.

Bishop De Roo met many members of the church, including Ahousat Indians, at a reception in the community hall afterwards.

He will attend a meeting of the Curia of the Legion of Mary at Christie's School, Kakawis, tonight.

Born at Swan Lake, Man., in 1924, the bishop received a doctorate in theology at the Angelicum University in Rome and was ordained at St. Martin's Church, Swan Lake, on June 9, 1950.

He was installed as Bishop of Victoria in St. Andrew's Cathedral Dec. 20, 1962.

Rice Luncheon Easter Saturday At St. Patrick's

A plain rice luncheon will be served in St. Patrick's School auditorium, Trent Street, on Easter Saturday, April 13.

Inviatations have been sent to Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria and the reeeves of municipalities.

"Purpose of the meal is to give tangible evidence of our concern for the world's hungry," says Michael Doyle, Victoria representative of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace.

"Millions subsist daily on the four-ounce rice meal we shall eat at the luncheon."

Goodwill Does Own Laundry

Goodwill Enterprises has made a plea to the public not to launder clothing before donating it.

Robert Dudley, the society's manager and director of rehabilitation, said "Research has revealed that a surprising number of people are putting themselves to unnecessary trouble and expense before sending their donated articles to Goodwill."

He added many people are throwing clothing away in the mistaken belief it would have to be cleaned to be acceptable to goodwill. This results in Goodwill losing "much of the donated material on which its programs of job-training and rehabilitation depend."

Mr. Dudley said Goodwill Enterprises has its own complete laundering and dry-cleaning plant—one of the most modern and efficient on Vancouver Island.

"Every article donated is thoroughly cleaned before being offered for sale at the Goodwill stores," said Mr. Dudley.

"Right now, Goodwill Enterprises can use all the repairable clothing and household articles it can get," said Mr. Dudley.

"In fact, our need for these is more urgent than at any other time because Goodwill is currently providing job-training programs for 141 persons, our highest total ever."

Wild Lilies In Bloom

Wild lilies are now in full bloom at the historic church of St. Mary the Virgin, Metchosin.

To celebrate this perennial event, ladies of the church will hold a coffee party in the parish hall Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. to which men, women and children of other parishes are invited. "We would like them to see our lilies at their best," says Mrs. Margaret Littler.

Tests Begin For Teen-Aged Roadeo Group

Thirteen local teenagers will put their knowledge of rules of the road and driving skill to the test this weekend in the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce Teen-age Safe Driving Roadeo.

The first of a series of written tests began at 9 this morning at the Motor Vehicles branch.

The contestants took visual tests and examinations to test their knowledge of driving and road safety.

Sunday they will compete in the practical, driving part of the contest in the parking lot of the Town and Country shopping centre.

Judges for this part of the roadeo will be representatives of all-area police forces.

The driving skill test begins at 9 a.m.

The boy or girl who tallys the highest number of points in both written tests and driving test will be proclaimed the champion for the Victoria area.

Prizes of merchandise and the chance to compete in the provincial championships in Vancouver April 21 will be awarded to the best driver.

The provincial winner will go on to the national contest in Burlington, Ontario, July 20.

Last year's roadeo brought out only six local competitors.

Safety Council Offering Trip

A free, four-day trip to Montreal for a young driver has been offered by Dennis Wagner, executive director of the Victoria and District Safety Council.

Mr. Wagner said Friday the council is seeking a boy or girl between 17 and 22 inclusive to represent its youth division at the secnod annual conference of young drivers at Loyola University.

The conference, held by the All-Canada Insurance Federation, will take place Aug. 27 to 31. The B.C. group will meet in Vancouver and fly to Montreal.

To qualify, contestants must be of good moral character, a resident of Greater Victoria or district, willing to take part in group discussions and possess a valid driver's licence.

If a driver has been involved in one accident it will not mean disqualification.

Contestants must submit, by April 15, a 200-word essay on the topic: "Why I Should Represent This Area" to the executive director, Greater Victoria and District Safety Council, PO Box 5171, Postal Station B, Victoria.

Concert to Erase Sanscha Hall Debt

The Sidney and North Saanich Community Association will give a free concert at Sanscha Hall Monday night to mark the discharge of the community hall's debt.

It will start at 7:45.

Completed in 1958 and built largely by voluntary labor, Sanscha Hall started off with a debt of $53,000 and was completely paid off two months ago.

"We are giving the concert to thank the people of Sidney and North Saanich for their cooperation and assistance in helping us pay off the debt," Frank Minns, president, said.

Performers at the concert will include the Don Kyle singers, Claremont School choir with Erica Kurth as soloist, and others.

Mrs. George Pearkes, wife of the lieutenant-governor, will be present and will also burn the last $1,000 bond which has been redeemed.

Mr. Minns said the association plans to continue to develop and improve the hall.

Some of the improvement planned are the hardtopping of the parking lot at a cost of $3,000, construction of washrooms and dressing rooms for the stage and the installation of additional lights in the main auditorium.

STUDENTS MEET SUNDAY

'Defeat Socred' Fund Blasted

Student leaders at the University of Victoria will hold a special meeting Sunday to reconsider a controversial fund they created to wage political war.

At issue is $1,500 in student funds which the representative assembly last Sunday earmarked "to defeat Social Credit policies" in the event of a summer provincial election.

In recent months campus critics have hit hard at a shortage of government money for universities and have blamed the government for a planned parking fee and increased residence rates.

But setting aside student funds to specifically battle the Socreds drew a blast this week from the Young Conversatives on campus.

They argued that it was not the job of a student council to engage in partisan politics and that the money was not aimed at any specific issues.

The 19-man assembly hit more heavy weather Thursday when about 300 students turned out to a "speakeasy."

President Frank Frketich was greeted with boos and jeers when he said the assembly did not intend becoming a partisan political body but had acted within its constitutional jurisdiction in establishing the fund.

Among the more vocal critics at the free-wheeling forum was fourth year arts student Jamie Angus who said he liked Social Credit government policies and did not want to see his money spent on trying to defeat them.

Douglas MacAdams, in third year arts and one of two student members of the university's senate, said he was surprised at criticism when students had just adopted a new constitution which permitted such a move.

He suggested students act charitably towards the assembly and it would amend its motion to satisfy the opposition.

While the assembly will take another look at the issue Sunday, a petition is being passed among students calling for a special general meeting of the Alma Mater Society, the students organization which elects the assembly.

A motion passed at a general meeting reversing the assembly stand would be binding.

Provincial MLAs Have Stake In Liberal Leadership Vote

By JOHN MIKA

Attention today is, of course, rivetted on the Liberal convention in Ottawa and none in this province are more interested in its outcome than provincial MLAs.

The impact of the choice will fall very heavily on B.C. politics.

If Pierre Elliot Trudeau is selected, as is expected, then it will add a new impetus to the politics of transition now gathering way in the province in all three parties.

Mika

Last year's election swept youthful "swingers into each caucus and they've already provided considerable ferment within their respective parties which would be spurred further by a Trudeau victory.

Several MLAs on both sides think a Trudeau selection would have tremendous impact on provincial politics possibly just as much impact as Premier Bennett's selection in 1952 as Social Credit leader. I certainly agree.

The prospect of national politics being polarized between Trudeau and Stanfield raises the real possibility for the first time in years that Canada will return to a two-party system.

That means that the NDP and Social Credit will live in isolation on this side of the mountains and very likely they would be transmuted over a period of time into the provincial wings of first the Liberals and Conservatives and eventually the formal allies of the Liberals and Progressive Conservative parties with capital letters.

In a sense, it would be a similar situation to that pertaining in Quebec for years where the Union Nationale party was the French-Canadian wing of the Conservatives.

Certainly Mr. Trudeau is believable in such an alliance with Robert Strachan — who really has more in common with the justice minister than he has with his own national leader Tommy Douglas, particularly on questions of national unity.

There's much less possibility — in fact it's improbable — that the same sort of relationship could be forged between Mr. Stanfidld and Premier Bennett. But then, between Mr. Stanfield and how much longer will Mr. Bennett be on the scene or in total control of his party?

Certainly whover succeeds Mr. Bennett in the Socred leadership will be anxious to develop some strong links with a larger organization to help him through the tight spots which Mr. Bennett never encountered due to the special situation he enjoyed from the start.

But what if Mr. Trudeau is rejected?

I believe the country's voters would punish the Liberal party at the next election if this happened.

And, in provincial terms, such a reaction would inevitably rebound to the benefit of the NDP to which the swingers and small-L Liberals of the left would have to rally.

This, while having an impact of smaller scale on the longterm politica outlook, cannot be ignored. How do you overlook an eventuality which could play a significant part in ushering a new party into power?

If it sounds as though I'm suggesting the paradox that win or lose with Trudeau nationaly, the Liberals in B.C. are bound to suffer that's exactly what I am saying.

And if you think that's strange, then I can only ask: What is politics if it is not strange?

The biggest question is whether the Liberal convention in Ottawa will finally help the provincial NDP or the Socreds more through the indirect convolutions that the stream of power takes as it swirls along its giddy course.

So don't be surprised if the MLAs develop some bloodshot eyes this weekend, not from drinking, but from viewing that flickering blue screen which holds some of the secrets to their futures.

STRACHAN
... speechless

'Strachan Road' To Be Rebuilt

He told virtually every MLA who raised a road problem that "it will be considered."

But he had an even more positive message for Opposition Leader Robert Strachan who rose in his annual attack on the government's failure to rebuild the Lake Cowichan road in his riding.

Mr. Strachan has barely begun his speech when Mr. Bennett asked politely if he could interrupt.

"We're clearing it now and we will start grading this year," he said.

Mr. Strachan was left almost speechless.

"That's what I've wanted to hear," he said.

"I got more in that 30 seconds than I got in 16 years."

Mr. Bennett also said he would consider a start on a new bridge across the Skeena River after a humorous sally from Dudley Little (SC—Skeena).

"What we need on this is a meeting of the senior ministers of this government," Mr. Little said.

"I'd like to see a meeting of the prime minister; the premier; the minister of finance and the minister of highways."

(Each title is claimed by Mr. Bennett.)

Medicare Impact Unknown

Estimates of the Provincial Secretary's department were approved in the legislature Friday afternoon after the opposition failed to get clarification of the impact of federal medicare on B.C.

Attorney-General Bonner, speaking for the absent Provincial Secretary W. D. Black, said details of the effect of federal medicare would not be estimated until Ottawa made a decision on the question following the Liberal convention.

Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) asked that dental care for children and drug care for the elderly be included in the new plan.

In response to a question from Fred Vulliamy (NDP—Burnaby-Willingdon) Mr. Bonner said the provincial secretary has been studying the question of amendments to the Elections Act.

Mr. Vulliamy said legislation must be brought in at the next session to reform the act. He protested "gigantic slushfunds" filled by "devious means" from "secret, questionable, sources" by the Social Credit party.

FOOL'S GRANT HAILED

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) applauded the "courage" of the Canada Council on its $3,500 award to Joachim Foikis, Vancouver's self-styled town fool.

He said it was good to inject "a little color" into life to break the "drab, grey over-serious" attitude of many people.

Besides, he added, it will be good for tourist business in Vancouver.

Mr. Bonner agreed with Dr. Parkinson that administration of Indian problems in B.C. left a lot to be desired and blamed the "poor area of administration" between Ottawa and the provinces.

Dr. Parkinson had complained that Indians are not covered by any comprehensive medical plan except as they are treated as indigents by federal authorities.

Broadcasts Covered In Libel Act Change

Attorney-General Robert Bonner Friday introduced a bill to extend the Libel and Slander Act to broadcasts but said he won't ask for second reading until the next session.

The hiatus would give companies concerned time to consider the provisions.

Mr. Bonner said the main purpose of the amendments is to make clear that broadcasting stations have the same course open to them as newspapers to mitigate unintentional slanders by making a quick retraction.

A correction of a slander would be weighed in assessing damages after a law suit established an offence had been committed.

The attorney-general declined to comment when asked if the extension was proposed as a result of the growth in open-line radio broadcasts.

Another amendment in the bill would require the name of the proprietor or publisher of a newspaper to be printed either on the front page or at the head of the editorials.

Elk Lake Scene of Regatta Sunday

Rowing races and a sailboat regatta will be held Sunday at Elk Lake.

Organized by the Saanich special events committee, the rowing races—involving Brentwood College, Shawnigan Lake and Claremont Schools—will begin at 11 a.m. followed by the saiboat regatta at noon.

BILL 33 FUND GETS $10,000

Ten thousand dollars has been donated or pledged to the B.C. Federation of Labour's fund to fight Bill 33, it was announced Friday.

The fund was established last month under one of a number of resolutions passed by a delegate convention to oppose the new B.C. labor law.

Bill 33 gives the cabinet power, where it deems it "necessary in order to protect the public interest and welfare," to refer a dispute —before or after a strike — to a cabinet-appointed mediation commission whose ruling will be binding.

The Bricklayers, Masons and Terrazzo Workers International Union, Local 1, and the Tile Setters International Union, Local 3, announced a membership-approved assessment which will mean a contribution of more than $3,000 to the fund. Each member will be assessed one hour's pay and the assessment will become payable on the date Bill 33 is enacted. It needs only the formality of royal assent.

How many years younger do you think your face should look to make you really happy?

When a woman uses 2nd Debut to make her face look too young, it would be said that she used it not too wisely. And if she uses it to shed only one or two birthdays, this too would be a waste of her time, energy and money. Any woman about to depart on a course of facial rehabilitation with 2nd Debut should first decide just how youthful her face should be made to look to best serve her present purposes. Once this decision is made, there remains little to do beyond applying 2nd Debut nightly according to directions and discontinuing its use when the desired state of more youthful looking linelessness is reached.

WHAT 2nd DEBUT IS:

2nd Debut is a radical departure from the oily creams and lotions that have been the basis of skin care during the past century. It is a scientific development based in the demonstrable fact that skin's appearance ages through dryness, and that the oiliest skin can also be the driest. 2nd Debut demonstrates to women of all ages that dryness can be relieved continuously and varying degrees of youthful appearance reestablished by maintaining the water balance of skin at normally required levels. 2nd Debut, therefore, contains neither oil nor grease. Instead, it is an aqueous emulsion of the ingredient known to be the one employed by nature to keep human skin adequately moist to prevent dryness and premature aging.

As contained in the emulsion 2nd Debut, this ingredient (known as CEF) need only to be applied to the surface of facial skin. The water-moisture level of the skin automatically rises. Progressively, the skin's surface appears smoother and more youthful as lines become less evident and some completely disappear. Those around the eyes, the nose and mouth are usually among those that respond earliest to regular nightly applications of 2nd Debut. The tone of the entire face and neck is at once lifted and given the appearance of fresher form as you near the end of your first 2nd Debut course in youth renewal. From that point on, occasional applications of 2nd Debut with its rich CEF 600 content help facial freshness to remain and facial smoothness to continue to replace those insidious premature age lines that plagued you before your friendship with 2nd Debut began. And, at some later indefinite time, you may begin another course of nightly 2nd Debut applications, with assurance it will be fully as effective as the routine just completed.

2nd Debut is made in two potencies. The first contains CEF 600 and is designed for the woman with early worries; that is, the younger woman who has started to line before her time.

The double-potency CEF 1200 was formulated for the face over forty; or for the impatient lady who wants visible results without delay—or for you if your facial lines are deep. It should smooth age lines faster. In only a few days you see a marked change.

Now, to prepare your skin to receive these treatments, 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser was developed. Its results are dynamic. Its application is different, for it is to be applied in a thin layer over your face and throat. Then rinse off with cool water. Now your skin is clear, and clean. Really clean!

For a perfect complexion instantly, matte finish 2nd Debut Liquid Make-up with CEF 600. Covers blemishes and imperfections so completely and with such a natural look no one suspects it of being make-up. Helps overcome skin dryness, too. Six shades, each a natural skin tone. From Pale to Golden Tan.

Finally, 2nd Debut Body & Hand Lotion (with CEF 600) is a most welcome sensation in body and hand grooming. Imparts a feeling of luxury to the body that makes you regard yourself with extra importance. And its CEF 600 richness quickly defeats the cause of chapping and roughness with its deep moisturizing of your hands. This is a dual-purpose balm with an immediate and pleasurable effect.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many relatives and friends for their floral tributes, cards and acts of kindness during our sudden loss of both of our fathers and grandpas. Harry McDonald and Albert Treloar. Special thanks to Rev. Canon Robert Willis. — Len, June Marnie and Grant Treloar.

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives who helped and comforted us during our bereavement in the loss of our dear husband and father David McConachie. We remember with gratitude all the acts of kindness and help during his long illness. Thank you for the messages of sympathy, beautiful flowers, donations to the Cancer Fund and to Rev. DR. J. L. W. McLean whose comforting words and beautiful service sustained us. The services of the pallbearers, Messrs. James Osselton, J. R. Short, Wallace Graham and F. Henderson were deeply appreciated. Special thanks to Dr. Lockyer and nurses at the Cancer Clinic and all the doctors who attended him in the past. — Mrs. David McConachie and Michelle.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the messages of sympathy, acts of kindness and floral tributes received from our many friends in the loss of our loving husband and father, William James Colvin. Special thanks to Dr. J. L. McLean, Dr. J. R. Le Huquet and Dr R. N. Young, the staff at the Richmond Heights Private Hospital and McCall Bros. Funeral Chapels. — Mrs. H. Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. W. J Colvin

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness and messages of sympathy received from our friends in Victoria and other cities in our sad bereavement in the loss of our beloved husband and father, Mr. Michael Wensrich. We especially thank Rev. L. M. Carlson, Dr. E. A. Allen, Dr. R. G. Sinclare, the staff at St. Joseph's Hospital and McCall Bros. Funeral Chapel.—The Family.

I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to my many friends for kindness and cards of sympathy during the loss of my wife, Emerance Barrow. Special thanks to Dr. T. W. Gray, and specialists. The Rev. Bruce Molloy, the nurses and staff of St. Joseph's. —Arthur Barrow.

I wish to sincerely thank my many friends and relatives for their kind expressions of sympathy extended to me during my recent bereavement. Special thanks to Dr. A. M. Warrington, the nurses of St. Josephs Hospital and the Rev. N. S. Noel. —Mrs. Nan A. Leece.

9 IN MEMORIAM

TREGELLAS — Precious memories of my dearly loved son, Jack, who passed away suddenly on this date 1963.

The shades of evening gather around when I am alone,
Silently they bring before me a loved face, that I shall see no more,
As time goes by the memories
stay
As near, as dear, as yesterday,
Only those who have lost can tell,
The sorrow of parting without farewell.

—Mrs. M. Tregellas and family.

TREGELLAS — In loving memory of my uncle, Jack Tregellas, who passed away April 7, 1963.

In memory, a daily thought,
In heart, a silent sorrow.

—David Richards.

TREGELLAS — In loving memory of a dear brother and brother-in-law, Jack Tregellas, who left us in sorrow April 7, 1963.

To know we never said goodbye,
Will always bring regrets,
But the hearts that loved you
dearly,
Are the ones that never forget.

—Sadly missed by his sister, Roona and brother-in-law Ray Richards.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

South looked over dummy unenthusiastically. He could count 12 top tricks and needed a club-diamond squeeze for his 13th.

He drew three rounds of trumps as a matter of course and noted that if West were long in the minors there would be a rather simple squeeze against him, but the bidding indicated that East, not West, was going to hold the minor suits right behind dummy.

He noted next that he could handle five clubs and four diamonds in the East hand by cashing the ace and king of diamonds, getting back to his own hand with a second heart and running his last three trumps. His last little diamond and North's last little club would squeeze East.

South tried this play, but West defeated him by hanging on to his three clubs so that the nine spot stopped that suit and enabled East to guard the diamonds.

North was rather critical. He said, "If you want to gamble on seven you should learn how to play the hand first. The proper squeeze technique would have made your contract for you."

North was right. See if you can figure out the winning play before going on.

The winning play is a criss-cross ruffing squeeze, if you want to give it a name. South cashes his last high heart and all but one trump while discarding the two small diamonds from dummy. Everyone is down to six cards. If East retains three diamonds and three clubs, South makes the hand by playing ace-king and a third club. He ruffs this, and dummy's fourth club is now good.

If East holds four clubs and two diamonds, South plays dummy's ace and the king of diamonds. His last diamond is now good and he can use his last trump to get back to his hand to make it.

The "more-for-your money car." If somebody ever tells you he drives an economy import with 96 h.p. engine that goes 100 m.p.h. has a safer, impact absorbing body, the safest suspension money can buy, a wrap-around air-flow system that keeps windows clear, that it looks great, handles like a dream, and that he bought it from us for only $2025, believe him. The new DATSUN sedan, the "more for your money car" from $1895 at

Firemen On Spot For Blaze

Langford volunteer firemen had to contend with two fires at the same time Friday — one started while they were fighting the first.

Chief Al Lequesne said they were called out to a barn fire on Meaford Road shortly after 3 p.m.

Soon after another alarm was turned in to the station by a person who had seen the bush fire, only 300 yards away from the barn.

Firemen hadn't seen the fire, obscured by trees, but sent a truck through the bush to put it out, Chief Lequesne said.

The barn, belonging to William Guiney, 740 Meaford, was all but destroyed before firemen arrived. Two cows housed inside were uninjured.

The bush fire was minor and was extinguished in a few minutes, the chief said.

Both fires are under investigation. The Langford area has had a number of fires of mysterious origin recently, Chief Lequesne said.

Scots to Honor Grand Chief

Alexander I. Mearns, Worthy Grand Chief of the Sons of Scotland— Benevolent Associtaion, Montreal, will visit Victoria Monday, April 15.

"For the premier to bring this estimate in this condition before this house on this night is part of a familiar policy of destroying and hurting parliamentary procedures in this province."

DEMANDS FACTS'

But Mr. Bennett withdrew the estimates from the floor of the house and demanded the speaker be called into the chamber.

"I ask Mr. Speaker to make a statement so that the people of the province will know the true facts," he said to Mr. Murray.

"I say to the premier with the greatest respect that any statement made in the speaker's office must be in confidence and that confidence must be maintained," Mr. Murray replied under obvious strain.

He said he was not refuting any remarks by the premier but he could not divulge conversations in his office without undermining future trust in himself by both sides of the house.

Mr. Bennett, equally strained, persisted that the speaker should inform the house whether the opposition had asked for the night sitting so that the session could be wound up this weekend.

"That question must not be unanswered," Mr. Bennett replied grimly.

Randolph Harding (NDP—Kaslo-Slocan) broke the awkward pause to "frankly admit" that he had approached the speaker as NDP caucus chairman and informed him a majority of his party wanted the government to continue the sitting through Friday night.

"I frankly told him I thought we could finish the program tonight and I also indicated that at least two on this side were not happy with the idea buth the majority of us would have been happy to finish tomorrow."

He denied there was "any deal" and said he warned that a night sitting would still see debate on estimates and legislation as required.

VEILED DIG

"But I make no apology to anyone" for suggesting the effort to wind up the session by today, Mr. Harding said in a veiled dig at Mr. Nimsick.

He expalined that he was not planning to return home before Easter anyway but welcomed a Saturday prorogation because it would give him several days to visit government offices in the capital about constituency problems.

After Mr. Harding's explanation, the speaker added:

"I offer my personal apology to the premier for having misled him into holding this sitting this evening with the idea of proroguing tomorrow.

"I may well have misunderstood the representations made to me and I apologize to the whole house.

"I hope this terminates a most unfortunate incident.'

3rd Conviction —Three Months

William L. Miller, 3576 Calumet, was sentenced in central court Friday to three months in jail for his third impaired driving conviction in four years.

Miller was seen by police driving slowly along Douglas Street March 24. He was stopped and found to be impaired.

He was previously convicted Feb. 6, 1964 and March 21, 1966 for the same offence.

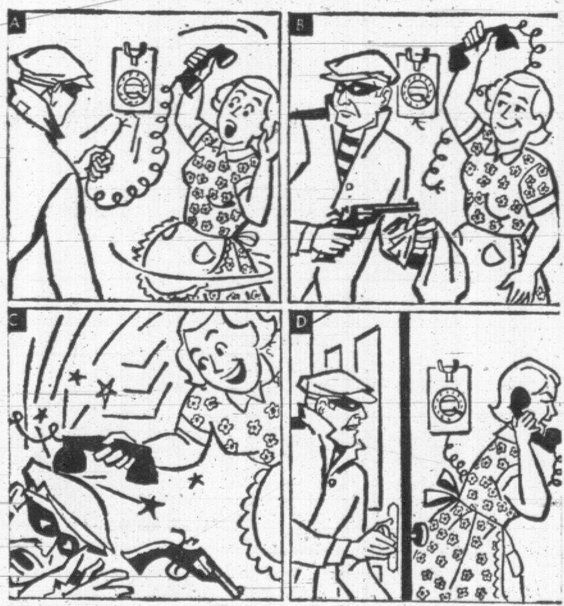
SAVED BY THE BELL?



ONLY ONE NUMBER LIKE THIS

What is the only number that contains as many letters as its value? Here's a hint: The number is within one-fifth of a hundred.

Answer: The number is four, as you probably guessed.

When is a man like frozen rain?

Answer: When he is hale.

Someone suggested a good title for the cartoon sequence above—"Saved by the Bell," or perhaps, "The Lost Cord." In any case, something's obviously wrong with the sequence in which the tale unfolds. Can you arrange the four panels in an order that makes sense?

Time limit for this exercise: Sixty seconds.

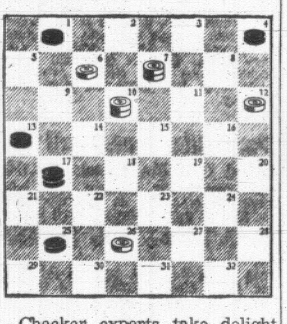
CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



Checker experts take delight in winning games by clever combinations plays which they call "strokes." The stage is set for this type of play in this game. White side, moving up the board, to move first and win in five moves is the challenge. How's it done?

Long-time pro star Millard Hopper reveals the winning strategy below.

Solution: White 26-22, Black 17-26, White 10-15, Black 1-10-19, White 12-8, Black 4-11, White 7-16-23-30-21, etc.

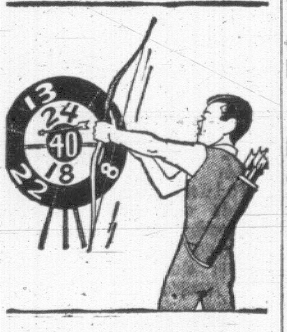
Board Against Lowering Flag

Students at Mount Douglas high school sought school board approval this morning to fly the school flag at half-mast in tribute to assassinated Martin Luther King.

School board chairman Peter Bunn said the department of education advised against that form of tribute.

Mr. Bunn said he favored an announcement over the school's public address system and a moment of silence.

A SHOOTING STAR



On this archery range (above) it's possible to become a mathematical shooting star by taking five shots and scoring 100 points. Simply pick your target areas carefully before firing: Twnty-five bullseyes score 1,000 but it takes less accurate shooting for the 100 goal in five shots.

As a lead, the marksman shown has fired the first arrow. How quickly can you aim the remaining four?

Solution: Three eighteens, one twenty-two and one twenty-four will do it.

MINI-TEST

The Gothic arch was invented in Germany, France, Greece, Italy. Which?

Answer: In France.

In ancient Greece, the greatest orator of his time was afflicted with a stammer. He was:

Answer: Demosthenes.

Century years 1800 and 1900 were not leap years. Years 2000 and 2400 will be. Why's that?

SMART GALLERY

Fill three basins with water—one hot, one lukewarm, and the other cold. Place your left hand in the hot water and your right hand in the cold. Keep them there for a minute or two. Now, suddenly pluge both hands into the basin that is lukewarm.

In all probability the lukewarm water will feel excessively hot to your right hand and cold to your left.

Try testing someone else and see if they react the same way.

GATEWAY TO FJORD COUNTRY

Bergen: Grand for All Seasons

Merchant adventurers 900 years ago knew Bergen as a rich market place for western Norway.

The British tourist—who seems to lead the pack in these matters—has long known Bergen as the gateway to the fjord country and some of the best fishing water in the world.

Bergensers themselves—all 200,000 of them—have always been fiercely, but quietly, assured that theirs is the most cosmopolitan and charming city in Norway. Scenically, it is much like any spot in British Columbia and culturally a window on Britain and far-off America, just as Vancouver looks out upon Asia.

NEW SERVICE

Today, increasing thousands of Canadians are finding their way to the city, thanks to new Scandinavian Airlines' services which have made it the newest direct port of entry to Europe.

On May 29, SAS will inaugurate a new, direct service from Montreal to Bergen and will then carry on throughout the peak season of traffic with a flight every Wednesday in both directions.

Bergen is an all-season travel centre. In winter and far into spring, excellent snow sport is just 80 minutes north at Voss and Geilo, which provide excellent facilities for both alpine and cross-country style skiing.

From May to September, Bergen harbor is busy with the fjord boats, with three and six-day tour departures daily, as well as shorter excursions.

In June, Bergen is the Festival City. Around its own Harmonien, the oldest symphony orchestra in the world, and the memory of its distinguished composer-pianist Edvard Grieg, Bergen builds an annual program of symphony, opera, ballet and drama drawn from all parts of Scandinavia and much of Europe.

NOW AND THEN

But as Bergensers themselves know, it is Bergen itself which is the main attraction, both the Bergen of today and that of yesterday.

The byways of Bergen's past begin on the north quays of Vogen harbor. Here, gabled, wooden houses press eave to eave along cobblestoned Bryggen. The venerable facades, like weather-beaten seamen's faces, span the ages from the days of westward exploration to modern harbor bustle.

A bit farther along the quay, rise the twin square towers of St. Mary's Church, Bergen's oldest building dating from 1130 A.D. Its austere Romanesque and Gothic architecture is the setting for many treasures, including a 15th century altar screen, an extraordinary 17th century pulpit, Renaissance statues, frescos and paintings.

EXCAVATIONS

To the right of St. Mary's Church is Schotstuene, whose museum gives a picture of life in the times of the Hanseatic League. Close by, major excavations in the Bryggen area are still under way, and the site is fascinating. Archaeologists are revising many of their ideas of European history on the basis of what has been found here; and the deeper they dig, the date of Bergen's beginnings go further and further back into the past.

Left toward the breakwater, rises the stone bulk of Bergenhus, a group of Norway's most treasured buildings.

FINE VIEWS

Earliest portions date from 1248 A.D., with extensive additions from the 1520s and 1560s. The Rosenkrantz Tower has a donjon, oratory, and king's hall, as well as battlements with fine views over the port.

Adjacent Hakon's Hall, whose massive walls were raised in 1261, was damaged during a 1944 harbor explosion.

Recently restored, the hall now boasts sober, wooden vaulting, lovely tapestries and chandeliers. Once again it can be used for royal banquets and civic receptions at which Bergensers and their guests dine with a Viking King.

Parade to Cross U.S. Border

CALEXICO, Calif. — The parade celebrating Mexico's Cinco de Mayo (May 5) independence day will start at the statue of one-armed Obregon in Mexicali south of the border and wind up with a fiesta in this town of the U.S.A.

Calexico and Mexicali, astride the border in the fabulously rich year-around farmlands of the Imperial Valley, share their names, their troubles and their celebrations.

Mexicalians come across the border for American goods in Calexico and Calexicoans take the gate south for duty-free perfume, jewelry, leather work and other wares of Old Mexico.

'Personally Recommended'

Scandinavia's supply of fascinating and uncrowded off-the-beaten-path places continue undiminished despite the growing number of visitors to those countries.

As evidence, each year the directors of the four Scandinavian national travel offices in the U.S. offer a fresh list of their personally recommended spots.

This year's selection: Ribe, in Denmark; Savonlinna, Finland; Godoysund, Norway and Karlstad, Sweden.

It is Denmark's oldest town, dating from 840, and storks still fly here like clockwork from Africa every April to nest on its rooftops.

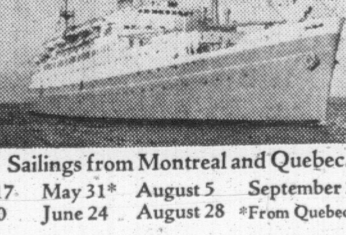
Only the s.s. Maasdam takes you to the 3 big ports. Southampton. Le Havre. Rotterdam.



Sailings from Montreal and Quebec.
April 17 May 31* August 5 September 20
May 10 June 24 August 28 *From Quebec, June 1

The major ports in Europe. The closest to places like Paris, Amsterdam, and to most any other major cities. And only Holland-America sails directly there from Canada. With the s.s. Maasdam, a two-class, fully air-conditioned, stabilizer-equipped ocean liner.

Holland-America has eliminated tipping, too. So you don't have to rush around trying to decide whom to tip and how much. We thought that might make your trip even more pleasant.

What's more, you can arrive in Europe fully rested and ready for work or sightseeing. You'll soon see why Holland-America says the sea wasn't meant to fly over. And you'll feel what it's like to sit down with a salt-air appetite after a busy on-deck day.

So see your travel agent about Holland-America's direct service to Europe. And if sailing dates aren't right, have him show you our New York schedules. Perhaps we can get you to Europe from there on the Rotterdam, Nieuw Amsterdam or Statendam.

BRITISH CABINET SHUFFLE

'Toughie' Barbara in Labor Post

LONDON (CP) — Barbara Castle, an avowed "toughie" with potent reserves of feminine charm, has the biggest job ever won by a woman in British politics.

Prime Minister Wilson appointed the 56-year-old redhead to take charge of the Labor government's explosive wage-restraint program in a ministerial reorganization announced Friday night.

With the new title of secretary of state for employment and productivity, Mrs. Castle takes over a labor ministry with expanded functions. She moves into the political firing line to try to revive a tattered prices-and-income program against the will of rebellious trade unions and suspicious businessmen.

Mrs. Castle's promotion from the transport ministry, where she spent 28 months reforming Britain's motoring practices, was the most spectacular of Wilson's changes.

AWED IN NEW POST

"When I went to the ministry of transport I said to myself I can't do this," she told reporters. "Now I am saying to myself, 'Barbara you must be crazy.'"

The reorganization, spurred by popular rebuffs for Labor in March byelections, alters assignments in only seven of the 21 cabinet posts.

But Wilson has made structural changes designed to streamline government operations.

Fred Peart, 53, takes over Crossman's old duties as party leader in the Commons and Cledwyn Hughes, 51, secretary of state for Wales, will fill Peart's post as agriculture minister.

RELUCTANT FOREBEAR

Ray Gunter, 58, who ran the labor ministry in no-nonsense style since Labor's election in 1964, made way—reluctantly, reports say—for Mrs. Castle. Gunter replaces Richard Marsh, 40, as power minister—overseer of state coal, gas and electricity industries—and Marsh moves into Mrs. Castle's transport job.

Patrick Gordon Walker, 61, has been dropped by Wilson and his job as education minister given to Edward Short, 55, former postmaster-general. Roy Mason, 44 gets the post office job.

Shifts give more power to Wilsonites Crossman and Mrs. Castle—the latter one of the few cabinet members still admired by Labor's left wing—and offset the influence exerted by rightist treasury chief Roy Jenkins, Home Secretary James Callaghan or Defence Secretary Denis Healey, who is said to be on cool terms with Wilson.

SALT SPRING ROUNDUP

Sorting Log Firm Opposed On Burgoyne Bay Permit

GANGES — An application made by Ladysmith Log Sorting Company to separate logs from the West Coast of Vancouver Island in Burgoyne Bay has been opposed by residents of the area.

John Hewitt and John Kellogg have objected to the company's application for a provincial government permit to operate the sorting grounds.

Both men have urged other residents and property owners in the area — on the southwest side of the island — to register their protests as well.

They contend that the use of the waters in Burgoyne Bay and Sansum Narrows would result in pollution and would be "detrimental to the peaceful residential purposes of the area."

Company plans call for storage and sorting of millions of feet of logs discharged from dumping barges.

Deadline for any protest to be considered is April 7.

Pioneer dairy farmer George Heinekey of Vesuvius Bay has been returned to a second year as president of Salt Spring Island Farmers' Institute. It is the oldest established organization on the island.

Officers elected were E. A. Gear, W. Shaw, P. G. James and J. Harkema. Secretary-treasurer Mrs. S. C. McNulty was also elected for a second term.

The meeting approved the publication of a book on the history of the Institute by Mrs. P. G. James and endorsed the continuation of a $200 bursary awarded annually to a local student studying advance agriculture or forestry.

Mr. James, a former Kelowna district agriculturist and government plant experimentalist, spoke of the future of the Gulf Islands as regards specialty farming.

Mr. James has developed several local varieties of grapes and tomatoes.

Les Ramsey a Salt Spring Island phafmacist, has been named director of the B.C. Society for Crippled Children.

Mr. Ramsey, past president of the Salt Spring Island chamber of commerce, will serve with representatives from throughout the province.

Bill Bates, roads foreman at Ganges since 1964, has left to take up new duties at Parksville.

Mr. Bates' family will follow him later. A successor to the position on Salt Spring Island has not been announced.

The Queen of the Islands, which plys between Long Harbor and Tsawwassen, has been taken out of service for two weeks for its annual refit.

The larger vessel, Queen of Sidney, will operate on the run. Additional crewmen have been taken on for this period.

Two persons were injured in separate accidents while travelling aboard the Queen of the Islands car ferry.

Mrs. H. Wood of Vancouver fell as the vessel was leaving Tsawwassen terminal when a gust of wind hurled her against the deck.

In the other incident, Marilou Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rogers of North Galiano suffered a hand injury.

She caught her hand in the hinge of a steel door that was being opened.

Neither passenger was seriously hurt and after medical assistance was released.

Mrs. Wood expressed appreciation for aid rendered by the ship's crew and by Capt. Norman Fiander.

Rangers To See Namesake

Sunday is going to be an eventful day for members of the Cowichan Sea Rangers from Duncan.

A while ago the young ladies in navy blue communicated with Lieut. Jim Buchan, commanding officer of the Esquimalt-based minesweeper HMCS Cowichan. They wanted to see their namesake naval vessel.

The rangers are going to get more of a tour than they expect. They will reach HMC Dockyard at 2 p.m. Sunday, and then will go on a tour of the Dockyard, through the submarine HMCS Grilse, through the destroyer-escort HMCS Columbia, and then tour through the Cowichan. Before leaving the minesweeper they will be presented with a plaque of the ship.

The entire tour will last about two hours. There will be 12 in the visiting group and they will travel in private cars.

Ex-Navy Chiefs Ridicule All-French Ship

Two former Pacific Coast naval commanders have ridiculed a move by the federal government to establish a French-speaking destroyer escort crew at Halifax.

"It's ridiculous," retired Rear-Admiral E. W. H. Finch-Noyes said Friday. "Having just got them together under the tri-services unification plan, they now want to separate them."

"It's for the birds," said retired Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling.

"This is a follow-up of the lunacy that calls for unification in the first place and has been carried to a degree that is not viable in a naval sense.

"It will not produce any form of efficiency."

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux announced the plan for a French-speaking naval unit in Ottawa Tuesday. Later the navy said the destroyer HMCS Ottawa had been designated.

"The biggest fault in the plan," Admiral Stirling said, "will occur when men in the ship find themselves suddenly faced with the task of speaking English to other ships, other forces and other bases."

N. VIETS PULL BACK; RELIEF COLUMN ARRIVES

From Reuters-AP

KHE SANH (CP) — A relief column broke through to the embattled U.S. marine base at Khe Sanh today after thousands of North Vietnamese troops pulled back under the heaviest bombing in history.

Six thousand dirty, unshaven marines, surrounded for more than two months by an overwhelming force of North Vietnamese, started shouting "Yipee, Yipee," when the first South Vietnamese troops arrived.

For the last six days, 30,000 American and South Vietnamese troops in Operation Pegasus raced to reach the 6,000 marines in Khe Sanh.

While the relief forces moved through the remote northeast corner of South Vietnam, the 12,000 remaining North Vietnamese withdrew into Laos.

They pulled back after the heaviest pounding in history—raid after raid by massive B-52 bombers striking as many as five times a day in the tropical rain forests and thick elephant grass around the base.

In Saigon, diplomatic circles speculated that the pullback was a sign of goodwill following the partial bombing halt in U.S. air strikes over North Vietnam.

During the siege of Khe Sanh, the marines were battered daily by North Vietnamese artillery. They lived without daring to walk freely for fear a Communist sniper would shoot them down.

They lived in trenches and bunkers waiting for a North Vietnamese attack. They listened with stethoscopes for North Vietnamese digging tunnels beneath them.

Today, American helicopters landed without Communist bullets and rockets screaming at them.

Today, Khe Sanh was relieved.

Over North Vietnam, the only air strikes reported by the U.S. command for Friday were within 130 miles of the demilitarized zone in what appeared to be further curtailment of the already limited attacks ordered by President Johnson.

Court Reserves Ruling On Alberni Tower Suit

VANCOUVER (CP)—Decision has been reserved in a Supreme Court damage action concerning alleged breach of contract over an $800,000 high-rise apartment building in Port Alberni and other properties.

The suit, heard by Mr. Justice Victor Dryer, was brought by businessman Alfred Vincent Andrews against Centennial Mortgage Corporation.

BLANC AGAIN ANGRY

Pool Project Faces Battle

By DON DINGWALL

NORTH COWICHAN — Retired engineer Frank Blanc is working up a head of steam ready to blast the municipal council's recreation proposals.

Last year, along with realtor Joe Haddock, Mr. Blanc fought council all the way to the Supreme Court of B.C. to try and block a separate north end of the municipality merging bylaw to build a $480,000 ice arena at Fullers Lake.

Now he is preparing to battle against a proposed bylaw to finance a swimming pool, community centre building and playing fields in Pioneer Park.

Total cost of the proposed development at Pioneer Park has been quoted as $980,000 but the joint city and municipal recreation commissions are suggestion initial phases costing $825,000.

TIGHT MONEY

Mr. Blanc quotes Reeve Donald Morton as saying, "The present condition of the money market might mean that even if the people would vote for the bylaw we might have no way of borrowing that much money."

Mr. Blanc also points out the city of Duncan will be picking up 40 per cent of the tab.

He said, "The municipal council is committee to rope in the south end to help pay for the Fullers Lake white elephant.

"Therefore we are being brainwashed in the hope that we are going to get something comparable.

"The reeve himself doesn't have much hope of being able to borrow $980,000.

"He will settle for $100,000 or what have you, and hey presto, if we of the south end vote yes on the bylaw we are automatically stuck with Fullers Lake arena."

'BE ALERT'

Mr. Blanc says if the south taxpayers are willing to go for the $800,000 deal they should be alert not to get stuck with a bylaw for half the amount.

He said, "If that happened $400,000 represents to south end taxpayers only $240,000 as the city of Duncan will be responsible for $160,000. This means that for $240,000 south end residents will be taxed for $720,000."

Municipal clerk A. Vandecasteyen pointed out Friday that merging would not be automatic on passage of a recreation bylaw in the south end.

Council could make a decision to merge without reference to the people but it would have to be done by bylaw.

OVER 6 MILLS

Mr. Blanc said, "Coun. Dennis Hogan has said the actual cost for a taxpayer with an $8,438 assessment would be $50.62 a year for an $800,000 development and $33.75 a year for a $400,000 development.

"The $50.62 is a bit over six mills. Add the $50,000 annual operational deficit and you get a total tax bill of $72.62 for your $8,438 assessment."

Mr. Blance says, "I'm not against recreation. I realize we need facilities.

"However, I also believe that if you can only afford a $3,000 car you're inviting trouble if you buy an $8,000 car."

Mr. Blanc alleges the municipal council "works in devious ways."

CALL IN EXPERT

He said, "after splitting the municipality in order to gain their objective of Fullers Lake arena they call in recreational experts.

"First thing the experts tell them is to start their recreational facilities as near as possible to the greatest concentration of population, and to spread out as ability to pay is achieved.

"What do they do? Put the first project (Fullers Lake arena) 10 miles from the centre of population."

In another tilt at council, Mr. Blanc said the municipality appears to be having difficulty in collections for the new south end water system.

This is a reference to a compulsory hookup bylaw just being enacted by council.

Mr. Blanc said, "The reason council is having difficulty is because many taxpayers are living on fixed incomes and with inflation rampant they just can't find the money for skyrocketing taxes."

Grant Would Improve Ambulance Service

NANAIMO — An ambulance service operator who is making 86.2 cents an hour said he is willing to take a wage cut to ensure that vital ambulance services in the city are maintained.

Gordon Wagner, Island Ambulance Service, asked the regional district board for a $35,248 grant to match the $300 monthly subsidy he gets from the city.

His brief was tabled for a month so that board members could study it and investigate the need for the service suggested by Mr. Wagner.

He said his net wage last year was $7,209. If the grant were made, he told the board, he would pay himself only $7,200.

"The reason I would take less," Mr. Wagner said, "is that I would benefit by working less hours and having holiday-time, because four additional men would be employed."

In one case, he said, his wife, clothed in a nightdress had to drive the second ambulance to a motor accident because volunteer drivers were unavailable.

Year-Round Operation

DUNCAN — A vocational adult training program may be under way by next year, director Robert Thorburn told Cowichan Valley summer school committee.

By that time, he said, Cowichan high school vocational wing training facilities could be used practically all the year round.

Mr. Thorburn said plans call for the program to start in September.

This year's summer school will start July 3 and end Aug. 2. Taking part will be students from Cowichan, Lake Cowichan, Ladysmith and Gulf Islands school districts.

Child Injured Crossing Street

Police report that Eddie Broughton, 420 Richmond, was running across the street from east to west when he collided with a northbound car driven by Helen St, Arnault, 224 Robertson.

He received head injuries. The accident occurred about 3:15 p.m.

Handicapped Building Tubs

NANAIMO—Latest venture by Nanaimo Workshop for the Handicapped is the mini-tub.

So far Nanaimo's annual bathtub race has been mainly for adults. So the workshop has started making model bathtubs for children—about six inches long.

They are made from plastic and are designed for use in the bathtub.

New Film Shows Forest Regions

Three copies of the 17-minute 16mm color film, Forest Regions of Canada, have been presented to the B.C. education department for use in the schools.

This is the first of a continuing series of informative forestry films produced by the National Film Board for the federal department of forestry.

"The department has budgeted about $750,000 for forestry films and visual aid productions," a spokesman said.

$35,000 BILL FOR FLOODING

DUNCAN — City and municipal councils may be faced with a $35,000 bill to correct a flooding situation on the south side of Centennial Heights subdivision.

In December and January this winter houses on Arbutus Avenue and Cedar Place were flooded as surface water off higher municipal ground could not be carried away quickly enough by the city drainage system.

Reeve Donald Morton said at a joint meeting of the councils this week there are several alternatives. Ald. James Saunders, Coun. George Whittaker and the engineers will study them to see if the job can be done at a lower cost.

Mayor Jim Quaife indicated the city has relinquished a piece of land adjacent to its sewage lagoon so North Cowichan will be able to build its own.

North Cowichan now has to negotiate a lease of the property from Cowichan Indian band.

Broken Homes Pose Problem

PORT ALBERNI—The newly-formed Alberni Valley Social Action Committee wants action to cope with the increasing number of broken homes in this area.

First requirement, says the committee, is a fully qualified psychiatrist. Second is the establishment of a Big Brother organization, in which male adults take a special interest in fatherless boys.

Accused, Victim Can't Remember Stabbing Event

He was remanded until April 26 for sentence.

Victim of the assault was his common law wife, Cecilia Alphonse, 35.

Dr. W. C. B. Janes testified a neck wound inflicted on Mrs. Alphonse "could have been fatal."

Magistrate Lance Heard told George he was lucky not to be facing a manslaughter charge.

Mrs. Alphonse was admitted to hospital 2 a.m. on Feb. 20.

Her evidence was that after living with George four years and having four children she separated from him about three weeks prior to the stabbing incident.

She said she had refused on a number of occasions to return to live with him and that he had threatened to kill her.

Mrs. Alphonse admitted she has been drinking beer all day and didn't rember the stabbing at the Allenby Road home of George Norris.

Mrs. Evelyn Point, who lives at the Norris home, said: "I saw him throw Mrs. Alphonse on the floor. She started hollering, and I saw his arm going up and down over her body. Then I saw the knife in his hand. He looked dazed, his eyes were glassy."

On the witness stand, George admitted heavy drinking the day in question.

George said his first recollection after speaking to Mrs. Alphonse was coming to in a Duncan RCMP detachment cell.

Hospital Addition

NANAIMO — A bylaw to raise $4,641,000 for a 133-bed hospital addition was approved Friday by Nanaimo Regional Hospital District board.

RACE VIOLENCE

19 Killed As Guns, Fires Roar

By the Associated Press

A new outburst of violence rocked the U.S. capital today and crack U.S. Army paratroopers joined 4,000 other federal troops there.

In most other American cities hit by violence spawned by the murder of Negro civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the dawn brought a respite.

A wave of looting swept Negro sections of Washington and new fires were reported in neighborhoods seared by hundreds of blazes.

Nineteen persons have died in racial disorders since King was killed Thursday night, including nine in Chicago and five in Washington. Besides Washington, Chicago was heavily damaged by fires Friday night.

NEGROES were urged to arm themselves with guns and take to the streets, in retaliation for the killing of Dr. Martin Luther King, by black power advocate Stokely Carmichael. At news conference in Washington Carmichael said: "We have to retaliate." (AP Wirephoto.)

Two youths died in Detroit, one in Tallahassee. In Minneapolis, police said a Negro killed a white neighbor Thursday night after telling his wife: "My King is dead. I'm going out and get me a honky." In Memphis, where King was murdered, a young Negro man shot by police Thursday night died today.

GUARD BUILDINGS

Paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division—veterans of Vietnam, last summer's Detroit riots and the peace march on the Pentagon last fall—were flown in to help protect the citadels of American government in Washington.

Smoke drifted over the tourist-jammed city from new blazes and still-smouldering fires that gave many buildings the appearance of bombed-out structures.

Police in Washington had at least a dozen reports of looting within 90 minutes of the lifting this morning of a dark-to-dawn curfew imposed by city officials.

In Pittsburgh, roving bands of Negroes smashed windows and looted stores in several sections before police restored order. Police said about 90 arrests were made during the night.

National guard troops and police restored a measure of calm today in Chicago after a night of firebombing, shooting and looting.

UNDER CONTROL

"The situation is under control," said Brig.-Gen. Richard T. Dunn, emergency commander of the Guard.

Chicago was hit by waves of fires, shootings and looting in a predominantly-Negro west side area Friday night and early today. Some 3,000 national guardsmen shuttled from one trouble spot to the next. At least 20 buildings were burned to the ground.

Federal troops, ordered by President Johnson, guarded the White House and Capitol after aiding police and national guardsmen to bring a raging Negro outburst under control . . . Some 350 persons were injured, 2,000 arrested.

Washington, Detroit and Memphis were under curfew.

BACK UP POLICE

National guardsmen also were backing up police in Detroit and the greater Boston area. A unit of 500 guardsmen moved into Pine Bluff, Ark., to keep peace after police and Negroes exchanged sporadic gunfire during the night.

Hunt Widens For Assassin

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — U.S. Attorney-General Ramsey Clark said the manhunt for the killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has spread "several hundred miles from Memphis."

It was almost a desperate bid to find the white assassin of the civil rights leader as hundreds of law enforcement officials pressed the search.

The reward for his arrest grew to $150,000.

Clark appeared pleased with the progress of the investigation. "We've got substantial leads," he said. "We're very hopeful."

LBJ MOVES TO COMBAT VIOLENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, operating from a White House turned into a fortress, has ordered federal troops to protect the capital against violent Negro unrest which has spurred him to schedule an address to Congress Monday night.

Even as he disclosed his actions, roving looters smashed into stores within two blocks of the White House and black clouds of smoke from incendiary fires hung low over the city.

The violence in Washington and other urban centres prompted Johnson to cancel plans for weekend conferences in Honolulu on Vietnam policy and a meeting there with President Chung Hee Park of South Korea.

A presidential spokesman said Johnson remained at his White House command post beyond midnight Friday night, maintaining close touch with the situation in Washington and in other cities wracked by the turmoil.

MET NEGRO LEADERS

In other moves to deal with the national crisis precipitated by King's slaying Thursday night, Johnson met at the White House with civil rights leaders, proclaimed Sunday a national day of mourning for King and ordered all flags over American ships and property here and abroad to be flown at half staff until the burial of the civil rights leader Tuesday.

U.S. REPORTS

Viet Peace Bid Moving Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials report arrangements with North Vietnam for preliminary discussions on peace talks are "moving forward" slowly but are still on the track.

The state department officially disclosed Friday night the North Vietnamese have been notified through diplomatic channels that President Johnson has agreed to "establish contact."

The unintended disclosure was forced, officials said, by a report that North Vietnam's deputy foreign minister, Hoang Van Loi, had said in Algiers the United States had not replied to his government's proposal for preliminary discussions.

Johnson announced Sunday a limited bombing halt over North Vietnam and asked for peace talks. Hanoi responded Wednesday morning with a statement it was ready to make contact. Several hours later Johnson announced: "We will establish contact."

That was followed by the official word through diplomatic channels and officials said Friday night they were waiting for President Ho Chi Minh to make the next move.

President Johnson's cancellation Friday of his Hawaii conference with his top Saigon officials did not affect the peace talk prospects in any way, administration officials said.

Hellyer Places Second

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau grabbed a commanding first-ballot lead today as voting got under way to elect a successor to Prime Minister Pearson.

Here is the first ballot result:

Trudeau	752
Hellyer	330
Winters	293
Martin	277
Turner	277
Greene	169
MacEachen	165
Henderson	0

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin surprised the convention by immediately bowing out of the contest. He did not pledge support to any other specific candidate.

Eric Kierans also withdrew. Lloyd Henderson was automatically eliminated by the clause removing any candidate receiving less than 50 votes.

In the moments before the second ballot started, MacEachen withdrew leaving five names on the ballot: Trudeau, Hellyer, Winters, Turner, Greene.

The first ballot got under way at 10 a.m. but was delayed by computer trouble. Voters who failed to tear off stubs from their ballots confused the machine.

Mr. Kierans in withdrawing freed his delegates to vote for the candidate of their choice. He did not announce who he would support.

While delegates, many reading newspaper stores about racial unrest in the United States, sat through a droning business session in the convention area, a peacenik demonstration was under way outisde.

Several hundred young folk from Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto squatted behind the centre and chanted:

"Johnson's finished, Pearson too,

"The next prime minister will be a murderer too."

Police arrested five long-haired college students who tried to storm the doors of the convention centre carrying a Viet Cong flag.

As well, a dozen picketers paraded outside on the street for the Hamilton Building Trades Council. Their placards demanded jobs.

Early Words Get the Bird

OTTAWA (CP) — Maverick Ralph Cowan threw Pierre Elliott Trudeau workers into a flap today by covering delegate seats at the Liberal leadership convention with a copy of a 1963 article in which Mr. Trudeau referred to "the anti-democratic reflexes of the spineless Liberal herd."

"Did you see the Trudeau people running around picking up the pamphlet I was distributing?" Mr. Cowan snorted indignantly, still passing out copies.

"I asked them what was wrong with it. It was written by Trudeau. They said it was smut."

The article was a translation of one that appeared in the Montreal journal Cite Libre Jan. 3, 1963, titled "Pearson, or the Abdication of the Liberal conscience."

Mr. Cowan, Liberal MP for York-Humber and a voting delegate at the convention, looked at the forests of placards about him just before the voting began and said:

"I think it's the best imitation of an American political convention I have ever seen."

He said he planned to vote for Paul Martin.

"Martin on the third ballot," he predicted.

A paper war raged among the orange seats of the convention site today as supporters of each candidate tried to get rid of the propaganda of the others.

The same thing was being repeated around the arena in the sections where supporters of each of the 10 candidates were to sit when the voting began.

The lesson apparently was learned Friday, when Trudeau supporters quickly flooded seats with Trudeau placards which popped up like a forest when the justice minister took the stage.

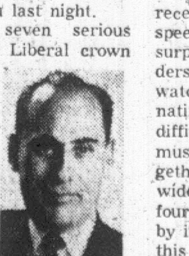
Pierre Rouses Cheers With a Simple Shrug

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The Liberal leadership contest turned into a beautification of Pierre Elliott Trudeau last night.



Newman

When the seven serious seekers of the Liberal crown began their nomination speeches, there was still some lingering doubt about the outcome of today's voting. But by the time the response of the delegate-audience has been measured, the only remaining question was which ballot would make Trudeau the fifteenth prime minister of Canada.

Except for the frenetic reception to the Trudeau speech, it was a night of few surprises. Each of the contenders did his own thing and watching them, it was fascinating to contemplate the difficulties Lester Pearson must have had keeping together a cabinet of such widely disparate men. For four hours they paraded by in their infinite variety and this is how they looked to me:

Paul Martin starts the evening, looking like an automaton reproduction of himself. An old pro to the end, he betrays no small sign of lack of confidence. His presentation is a mixture of on-stage politics, off-stage bunkum, a blend of political savvy, high-minded inanities, partisan ploys, unctuous compliments. There is a slick old radio rhythm in his speech reminiscent more of music hall than television.

The odd thing about Paul Martin's cliches is that they blow up like bubbles, getting thinner and thinner, then vanish before one knows what, if anything, they really mean. He can mix in the U.S. civil rights with the aspirations of French-Canada and make it all sound uninteresting and uninvolving though not entirely illogical. He keeps stressing his experience and

. . . face up to facts

'Black Ghettos Must Go'

Bunche was interviewed in his office as he prepared to attend King's funeral as a representative of UN Secretary-General U Thant, who is in Europe. Bunche is undersecretary-general for special political affairs and the highest ranking American in the UN secretariat.

Bunche and King were old friends and the two Negroes both won the Nobel Peace Prizes—Bunche in 1950 for negotiating Arab-Israeli armistice agreements, King in 1964 for promoting non-violent protest as a way to win civil rights for Negroes.

Bunche said "those who scorn non-violence will seek to exploit the fact . . . that the leading exponent of non-violence has been taken away by a brutal act of violence, and they can make very much of this."

"I feel there's only one way to counteract this—the only way I can think of," he went on, "and that is for the society, all of those who believe in the ideals of the society, to face up to the very tough fact that palliatives will just not do with regard to this question.

"The crucial question today is whether the citizens and the power structure can muster the will really to tackle the problem by hitting straight at the worst, the most vicious manifestation of American racism in the country today, and that is the black ghetto.

"The ghetto now is where the majority of black citizens live. . . . The black citizen is confined there because he is really not wanted on the outside.'

Last Rites At Small Negro Church

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. will return for the last time Monday to the small Negro church where he and his father preached the doctrines of human dignity and non-violence.

King's wife asked that his funeral be held at the Ebenezer Baptist Church, which had been a touchstone for her husband throughout his turbulent career.

That career was ended in Memphis, Tenn., Thursday by an assassin's bullet.

Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. was pastor of Ebenezer when the slain Negro leader was born. It was in this church that the younger King grew up and it was where he returned as copastor with his father after his role as a civil rights leader brought him international fame.

King's body will lie in state at Spelman College for 48 hours beginning at 4 p.m. today. The body will be taken to the church Monday and the funeral will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday.

DISCIPLE OF NON-VIOLENCE

King's 'Shadow' in Command

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Always in the shadow at the side of his leader now fallen, Rev. Ralph David Abernathy had to step Friday into the place of the man he presented to countless audiences as "the Moses of the 20th century."

As Moses had an Aaron, so Martin Luther King Jr. had a Ralph Abernathy to lean on from the beginning of his human rights crusade.

Abernathy went to jail with King 17 times, the last time in Birmingham, Ala., last year for an old contempt of court conviction. "We always prayed together in jail," Abernathy recalled.

REV. ABERNATHY
. . . to continue work

After King's assassination, Abernathy as vice-president-at-large assumed the duties of president of Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which he and King founded in 1957.

"I never had any desire to lead the movement," Abernathy, 42, said in an interview three years ago. He said King was the symbol and the leader. "I always wanted to stand with him and not ahead of him."

It was usually up to Abernathy to warm up an audience for King's oratory.

"We needed a philosophy, a philosopher and a theory to undergird and sustain the movement," Abernathy once said. "We needed also a practical and down-to-earth message. Consequently in every mass meeting, both of us spoke. I never sought to duplicate Dr. King."

Abernathy's church was one of four in Montgomery that were hit by bombs in 1956. He was pastor of the Negro First Baptist Church in Montgomery for 10 years after attending Alabama State College where he taught sociology. He moved to Atlanta in 1961 to become pastor of West Hunter Street Baptist, near the complex of predominantly-Negro colleges. He has a wife and three children. He was born in rural Linden, Ala.

A stolid disciple of non-violence, Abernathy said after king was slain: "While he lived, he taught us we should not let violence turn us around."

The Truth Was Bad Enough: Rumors Were Something Else

By The Associated Press

Racial violence in several big U.S. cities brought disorder, destruction and death Friday, but the wild rumors which circulated carried tales which far exceeded the facts.

New York, Chicago and Washington were particularly plagued with rumors that increased fears, added to unrest and kept officials busy tracking down the untrue reports.

Chicago's commission of human relations rumor centre received calls at a breakneck pace inquiring about untrue reports of wholesale looting in the Loop, fires burning out of control on the West Side and widespread rioting on the South Side.

"They call out of fear," said a spokesman for the agency which was established last summer to dispel rumors. "Some of them think they are reporting facts. They tell us matter-of-factly about the riots on State Street." There were none.

The false reports in Washington included stories of burning and looting moving into the Maryland and Virginia suburbs and of army tanks being moved into the city.

The Urban League set up several telephone lines for residents to call and check on the rumors. Television and radio announcers told listeners to call the numbers.

The danger of circulating unfounded rumors was noted in the report of the president's commission on civil disorders which said of the 1967 riots:

"Rumors significantly aggravated tension and disorder in more than 65 per cent of the disorders studies by the commission. Sometimes, as in Tampa and New Haven, rumor served as the spark which turned an incident into a civil disorder.

"Elsewhere, notably in Detroit and Newark, even where they were not precipitating or motivating factors, inflaming rumors made the job of police and community leaders far more difficult."

In New York some false reports proved so persistent that businesses permitted employees, particularly women, to leave for home early in the afternoon.

One untrue story had it that a horde of Negroes had invaded the Flatbush section of Brooklyn and was stabbing white persons. Another false story said, "All hell is breaking loose in Jersey City and they are bombing buses."

Pride, Happiness Peaks End in Valley of Tears

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. was planning a singing career when she met a young Baptist minister. Coretta Scott, a slender, attractive brunette with long hair, married her minister and became involved in civil rights instead.

Her marriage to Dr. King took her to peaks of pride and happiness—and now the valley of tears.

"I wish we could remain on this mountain top forever," she said when her husband won the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize.

But there were times of despair, and Thursday her husband, devoted to non-violence, was slain in Memphis by an assassin's bullet.

Mrs. King long has lived with the threat of death. And thus far she has remained composed.

She has seen her husband jailed, stabbed, threatened and has had her home rocked by a bomb blast.

Since her childhood days in Perry County, Ala., where she was born, Mrs. King said she was determined to do something worthwhile in the fight for civil rights.

Since their marriage, Mrs. King has sung at concerts for numerous civil rights organizations and has accompanied her husband on many of his trips in behalf of civil rights.

"With four children, this isn't always easy to do," she has said. The children are Yolanda, 12, Martin Luther King III, 11, Dexter Scott, 7, and Bernice, 5.

The King home in a lower-income Negro neighborhood is filled with mementos from admirers.

There also is a bust of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and an abstract oil painting titled Integration, painted and given them by a great-great-granddaughter of John Brown, the 19th century abolitionist.

Arthur Mayse

The American dream has collided once more with the American fact, and a sad, violent, troubled union has gained what it could do very well without.

This is another martyr —Atlanta-born clergyman and freedom fighter Martin Luther King, Jr., who on Thursday went the way of Kennedy and Lincoln.

His weapons were reason, humanity, and a passion for freedom. He did not deal in violence, but ironically, it is the violent hordes of Black Power who will avenge him. If, as the evidence indicates, a white man killed him, his death will be added to the blood-debt chalked up by the Negro against his oppressors.

Dr. King would not have it that way. Even while he lived, however, his influence with his people had waned, and the balance had tipped toward the violence he detested.

Last summer saw the preliminary skirmishes in the open war of black against white. All the signs point to worse holocausts, worse riots.

Martin Luther King failed in his intent, but the Memphis bushwhacker's bullet has transmuted him into a symbol. His soul goes marching on, though not in a direction this great American would have chosen.

I think the United States is perilously close to an explosion. If it materializes, we will feel its shock-waves even here in cool green Canada, where escaped Negroes of an earlier generation found freedom at the end of the Underground Railway.

Dr. King had nothing material to gain from his involvement in his people's struggle. He was a well-educated churchman, recognized in his field, with a wife and family, and a comfortable life in prospect.

Had he so chosen, he could have enjoyed a genteel career well-removed from the trouble, the ignorance, the hunger and the brutishness of his country's Negro ghettoes. He had a touch of Harvard in his speech, and he held scholarship awards years before he won the Nobel Peace Prize.

He could have played it snug and safe. There was no need for him to place his life in daily jeopardy, and to die as Mahatma Gandhi of India did, an assassin's victim.

But he took the risks; and perhaps because of the courage and strong conviction in him, that course was required of him.

Even the name he wore made its demands upon him.

"Here I stand," said that earlier Martin Luther, his fate and his Reformation in the balance. "Before God, I can do no other."

What he sought was to win every American Negro the freedoms that are his by right, under his country's constitution. It was a grand vision, but it would seem now that the wrong done to a race demands a price more bitter than Martin Luther King would have exacted from his white compatriots.

We in Canada have not inherited the fruits of slavery. Our internal problems are of a different sort, and I think we will have solved them long before the United States emerges from its grievous trouble.

There's little help we can give to our neighbor and friend, but we can pity her in a situation rooted deep in the past.

It is true that in the century since the War Between the States, little was done until very recent years to right the Negro's condition. But the fact remains that white Americans of good will are striving to turn constitutional promises into honest fact. These deserve our sympathy.

We can not guess how and when the Negro will come to the end of a freedom road grown terribly wild and strange, since he abandoned Martin Luther King as his guide.

All we can be sure of is that the fires of riot are burning again, and the answer still blowing in the wind.

Starts With Bomb . . . Ends With Blast

By JOHN MIKA

The legislature—which began with a spurious bomb threat when it opened 73 days ago — was to prorogue late today still reeling from the most violent explosion of bitterness in the session.

Speaker William Murray was forced into an apology and NDP caucus chairman Randolph Harding into an embarrassing admission after Premier Bennett, shaking with rage and almost screaming, accused Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) of a "double-cross" Friday night.

The chain reaction erupted early in the rare Friday night sitting—called reluctantly by Mr. Bennett at the NDP's specific request in order to wind up the session today—after Mr. Nimsick had shouted a denunciation of the premier, accusing him of deliberately trying to legislate by exhaustion.

The subsequent blowup was a fittingly symbolic climax to the longest session, and one of the most vituperative, in 66 years which was keyed by:

- ● Phil Gaglardi's slow-motion retreat from the highways portfolio under severe fire from the opposition in the house and his own party in closed caucus;
- ● A half-dozen rare public demonstrations including two unprecedented outbursts in the public galleries during which an angry PTA mother interrupted a speech by Education Minister Peterson and a chant by some 60 Gaglardi supporters who forced a clearing of the galleries for the first time in memory.

Today's hastily-arranged 81st sitting was expected to be anit-climactic although unusual because it is Saturday and Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will have to interrupt his visit to Courtenay for a school opening to fly back to the capital to read the closing speech, probably about 6 p.m.

SPEAKER MURRAY
. . . apologized

Friday's outbursts began shortly after the MLAs returned from supper for its 23rd night sitting and their fifth in a row which Mr. Nimsick said was outrageous programming by the government.

Several opposition and government members hurled verbal barbs across the floor with such intensity that chairman Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) pounded his gavel and asked:

"Can we have a little bit of order and sanity in the house?"

"I've had enough of that show," said Premier Bennett, referring to Mr. Nimsick's outburst, and walked out of the house.

A few moments later worried NDP MLAs held a conversation with speaker William Murray (SC—Prince Rupert) in the corridor outside the chamber.

The uproar in the house continued, and Mr. Nimsick accused the government MLAs of acting "like a bunch of school kids."

The house moved easily through the $126,093,492 estimates of the hospital insurance services branch and began debating the $40,134 estimates of the three women ministers without-portfolio when the premier returned to the house.

NDP members demanded some justification for the expense of paying "supernumeraries to the cabinet" who had not attempted to explain what their duties as ministers were.

And Mr. Strachan said it was an insult to the house and the taxpayers that Mr. Bennett should have added Phil Gaglardi as a fourth minister without portfolio during the session but had refused to ask the legislature's approval to add his salary to the vote.

Mr. Nimsick said the government was spending money frivolously to pay "propaganda ministers for a political machine."

Premier Bennett, beet red and swinging his arms, shouted full-lunged that he wouldn't stand for "this insult to all the women of this province.

"This is a double-cross," he roared. "The NDP is the party of the double-cross and I'll never trust them again."

"I ask for Mr. Speaker to make a statement to this house."

Speaking slowly but angrily, Mr. Strachan said:

"That is one of the most wild and irresponsible statements ever made by a premier of this province.

FUTURE OF ANCIENT Victoria West elementary school is uncertain as it is caught up with other school projects in a construction freeze. But model, examined here by pupils Lora Schellenberg and Michael Teeple, both 9, shows what school board plans would produce. At estimated cost of $674,000, project would mean virtually new school. Recent indications are department of education may approve building some additional classrooms on site, if revised plans meet approval.

'OFFICIAL PREJUDICE?'

Teacher 'Victim of Own Error'

By PETE LOUDON

Geoff Winslowe, who had come here some months ago from Wesport, California, was the victim of an official prejudice against his goatee and moustache, one of his friends said today.

But an immigration official said Mr. Winslowe was a victim of his own error in taking work in Canada before he had official permission or landed immigrant status.

His friend, who was not identified, said Mr. Winslowe had excellent qualifications for his teaching post but he had been treated with suspicion by immigration authorities who "chose not to give him" permission to remain.

'HAD NO OPTION'

District administrator of Canadian Immigration here, Doug Cook, said, "We had no option. He's been asked to leave, but he has not been deported. It was a voluntary departure."

Mr. Winslowe was given until Sunday to leave voluntarily.

His compliance with the department request means he can still apply to enter Canada as an immigrant at a later date, said Mr. Cook.

Mr. Winslowe's acceptance of a teaching position here without permission from an immigration officer and without landed immigrant status violated regulations.

Because he broke the rule, special permission could not now be granted, said Mr. Cook.

Mr. Winslowe's friend said the U.S. teacher had not technically broken a regulation because he had made an agreement with Craigdarroch school to work without payment until his status here was legal, then his pay would be retroactive. This argument was not acceptable to the officials.

Craigdarroch school is an independent private school, opened 18 months ago and with a small enrolment.

The teaching philosphy behind it is to let youngsters discover and learn according to ability and interests.

Mr. Winslowe's friend said, "Today, he gave up. He decided to go quietly. He left with $900, a wife who is seven months' pregnant and an old car.

"He was catching a ferry for Port Angeles, but he had nowhere to go."

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me where I can obtain a card for entering movies under the "Golden Age" rule and how old must one be? A.D.

A. The card is given to persons of pension age by the four Famous Players' theatres in the city — the Odeon, Capitol, Haida and Royal. To get a card, go to the office of one of the theatres. There is no fixed age limit. The card lets you in at children's prices and is recognized by Famous Players' theatres across Canada.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

80 Unionists Turn Out

Just over 80 trade unionists turned out this morning for a two-day educational seminar organized by the Victoria Labour Council.

Greatest interest was in two shop steward courses, under instructors Jack Groves, labor council president, and Ron Tweedie, a Canadian Labour Congress representative.

There were also courses on B.C. labor law, conducted by assistant secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour John McNiven, and Parliamentary procedure, conducted by Dan Radford, regional education director of the Canadain Labour Congress. The sessons were at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

'WE FELT LIKE PUNCHING SOMEONE!'

City 'Tars' Mr. Pickwick And Two Artists Are Miffed

They presented City Hall with a statue Friday night and later saw it trundled away "in the back of an old truck with tar in it."

The pair, who wish to remain anonymous for the present, said in an interview the statue was the result of two months' work. It was a life-sized image of Dicken's Mr. Pickwick. Made of concrete and another substance, it stood on a pedestal and weighed a ton.

They had undertaken the work as an experiment with a new medium and "we wanted to bequeath it to someone." The left it on the steps of City Hall.

"We came by at 11 p.m. and saw some workmen pitching it on an old truck with tar etc., in it. And the statue was white. We felt like punching somebody."

They said they didn't reclaim the statue and don't know where it is now.

"But the whole thing was done in good humor and it wasn't offensive. We thought there would be less red tape if we just made it an anonymous gift. We're most offended that it was treated this way."

One of the artists said they would like to retain their anonymity until they know the city's reaction.

'Police Won't Patrol Dances'

By JIM HUME

Mayor Hugh Stephen Friday termed "patently ridiculous" a request that city police be stationed at teen-age dances in the city.

He was replying to a letter from Jim Melsness, promotion manager for The Marquis, a local dance group.

Mr. Melsness, who also forwarded copies of his letter to other municipal leaders and all area police chiefs, said it is the duty of the police to be where trouble might be anticipated.

At present the police patrol the area in which a dance is being held but they do not station men inside the dance hall, neither do they enter the hall unless called in the event of trouble or advised that trouble is brewing.

Dance promoters usually hire their own inside patrol either from the ranks of commissionaires or by paying off-duty but uniformed police officers.

'PAY PROTECTION'

In his letter Mr. Melsness charged that by being forced to pay for protection the sponsors of young peoples dances are being penalized financially.

In calling for on-duty policemen to be present at dances, Mr. Melsness said he anticipated the objection that the police department was short-staffed.

"However, this is equally true of most other police departments and they have enough men to patrol their city dances. After all, isn't it logical that the police should be in the place where trouble is most likely to occur?

"Certainly the large number of fights and the amount of liquor consumed by minors at public dances in the past is convincing evidence that it is the police departments duty to be in attendance at these functions whether they are paid by the promoter or not."

NOT CONVINCED

The letter failed to convince Mayor Stephen, who is also the chairman of the police commission, that the police had a duty to chaperone private functions.

"It is no part of the police department's job to be running around attending every privately-sponsored function in the city," the mayor said. "It is patently ridiculous to expect the police to do so.

"These young people often amaze me. They are all for taking life in their own hands, they are all for rejecting adult supervision, they want independence—but they also want the public purse to sustain them at the first sign of a problem.

"Surely it is incumbent on anyone running a dance for a profit to provide the patrons of the event with the protection they are justified in expecting.

"I take the view that anyone who assembles people together, whether teen-agers or adults, is responsible for providing protection for those people."

Mayor Stephen said people running dances are in the same category as people who operate night clubs.

EMPLOY BOUNCER

"The night club employs a bouncer and calls the police only when it is essential," he said. "I think dance promoters must do the same. Surely these young people have enough initiative to find a way to keep trouble makers away from their events?"

Deputy police chief Ray Maitland said it would be impossible for the police to staff every privately sponsored dance in the city.

"If we do that we shall soon be requested to have a man on duty in the beer parlors," he said. "We deploy our men to the best possible advantage for the best protection of the public at large. I am sure the taxpayers would never go for the very heavy cost of providing the extra policemen required if we are to station an on duty man at every dance in the city."

HOSPITALS WILL TEST READINESS

Six ambulances, two station wagons, an army truck and 120 simulated casualties will descend on four Victoria hospitals April 22.

The casualties, artistically disguised as victims of an earthquake in Oak Bay, will test the readiness of hospitals which are already normally overcrowded.

The disaster exercise will be the largest ever held here and will simultaneously involve Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's, Veterans' and Resthaven Hospitals.

Backgrounding the exercise, sponsored by the hospitals, is a recent airliner crash at Vancouver which saw 90 per cent of the persons hurt sent to Richmond Hospital.

'CHAOTIC'

"The results were somewhat chaotic," states an instruction booklet prepared for the Victoria exercise.

The make-believe earthquake is scheduled for 7 p.m. at which time the "casualties" will be dispatched from War Amputees Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue.

Aim is to have all casualties treated and returned to the hall soon after 9:30 p.m.

Victoria city police will give prior instruction to all drivers on routes to the hospitals, traffic regulations and the use of sirens and flashing red lights. Police will also direct traffic at the hospitals. St. John Ambulance Brigade will provide stretcher-bearers for the exercise.

Concert Features Sacred Classics

A concert of sacred classics and hymn arrangements will be given in Emmanuel Baptist Church, 1900 Fernwood Road, Wednesday at 8 p.m. by the Biola Collegians of Biola College, La Mirada, California.

LLOYD BRERETON
. . . why 'God'?

'Does Our Future Depend On Supernatural Force?'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Use of the word God in Canada's national anthem has been protested by the Humanist Fellowship of Victoria.

Humanists object to the substitution of "God keep our land glorious and free" for "O Canada, we stand on guard for thee."

"This is the first time God has been included in the words of our national anthem," says Humanist spokesman J. L. Brereton.

"The present wording, in straightforward English and as a single thought, acclaims a glorious country worth guarding. By contrast, the proposed new wording introduces a negative thought by means of an obsolete construction.

"The words, God keep our land glorious and free, will be obscure to most children and many adults. They suggest that, unless some vague supernatural force intervenes, Canada will slip."

Mr. Brereton suggests, if these words are included, Canadian children will become imbued with the idea that Canada's future "depends upon the goodwill of some supernatural force when, in fact, it rests with every young Canadian."

"The introduction of so ill-defined an idea as God reduces the value of the anthem even for those who profess the Christian religion. But, for thousands of Humanists, Indians, Eskimos, Buddhists, and Hindus who are also Canadians, it introduces a completely alien idea."

Coats with a swashbuckling air . . .

We may have touched on the odd one of them before . . . but the Kaptain Kid Kollection (they really spell it this way, we kid you not . . . oops! pardon the pun) . . . now complete at the Madam and Eve Shop . . . is everything the youngsters mean when they apply the adjective "neat" . . Our own description would be "dashing" . . . romantic . . . exciting! . . . Collection consists of coats whose cut brings to mind the swashbuckling days of yore . . . One is navy with slightly A-line flair . . . two pleats in the back, wide lapels, gauntlet cuffs . . . white mother of pearl buttons on the double-breasted front and sleeves . . . A white taffeta scarf covered with ruffled lace fills in the neckline . . . size 11 . . . and a similar coat in a sunny yellow is size 13 . . . A 3-piece outfit, is made up of very fine grey flannel coat and skirt . . . the former with brown velvet facing on collar and buttons . . . and beruffled white crepe drip-dry blouse . . . size 11 . . . Another terrific grey coat in this collection has extra wide collar, lapels and cuffs of brown velvet . . . double row of buttons down front . . . ruffled lace scarf tucked in the neckline . . . It's one of a kind, size 7 . . . and is the sort of coat that would carry you right through the summer into fall . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

Say Happy Easter with a new book . . .

One of the most difficult things we had to do last week was tear ourselves away from the Book Nook . . . and the enthralling new books fresh in from the publishers . . . "Airport" . . . from the pen of that master story-teller Arthur Hailey . . . takes you inside the hidden nerve centres that control a great modern airport . . . a tense, exciting tale which promises to become a national bestseller . . . "Voyageurs of the Air", by J. R. K. Main, is a "must" for anyone interested in aviation . . . it's the fascinating history of civil aviation in Canada . . . the saga of Canada's early pilots and the development of a vital industry . . . Two wildly funny books are "Rosy is my Relative" . . . first novel of noted author of books on animals, the famous Gerald Durrell . . . (Rosy is an elephant with a taste for strong drink!) . . . and "To England with Love" . . . a wickedly satirical book about the English, authored by David Frost and Antony Jay . . . A wonderful new cat book, lavishly illustrated, is Fernand Mery's "The Life, History and Magic of the Cat" . . . and "The Naked Ape," by zoologist Desmond Morris, is not to be missed . . . it's a most provocative, amusing and stimulating study of man . . . meaning US! . . . The Book Nook, 10 Centennial Square, 386-0813.

In Step With Style

GIRLS SEW FOR CONTEST

Can a contest have too many entrants? The three judges were inclined to think so as they pondered over more than 100 garments entered in last year's "Teen-age Sewing Contest."

Damaske

Next week preliminary judging will take place for the 1968 "Teen-age Sewing Contest" presented by Eaton's in conjunction with Air Canada, McCall's Patterns and the Canadian Cotton Council.

Submission of entries is complete and again it looks like a tough assignment for the judges as contestants from all parts of Vancouver Island have sent in garments to this popular contest.

Dark-haired, 19-year-old Judi Dalrymple, 2930 Westdowne Road, was last year's winner.

Judging is based on the perfection of the garment and its suitability to the wearer. Simplicity of line was the keynote of the dress submitted by Judi. This simplicity allowed the fine workmanship and the excellent choice of fabric and color to be fully appreciated. Her becoming A-line shift was fashioned in sailcloth in shades of tangerine, acid green and purple. Prowess as a milliner was evident in the floppy brimmed sunhat of the same crisp fabric.

NATIONAL WINNER

In August the talented seamstress went to Montreal to compete in the national finals and much to our delight she was the grand prize winner.

The striped dress, the pictured pant suit and an ivory and brown late day dress were the three garments judged in the Eastern city. Judi spent a week in Montreal.

Judi is in her second year at the University of Victoria and will enter the University of British Columbia in September where she will work for a degree in home economics. Her hope is to major in textiles and perhaps teach in this field or work with a large textile or pattern company.

Summer plans are already well under way for this busy young lady. In August she and a university student friend will take advantage of her Montreal prize . . . a two-week trip for two to Hawaii. They will travel by Air Canada and stay at the Hilton Hawaiian Village.

HOLIDAY LESSONS

The balance of the holiday season will see Judi gaining more knowledge in her chosen field. She will take a course in pattern drafting from talented Ursula Redwood. This course will allow her to enter the world of fashion creation, and opens up the field of haute couture designing.

Judi is presently making a white hopsack dress to coordinate with her navy and white pant suit. Her next project is to use, for the first time, an original French pattern. This more complex late-day dress will be made in white wool.

This year the national finals are to be held in Vancouver with the grand prize being a week in New York at the Waldorf Astoria. While in New York the winner will be shown many aspects of the fashion field.

The winner of the Victoria contest will compete in Vancouver and will also go with other district winners to Toronto.

The public will be welcomed to Eaton's dining room on Friday evening, April 19, and Saturday afternoon, April 20, to see the final 30 garments modelled by the contestants.

DEAR ABBY . . .

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What is a widow to do? I'm not ready for a rest home yet, being only 41 years old. I have two attractive, well-behaved children, a nice home, no debts, and a good steady income. No worries, except where to find a decent man who wants a decent woman.

I've been a widow for two years and have been told that I am "desirable." I started to date a year ago, and every man I go out with hands me the same line. ("What's one more slice off a loaf of bread that's already been cut?"—or words to that effect). If that doesn't work, I'm told that it's emotionally unhealthy for a woman who has been accustomed to a normal sex life to go without sex. Then they try to save my mental health by volunteering to provide me with a normal sex life. (Now it's therapy.)

Then there are the men who want female companionship, but they tell you on the first date that they don't want you to get "serious" as they don't want to get involved.

Have men always been this way, Abby? Or is this a new breed?

POPULAR WIDOW.

DEAR POPULAR: No, it's not a new breed. Such men have always been around, but your luck is unusually bad to have encountered them all in the first year. There are plenty of decent men in the world. You need new friends.

Confidential to "H" in Orange County: Don't ever be ashamed to admit you were wrong. It's one way of saying you're smarter today than you were yesterday.

Confidential to "Bewildered in Anaheim": A nice girl who is constantly approached with insulting propositions from strangers out to check her appearance. There is something wrong with her packaging.

BRITISH CABINET SHUFFLE

'Toughie' Barbara in Labor Post

BARBARA
. . . 'I must be crazy'

RANKS THIRD

For the last decade Canada has ranked third among countries in government spending on social security.

LONDON (CP) — Barbara Castle, an avowed "toughie" with potent reserves of feminine charm, has the biggest job ever won by a woman in British politics.

Prime Minister Wilson appointed the 56-year-old redhead to take charge of the Labor government's explosive wage-restraint program in a ministerial reorganization announced Friday night.

With the new title of secretary of state for employment and productivity, Mrs. Castle takes over a labor ministry with expanded functions. She moves into the political firing line to try to revive a tattered prices-and-income program against the will of rebellious trade unions and suspicious businessmen.

Mrs. Castle's promotion from the transport ministry, where she spent 28 months reforming Britain's motoring practices, was the most spectacular of Wilson's changes.

AWED IN NEW POST

"When I went to the ministry of transport I said to myself I can't do this," she told reporters. "Now I am saying to myself, 'Barbara you must be crazy.'"

The reorganization, spurred by popular rebuffs for Labor in March byelections, alters assignments in only seven of the 21 cabinet posts.

But Wilson has made structural changes designed to streamline government operations.

Fred Peart, 53, takes over Crossman's old duties as party leader in the Commons and Cledwyn Hughes, 51, secretary of state for Wales, will fill Peart's post as agriculture minister.

RELUCTANT FOREBEAR

Ray Gunter, 58, who ran the labor ministry in no-nonsense style since Labor's election in 1964, made way—reluctantly, reports say—for Mrs. Castle. Gunter replaces Richard Marsh, 40, as power minister—overseer of state coal, gas and electricity industries—and Marsh moves into Mrs. Castle's transport job.

Patrick Gordon Walker, 61, has been dropped by Wilson and his job as education minister given to Edward Short, 55, former postmaster-general. Roy Mason, 44 gets the post office job.

Shifts give more power to Wilsonites Crossman and Mrs. Castle—the latter one of the few cabinet members still admired by Labor's left wing—and offset the influence exerted by rightist treasury chief Roy Jenkins; Home Secretary James Callaghan or Defence Secretary Denis Healey, who is said to be on cool terms with Wilson.

SALT SPRING ROUNDUP

Sorting Log Firm Opposed On Burgoyne Bay Permit

GANGES — An application made by Ladysmith Log Sorting Company to separate logs from the West Coast of Vancouver Island in Burgoyne Bay has been opposed by residents of the area.

John Hewitt and John Kellogg have objected to the company's application for a provincial government permit to operate the sorting grounds.

Both men have urged other residents and property owners in the area — on the southwest side of the island — to register their protests as well.

They contend that the use of the waters in Burgoyne Bay and Sansum Narrows would result in pollution and would be "detrimental to the peaceful residential purposes of the area."

Company plans call for storage and sorting of millions of feet of logs discharged from dumping barges.

Deadline for any protest to be considered is April 7.

Pioneer dairy farmer George Heinekey of Vesuvius Bay has been returned to a second year as president of Salt Spring Island Farmers' Institute. It is the oldest established organization on the island.

Officers elected were E. A. Gear, W. Shaw, P. G. James and J. Harkema. Secretary-treasurer Mrs. S. C. McNulty was also elected for a second term.

The meeting approved the publication of a book on the history of the Institute by Mrs. P. G. James and endorsed the continuation of a $200 bursary awarded annually to a local student studying advance agriculture or forestry.

Mr. James, a former Kelowna district agriculturist and government plant experimentalist, spoke of the future of the Gulf Islands as regards specialty farming.

Mr. James has developed several local varieties of grapes and tomatoes.

Les Ramsey a Salt Spring Island pharmacist, has been named director of the B.C. Society for Crippled Children. Mr. Ramsey, past president of the Salt Spring Island chamber of commerce, will serve with representatives from throughout the province.

Bill Bates, roads foreman at Ganges since 1964, has left to take up new duties at Parksville.

Mr. Bates' family will follow him later. A successor to the position on Salt Spring Island has not been announced.

The Queen of the Islands, which plys between Long Harbor and Tsawwassen, has been taken out of service for two weeks for its annual refit.

The larger vessel, Queen of Sidney, will operate on the run. Additional crewmen have been taken on for this period.

Two persons were injured in separate accidents while travelling aboard the Queen of the Islands car ferry.

Mrs. H. Wood of Vancouver fell as the vessel was leaving Tsawwassen terminal when a gust of wind hurled her against the deck.

In the other incident, Marilou Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rogers of North Galiano suffered a hand injury. She caught her hand in the hinge of a steel door that was being opened.

Neither passenger was seriously hurt and after medical assistance was released.

Mrs. Wood expressed appreciation for aid rendered by the ship's crew and by Capt. Norman Fiander.

Rangers To See Namesake

Sunday is going to be an eventful day for members of the Cowichan Sea Rangers from Duncan.

A while ago the young ladies in navy blue communicated with Lieut. Jim Buchan, commanding officer of the Esquimalt-based minesweeper HMCS Cowichan. They wanted to see their namesake naval vessel.

The rangers are going to get more of a tour than they expect. They will reach HMC Dockyard at 2 p.m. Sunday, and then will go on a tour of the Dockyard, through the submarine HMCS Grilse, through the destroyer-escort HMCS Columbia, and then tour through the Cowichan. Before leaving the minesweeper they will be presented with a plaque of the ship.

The entire tour will last about two hours. There will be 12 in the visiting group and they will travel in private cars.

Ex-Navy Chiefs Ridicule All-French Ship

Two former Pacific Coast naval commanders have ridiculed a move by the federal government to establish a French-speaking destroyer escort crew at Halifax.

"It's ridiculous," retired Rear-Admiral E. W. H. Finch-Noyes said Friday. "Having just got them together under the tri-services unification plan, they now want to separate them."

"It's for the birds," said retired Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling.

"This is a follow-up of the lunacy that calls for unification in the first place and has been carried to a degree that is not viable in a naval sense.

"It will not produce any form of efficiency."

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux announced the plan for a French-speaking naval unit in Ottawa Tuesday. Later the navy said the destroyer HMCS Ottawa had been designated.

"The biggest fault in the plan," Admiral Stirling said, "will occur when men in the ship find themselves suddenly faced with the task of speaking English to other ships, other forces and other bases."

N. VIETS PULL BACK; RELIEF COLUMN ARRIVES

From Reuters-AP

KHE SANH (CP) — A relief column broke through to the embattled U.S. marine base at Khe Sanh today after thousands of North Vietnamese troops pulled back under the heaviest bombing in history.

Six thousand dirty, unshaven marines, surrounded for more than two months by an overwhelming force of North Vietnamese, started shouting "Yipee, Yipee," when the first South Vietnamese troops arrived.

For the last six days, 30,000 American and South Vietnamese troops in Operation Pegasus raced to reach the 6,000 marines in Khe Sanh.

While the relief forces moved through the remote northeast corner of South Vietnam, the 12,000 remaining North Vietnamese withdrew into Laos.

They pulled back after the heaviest pounding in history—raid after raid by massive B-52 bombers striking as many as five times a day in the tropical rain forests and thick elephant grass around the base.

In Saigon, diplomatic circles speculated that the pullback was a sign of goodwill following the partial bombing halt in U.S. air strikes over North Vietnam.

During the siege of Khe Sanh, the marines were battered daily by North Vietnamese artillery. They lived without daring to walk freely for fear a Communist sniper would shoot them down.

They lived in trenches and bunkers waiting for a North Vietnamese attack. They listened with stethoscopes for North Vietnamese digging tunnels beneath them.

Today, American helicopters landed without Communist bullets and rockets screaming at them.

Today, Khe Sanh was relieved.

Over North Vietnam, the only air strikes reported by the U.S. command for Friday were within 130 miles of the demilitarized zone in what appeared to be further curtailment of the already limited attacks ordered by President Johnson.

Court Reserves Ruling On Alberni Tower Suit

VANCOUVER (CP)—Decision has been reserved in a Supreme Court damage action concerning alleged breach of contract over an $800,000 high-rise apartment building in Port Alberni and other properties.

The suit, heard by Mr. Justice Victor Dryer, was brought by businessman Alfred Vincent Andrews against Centennial Mortgage Corporation.

RACE VIOLENCE

19 Killed As Guns, Fires Roar

By the Associated Press

A new outburst of violence rocked the U.S. capital today and crack U.S. Army paratroopers joined 4,000 other federal troops there.

In most other American cities hit by violence spawned by the murder of Negro civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the dawn brought a respite.

A wave of looting swept Negro sections of Washington and new fires were reported in neighborhoods seared by hundreds of blazes.

Nineteen persons have died in racial disorders since King was killed Thursday night, including nine in Chicago and five in Washington. Besides Washington, Chicago was heavily damaged by fires Friday night.

NEGROES were urged by black power advocate Stokely Carmichael to arm themselves with guns and take to the streets, in retaliation for the killing of Dr. Martin Luther King. At news conference in Washington Carmichael said: "We have to retaliate." (AP Wirephoto.)

Two youths died in Detroit, one in Tallahassee. In Minneapolis, police said a Negro killed a white neighbor Thursday night after telling his wife: "My King is dead. I'm going out and get me a honky." In Memphis, where King was murdered, a young Negro man shot by police Thursday night died today.

GUARD BUILDINGS

Paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division—veterans of Vietnam, last summer's Detroit riots and the peace march on the Pentagon last fall—were flown in to help protect the citadels of American government in Washington.

Smoke drifted over the tourist-jammed city from new blazes and still-smouldering fires that gave many buildings the appearance of bombed-out structures.

Police in Washington had at least a dozen reports of looting within 90 minutes of the lifting this morning of a dark-to-dawn curfew imposed by city officials.

In Pittsburgh, roving bands of Negroes smashed windows and looted stores in several sections before police restored order. Police said about 90 arrests were made during the night.

National guard troops and police restored a measure of calm today in Chicago after a night of firebombing, shooting and looting.

UNDER CONTROL

"The situation is under control," said Brig.-Gen. Richard T. Dunn, emergency commander of the Guard.

Chicago was hit by waves of fires, shootings and looting in a predominantly-Negro west side area Friday night and early today. Some 3,000 national guardsmen shuttled from one trouble spot to the next. At least 20 buildings were burned to the ground.

Federal troops, ordered by President Johnson, guarded the White House and Capitol after aiding police and national guardsmen, to bring a raging Negro outburst under control . . . Some 350 persons were injured, 2,000 arrested.

Washington, Detroit and Memphis were under curfew.

BACK UP POLICE

National guardsmen also were backing up police in Detroit and the greater Boston area. A unit of 500 guardsmen moved into Pine Bluff, Ark., to keep peace after police and Negroes exchanged sporadic gunfire during the night.

Hunt Widens For Assassin

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — U.S. Attorney-General Ramsey Clark said the manhunt for the killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has spread "several hundred miles from Memphis."

It was almost a desperate bid to find the white assassin of the civil rights leader as hundreds of law enforcement officials pressed the search.

The reward for his arrest grew to $150,000.

Clark appeared pleased with the progress of the investigation. "We've got substantial leads," he said. "We're very hopeful."

Eight Killed In Blast, Fire

RICHMOND, Ind. (UPI) — A thunderous explosion followed by fire erupted in downtown Richmond today. The National Guard said at least eight persons were killed.

National Guard Capt. Charles D. Myers said there were an undetermined number of injuries over a three to four-block area which was thick with shoppers when the blast came.

The explosion apparently was powered by gun powder in a sporting goods store in the heart of the business district.

LBJ MOVES TO COMBAT VIOLENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, operating from a White House turned into a fortress, has ordered federal troops to protect the capital against violent Negro unrest which has spurred him to schedule an address to Congress Monday night.

Even as he disclosed his actions, roving looters smashed into stores within two blocks of the White House and black clouds of smoke from incendiary fires hung low over the city.

The violence in Washington and other urban centres prompted Johnson to cancel plans for weekend conferences in Honolulu on Vietnam policy and a meeting there with President Chung Hee Park of South Korea.

Instead, Genl William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, flew to Washington to confer with Johnson.

MET NEGRO LEADERS

In other moves to deal with the national crisis precipitated by King's slaying Thursday night, Johnson met at the White House with civil rights leaders, proclaimed Sunday a national day of mourning for King and ordered all flags over American ships and property here and abroad to be flown at half staff until the burial of the civil rights leader Tuesday.

U.S. REPORTS

Viet Peace Bid Moving Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials report arrangements with North Vietnam for preliminary discussions on peace talks are "moving forward" slowly but are still on the track.

The state department officially disclosed Friday night the North Vietnamese have been notified through diplomatic channels that President Johnson has agreed to "establish contact."

The unintended disclosure was forced, officials said, by a report that North Vietnam's deputy foreign minister, Hoang Van Loi, had said in Algiers the United States had not replied to his government's proposal for preliminary discussions.

Johnson announced Sunday a limited bombing halt over North Vietnam and asked for peace talks. Hanoi responded Wednesday morning with a statement it was ready to make contact. Several hours later Johnson announced: "We will establish contact."

That was followed by the official word through diplomatic channels and officials said Friday night they were waiting for President Ho Chi Minh to make the next move.

President Johnson's cancellation Friday of his Hawaii conference with his top Saigon officials did not affect the peace talk prospects in any way, administration officials said.

Second Ballot Result

Trudeau	964
Winters	473
Hellyer	465
Turner	347
Greene	104
MacEachen	11

OTTAWA—Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau was near victory after two ballots in the Liberal leadership race today.

Here is the first ballot result:

Trudeau	752
Hellyer	330
Winters	293
Martin	277
Turner	277
Greene	169
MacEachen	165
Kierans	103
Henderson	0

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin surprised the convention by immediately bowing out of the contest. He did not pledge support to any other specific candidate.

Eric Kierans also withdrew. Lloyd Henderson was automatically eliminated by the clause removing any candidate receiving less than 50 votes.

In the moments before the second ballot started, MacEachen withdrew leaving five names on the ballot: Trudeau, Hellyer, Winters, Turner, Greene.

A total of 2,390 Liberal delegates voted. Spoiled ballots totalled 24. A simple 50 per cent majority was needed to win.

The first ballot got under way at 10 a.m. but was delayed by computer trouble. Voters who failed to tear off stubs from their ballots confused the machine.

Mr. Kierans in withdrawing freed his delegates to vote for the candidate of their choice. He did not announce who he would support.

While delegates, many reading newspaper stores about racial unrest in the United States, sat through a droning business session in the convention area, a peacenik demonstration was under way outside.

Several hundred young folk from Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto squatted behind the centre and chanted:

"Johnson's finished, Pearson too,

"The next prime minister will be a murderer too."

Early Words Get the Bird

OTTAWA (CP) — Maverick Ralph Cowan threw Pierre Elliott Trudeau workers into a flap today by covering delegate seats at the Liberal leadership convention with a copy of a 1963 article in which Mr. Trudeau referred to "the anti-democratic reflexes of the spineless Liberal herd."

"Did you see the Trudeau people running around picking up the pamphlet I was distributing?" Mr. Cowan snorted indignantly, still passing out copies.

"I asked them what was wrong with it. It was written by Trudeau. They said it was smut."

The article was a translation of one that appeared in the Montreal journal Cite Libre Jan. 3, 1963, titled "Pearson, or the Abdication of the Liberal conscience."

Mr. Cowan, Liberal MP for York-Humber and a voting delegate at the convention, looked at the forests of placards about him just before the voting began and said:

"I think it's the best imitation of an American political convention I have ever seen."

He said he planned to vote for Paul Martin.

"Martin on the third ballot," he predicted.

A paper war raged among the orange seats of the convention site today as supporters of each candidate tried to get rid of the propaganda of the others.

The same thing was being repeated around the arena in the sections where supporters of each of the 10 candidates were to sit when the voting began.

The lesson apparently was learned Friday, when Trudeau supporters quickly flooded seats with Trudeau placards which popped up like a forest when the justice minister took the stage.

Pierre Rouses Cheers With a Simple Shrug

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The Liberal leadership contest turned into a beautification of Pierre Elliott Trudeau last night.

When the seven serious seekers of the Liberal crown began their nomination speeches, there was still some lingering doubt about the outcome of today's voting. But by the time the response of the delegate-audience has been measured, the only remaining question was which ballot would make Trudeau the fifteenth prime minister of Canada.

Except for the frenetic reception to the Trudeau speech, it was a night of few surprises. Each of the contenders did his own thing and watching them, it was fascinating to contemplate the difficulties Lester Pearson must have had keeping together a cabinet of such widely disparate men. For four hours they paraded by in their infinite variety and this is how they looked to me:

Paul Martin starts the evening, looking like an automaton reproduction of himself. An old pro to the end, he betrays no small sign of lack of confidence. His presentation is a mixture of on-stage politics, off-stage bunkum, a blend of political savvy, high-minded inanities, partisan ploys, unctuous compliments. There is a slick old radio rhythm in his speech reminiscent more of music hall than television.

The odd thing about Paul Martin's cliches is that they blow up like bubbles, getting thinner and thinner, then vanish before one knows what, if anything, they really mean. He can mix in the U.S. civil rights with the aspirations of French-Canada and make it all sound uninteresting and uninvolving though not entirely illogical. He keeps stressing his experience and
